Damage From Hoppers Spotted But Heavy in Some Parts of County

Grasshopper damage is being reported in parts of Pennington and Marshall counties this week; the hoppers moving in from the pastures to the fields and causing heavy damage in places, often before the owners are aware of their presence.

Fifteen tons of mash have been distributed in the county during the past week according to County Agent R. M. Douglass, and the mash is being mixed in about twenty places. Mr. Douglass believes that another two or three weeks of poisoning will hold them down, and reports the damage as being spotted. Now that they are in the fields, he says, it is much more difficult to get at them.

The new plumbers' license law passed by the last session of the Legislature went into effect on July 1st. Under this law all plumbers doing work in cities of 5,000 inhabitants or more must hold a license with the State Board of Health.

However, the time limit for securing the licenses without examination expires on July 15th and the board advises all plumbers who wish to be in position to take on work in cities of 5,000 or more people to make their application without delay.

Delegation of Farmers From Pennington County to Attend Wheat Meeting at Fargo

A delegation of Pennington county farmers expect to attend the Fargo wheat conference and contribute to the discussion of the new administration measures for haiing the price of wheat to a paying level.

Robert Miller of Underwood, president of the Minnesota Farmer's Union was in the city Wednesday in the interest of the wheat conference which will be held at Fargo Saturday. This conference will be attended by M. L. Wilson, chief of the wheat production section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who is credited with inventing the wheat plan.. Similar meetings have already been held in Kansas City and Spokane.

At the two conferences already held farm leaders have urged that some method be adopted whereby farmers in counties which grow comparatively little wheat can organize on an economical basis such as will make it worth their while to come in under the plan. This idea would apply to Pennington and many other Minnesota counties.

The government's program consists of offering farmers adjutment payment sufficient to bring the buying power of the part of their 1933, 1934, and 1935 crops that is domestically consumed as human food up to the pre war level, in return for agreeing to reduce acreage in 1934, and 1935 cropa by 20 per cent or less of their average past production. A processing tax of 30 cent a bushel on the milling of wheat, effective July 9, hae been levied to produce the needed funds.

Mr. Wilson aays: "Even if only an average crop is grown next year the surplus problem will still be acnte. We must remember that the export market which used to take our surplus wheat, almost regardless of how much we had, is practically gone. Our present carry-over is more than 350 million bushels. Our average crop for the last five years has been 844 million bushels. Each year we consume about 625 million bushels for food, feed, seed, and micellaneous. In the last 12 months we exported about 35 million bushels. Now, if we assume the possibility of exporting in the next 12 months 50 million bushels, and if we also assume a crop this year as low as 550 million bushels it would be necessary to dig into the surplus to the extent of about125 million bushels. This would still leave a July 1, 1934, carry-over of about 225 million bushels, which would still be double the normal carry-over. It is, however, too much to expect another crop failure next year. A less than average crop of 800 million bushels would then bring our surplus on July1, 1935, near the point it is now."

The purpose of the Agricultural Adjustment plan, Mr. Wilson says, is to benefit the wheat growers of this country, put the wheat industry on a paying basis for all the farmers, and to give them as fully as possible the economic and social benefist contemplated in the act. To do this the total supply of wheat must in 1934 and 1935 be cut down about 20 per cent from the average of the last three years. The cut will be made voluntarily in each region, state, and by each individual farmer. And the government will make compensatory payments. In addition to the compensatory payments, wheat farmers will benefit by the improved position of the industry.

Rates for Trucks Now Being Drawn Up Tentatively After Extensive Hearings by Dept.

Shipping rates under the new truck regulatory law are now being prepared by the Railroad and Warehouse commission, with the cooperation of farmers, railroadmen and truck owners. The following letter is by Martin Odland, an official of the commission.

The Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission is confronted by many difficulties in preparing a schedule of rates to be charged by operators of trucks, under Chapter 170, Laws of 1933 - the so-called truck law, which is one of the most important acts of the recent Session of the Minnesota Legislature. The law takes effect July 1st, and as yet the commission has been unable to complete the schedule, but will in a few days.

To obtain the views of producers, shippers and transportation companies, the commission called a conference of uch at the Auditorium of the State Office Building, on June 20. Several hundred truck operators, railroad representatives and officers of shipping association, were present, and a lively discussion took place, from 10:00 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon.

Frank W. Matson, chairman of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, presided, and in calling the meeting to order, urged all to speak their mind frankly and freely, as the Commission is anxious to get the views of all whose interests will be affected by the new law, so as to be able to prepare a schedule of rates as fair and equitable as posible. Mr. Matson explained that the Commission is acting at the command of the Legislature and has no desire to assume powers or authority not vested in it or made obligatory upon it by law.

Most of the discussion pertained to rates on live stock shipments and indicated that the shippers present believed that the rates tentatively agreed upon by the Commission should be reduced, in view of the low prices now paid for live stock. The rates proposed by the Commission are about the same as those charged by haulers in the past, but allow an extra fee of 10 cents per cwt., for "pick-up" - that is, for bringing the stock from the farm to the point from which the haul starts. That this charge will be reduced or entirely done away with by the commission is probable.

The Need for Inventors

M. L. Wilson, Federal Administrator, who will be heard by a delegation of Pennington county producers at Fargo Saturday, may not think of himself as an inventor even tho he laid the framework for the bill he administers. Those who invent ways of improving our social and industrial machine are seldom looked up to with the same admiration as the inventor of ordinory knick-knacks in other lines, altho it may require vastly more ability and application. Because of the fear that any change may injure the rights of property, social inventors have small chance of seeing their ideas applied, and consequently progress along those lines has lagged far behind.

The chief reason for the enormous amount of invention and improvement in such lines as machinery, medicine and methods of communication has been the free use of experiment in an effort to find ways of making things work. The rewards for such inventions have been large and the inventors honored as among our greatest men. Not so with social inventions. No matter how important to the welfare of the people their ideas may be, they are usually thought of as being visionary, impractical men who are apt to upset things rather than help them.

But now, wth the entire world more or less upset, the social inventors are receiving some recognition. The plan Mr. Wilson drew up was selected from hundreds that had been advocate by politicians, editors and economists, and fought over by conflicting groups. The plan may work and it may not: it is intended as an experiment, and the important thing is the changed attitude that makes such experiments possible, even tho in a conservative way. The first airplane was far from satisfactory, and the first automobiles were regarded as playthings for the rich. By trial and error, which is about the only way we learn anything, they were developed into something useful and fairly dependable.

When the same method of making progress is applied to improving our economic machines there will be more hope of a satisfactory life for the masses.

It may seem as if we are taking the welfare of the people lightly when we speak of experimenting with methods of improving our lot, but it happens to be the only satisfactory way in which we can discover the right methods. Life is a process of making adjustments to new situations as painlessly a possible, both for the individual as well as society as a whole. The quicker the adjustments are made, the less suffering will result, and until people know vastly more than they do now about applying their intelligence to their problems a certain amount of experimenting will be necessary before they learn how to control the complex civilization they live in.

The Liberal Digest

Gloryfying the House of Morgan
(Condensed from the Nation)

Among the corporations in which the house of Morgan holds directorships, as disclosed by the Senate investigating committee, is the Crowell Publishing Company. This caused some surprise in the newspaper world.

The Crowell Publishing Company is a large concern, publishing Collier's Weekly, with a circulation of 2,500,000; the American Magazine, also with a circulation of 2,500,000; the Women's Home Companion, 2,000,000 and Country Home, 1,000,000. Taken together, these magazines reach a very large section of the American reading public. And now it appears that Thomas W. Lamont of J. P Morgan and Company is director of Crowell Publishing Company. It is entirely possible that Mr. Lamont and Mr. Morgan do not control these magazines, but Mr. Lamont is on the directorate, and it is not too much to assume that the management of these magazines are aware of Mr. Lamont's presence among their rulers.

The story of banker patronage of magazines and newspapers is long and worth telling. The current Morgan investigation reveals some pleasant friendships on the part of that firm for the press such as for Franz Schneider, Jr., financial editor of the New York Evening Post and later the Sun. The financial editor of a paper both comments on the markets and influences his paper's policy. Is it not odd that Mr. Lamont passed out shares to him in United Corporation?

To go back to the Crowell Publishing Company -- no one can question the right of a Morgan partner to be interested in the enterprize, but neither can the company object to being judged by the circumstance or to having it advertised. There are in fact, these twenty Morgan partners on innumberable directorates - commercial, financial, charitable, literary scientific, academic. We are safe in assuming that this produces in these institutions as a whole an immense good will for the Morgans and their ways, which may have something to do with the respectability with which the firm has been clothed of late, altho they have not changed since the days of the elder Morgan.

For instance, in recent numbers of Collier's is a six-part serial called the "Life of Henry P. Davison," by Thomas W. Lamont. Mr. Davison was a Morgan partner before his death eleven years ago, and the articles also glorify Mr. Morgan. In this year of the New Deal, was it not strange that a magazine should select American youth the figure of one of the most ruthless, most scornful money-grabbers of all time?

The story of the elder Morgan as told by Mr. Lamont sinks to the level of silliness. Mr. Lamont proclaims Morgan a man of such "strong sense of community responsibility" that it fairly staggers his imagination. The simple truth is that scarcely a gold hunter of his day cared so little for the public as the great plunderer. He looked on the common people with scorn and contempt.

Morgan began his financial career in America just as the herd was being marched off to fight the Civil War. When Fort Sumpter was fired on, gold began to leave the country. The nations' reserves became sadly depleted, and its credit wa impaired. The price of gold soared. Morgan borrowed $2,000,000 in gold coin and shipped it to London, which was really a blow behind the lines. The United Announcement!

To the Theatre-going Public:

With the belief that there is again business enough in this city and from the surrounding territory for two theatres, I am re-opening the Lyceum and earnestly solicit a part of the patronage. While everything possible has been done, by certain parties, to keep my theatre from re-opening, I am all the more determined to go on, encouraged by my friends, the majority of the theatre-goers. It has been made impossible for me to secure the pictures I had signed up for, but I am getting the best available at the present time with the promise of something better in the near future. Upon inquiry, I find it will be impossible to get regular vaudeville bills for the summer months, but will endeavor to pick up independent acts and other entertainment from time to time.

Sincerely,
Roy Morgan

The Craze for Law Making.

The old American "there ought to be a law" mania cropped out in the city council at the last meeting of that body when an ordinance restricting the number of dogs that any resident of the city may have to two animals, was read the first time.

I understand that the idea is to provide an instrument with which to curb the stray dog evil, and while the intentions that engendered the ordinance are very likely of the best, I am convinced that the authors are shooting far wide of the mark. This ordinance will not provide any power for curbing a neusance that the police department does not already possess, but it will stand on the city's statute books as a dicredit to an intelligent council.

A citizen may own a female dog; would the council turn the police department into an execution spuad to go out and exterminate all of a litter of pups but one?

After all it is the nature of the beasts, and not their number that constitute the neusance. I remember two neighbors who lived in the some block with me years ago, one had one dog, the other was a breeder of Llewelynn setters and had from six to fifteen dogs on his place all the time. This man's dogs were well behaved and seldom let a woof out of them. The other man's dog was a neusance of the worst kind, and many a night he made me murderously inclined when he would come rushing at me beligerently and noisily when I was returning home. The proposed ordinance would have worked an injustice on the one man while leaving the unmitigated neusance without restriction.

It may be that there is a dog neusance in the ciyt, if there is let the council instruct the police department to put an end to it, but let us not clutter up our ordinance books with silly and worse than useless legislation.

What Will We Pay it With?

There is a tax of about seventy some cents going on flour now in order to provide funds to pay the wheat farmers a premium for cutting down acreage. This should help the farmer to get on his feet. That's gratifying.

But as yet there has been no provisions made to provide the consumers with the extra seventy cents to pay it with. That's not so gratifying.

If the administration believes that the American people can lift themselves out of a depression by their bootstraps it will have made the same mistake as the Hoover regime did.

Hoover made the mistake of thinking that the postal receipts could be increased by raising the postal rate to three cents, only to find that people done less mailing. Unless the unemployed are put back to work and wages of those that are working is raised back to a living standard, we will find that there will be so much less flour sold that there will be no funds with which to pay the farmers. The allotment plan is a good plan, only if, and when, the consumers have a greater purchasing power. Until then it will be just another crazy patch on a crazy system.

Good Tools Make a Difference

Good materials and good tools make the workman after all. "Bill" Dahlquist borrowed my soap-box last week and turned out a darn good editorial.

—o—

The reactionary, -- pardon me, I should say conservative members of the House of Representatives held a "Summer session" a week or so ago at the resort of Roy Dunn, the prize reactionary of the state at Pelican Rapids.

According to all accounts they had a glorious time holding mock legislative session and indulging in other less strenous sports like swimming and fishing. I can well understand that they had a good time holding "sessions," what with Roy Wier, who always pointed out the fallacy of their arguments, out of the way and no Emil Youngdahl there to open the records of former sessions to their dicomfiture; it must have been some pleasant "sessions."

They decided that at the next election they will run as "independents," rather than as republicans or democrats, which might be more pleasant for them, but I don't believe that it will fool the voters. We have their records, and boy, how we are going to broadcast them over the state.

And among other things they decided to run Albert Pfaender, chairman of the appropriations committee of the last session for governor. That is quite is quite fitting, Pfeander has been characterized as the most "reactionary democrat in tho state" and should be the proper standard bearer for them.

"There is many a slip, twixt the cup and the lip" and it is just barely possible that Pfaender will be defeated, if he should be foolish enough to run for the governorship.

Farm And Market

By R. A. TROVATTEN,
Minnesota Agriculture, Dairy and Food Commissioner

The federal government is about to put the acreage reduction plan into operation. Through the reduction of acreage, the government intends to curtail production of farm commodities, and thereby eliminate surpluses--termed as the cause of low prices for agricultural products.

—o—

The wheat plan has been agreed upon, others will follow. Farmers are asked by the government to sign a contract to reduce acreage for which they will receive a cash consideration. To those who will cooperate, two-thirds of the payment will go out probably by the middle of September, the remainder to be paid next spring after proof has been given that the acreage was reduced.

—o—

This bill will be paid by what is called a process tax of thirty cents a bushel upon wheat—— which will be passed down to the consumer, the housewife who buys flour, bread, biscuits or other products made from wheat. The tax goes into effect July 8th. On the basis of thirty cents a bushel, one hundred and fifty million dollars will be available for payment to wheat growers for acreage reduction.

—o—

During the war the cry went out "raise more wheat."

—o—

Everybody went into the wheat raising business. Southern states jumped on the band-wagon and began to take wheat raising as a serious proposition. Canada increased her production and Russia added millions and millions of bushels to the world market. From the Argentine came more wheat until the markets of the world were jammed with that dreaded word "surplus."

—o—

We used to pray for a bountiful harvest. Now we say "cut it down."

—o—

The federal acreage reduction plan is one of tampering with nature. No-one yet has been able to tamper with nature and get away with it.

—o—

We can hardly accuse Providence of being too good to us by giving us plenty. We must accuse our economic system of being steeped with stupidity.

It's not overprodction, it's the fact that we have to transfer the results of our labors into the coin of the realm. For some reason or other there has not been enough of that to go around— that is after the big fellows had removed their part from the pile.

Just at the point when we are bubbling over with egotism over our efficiency in the control of nature, nature is liable to take the situation in her own hands. In this respect the present drougth is more than a threat.

They're changing to Super Shell—now without the 3¢ premium!

"I used to buy premium gasolines, but I've changed to Super Shell. I'm saving money and gotting the same qualities in performanca out of Super Shell as in premium gas."
VAN BONEY, Jacksonville, Florida

From the Rockies to the Atlantic—Super Shell is TODAY'S BIG FAVORITE! Millions of motorists every day are now driving into the Shell stations and saying, "Fill it up with Super Shell."

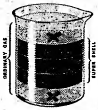
Remember when it cost 3¢ a gallon extra? Even then, millions bought it for its premium qualities.

Today for the first time, Super Shell sells at the "regular" price—and every car can now afford it.

Hair-trigger starting, flashing pick-up, and a higher anti-knock rating than any gasoline to which ethyl has not been added, and, above all, extra mileage.

That's why everyone is saying: "Change to Super Shell.".

ALL WASTE PARTS REMOVED



Gassy Parts—That evaporate before they burn. Removed by SHELL.

LIBERAL DIGEST

States scrambled for gold to pay committings abroad, and Morgan sold his $2,000,000 at his own price. His next contribution to the war was to sell the army 6,000 condemned rifles, which he bought for $3.50 and sold for $22. All of them had to be junked.

Morgan is also credited with "saving" the nation in three great panics. In 1894 the government put out two bond issues of $50,000,000 each to get gold. The gold flowed in one door of the Treasury and out the other, the bankers only having to present gold notes to get back the gold they had sold. In January 1895, New York banks had $62,000,000 in gold, and a little later they had $129,000,000. They had recaptured the gold they sold to the government and were ready to sell it again. Morgan arranged a bond issue with President Cleveland, who sold to Morgan's syndicate $62,000,000 of 4% bonds at 104. The Morgan syndicate sold them at 118, closing the deal in twenty minutes, and making $10,000,000 on this "patriotic rescue." A little later the gold was all drained away again, and Mr. Morgan was preparing for another "rescue" that would have brought him $200,000,000, when a public outcry against this kind of salvation stopped the raid.

The picture of Mr. Morgan as the "Savior" of the nation in 1907 is also tearfully drawn by Mr. Lamont in his article, altho it was just as bad a deal as in the panic of 1897. Mr. Morgan was one of the greatest enemies our society ever had, and most of the damaging corporate tricks which brought us to our present hole developed and were varnished with respectability by him. He lived on wrecks and thrived on depressions. He built nothing, but pounced on what other men built. To hold such a man up to the admiration of the present generation at this time is an insult to the intelligence of the American people, and shows the need of greater vigilanca than ever, and of keener scrutiny of the forces that shape public opinion thru the press, magazines, and other means by which ideas are instilled.

THIEF RIVER FALLS FORUM

Volume 2 THIEF RIVER FALLS, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1933 Number 15

RAISE IS MADE IN COUNTY TAX LEVY

The Pennington county board set the tax levy for the county at $114,000 at the meeting in the courthouse this week. The new levy comprises an increase of $15,000 over the levy of last year, the levy then being $99,000.

The change from the township system to the county system of poor relief, the heavier burden now placed on the county, and the necessity of paying back to the townships the county's share of last years poor relief, all contributed to the increase in the higher rate. The poor fund increased from $12,000 as of last year to $30,000.

The compulsory old age pension law passed by the last session of the Legislature booted the levy $3,000.

The county commissioners look forward to a big cut in the expenditures for the road and bridge fund for the coming year, and a reduction of $3,000 in the general operating expense of the county is looked for.

George McDowell of the Minneapolis Bridge company appeared before the board in regard to specifications on the grade of gravel used in construction of two concrete bridges on S. A. R. No. 1. He exlpained to the board that it has been a customary procedure on the part of contractors to use local grovel, if good gravel could be found, rather than washed and screened gravel always called for inspecifications and plans sent out by the Federal government. Mr. McDowell produced letters from two contractors who had bid on the same jobs, saying that their bids had been made with the intention of using local gravel.

Mr. McDowell volunteered to explain to the county commissioners the regulation governing highway projects under the Federal allotment of $10,500,000 for Minnesota.

He urged the board to work quickly and make a strong appeal to the highway authorities for the full expenditure of 25 per cent of the funds on secondary or feeder roads.

Upon the resignation of Dr. J. Biedermann, county coroner, the board appointed Dr. A. M. Smith to fill the vacancy.

County Women's Home Project Picnic Proves 'Wow' to Many Present

The Pennington county womens home project picnic last Sunday was a "wow". The 310 members and their families who attended the gathering at the O. N. Olson "Birch Grove Farm", were entertained by a varied program with Mrs. Lee Beebe, county home chairman, presiding.

V. C. Noper lead the community singing, and musical numbers were furnished by the Angell sisters and Alpha and Elsie Larson, and Signe and Ruth Stenseth. Miss Elizabeth Jorde gave a reading and a talk on construction and plans for the welfare of Pennington county was given by W. E. Dahlquist.

The sports events, with Mrs. Adam Lendobeja in charge, included contests and races of all kinds, doll dressing race, and a rooster catching contest included.

A tug o' war and two kittenball games were held, one between the Kratka and Smiley girls and the other between the farmers and the city men.

Mrs. Axel Engelstad headed the lunch committee, Mrs. S. E. Hunt was in charge of the program committee, and Mrs. A. C. Matheson of the grounds commttee.

The local plant of the Kiewel Products company was included in the purchase of the Grand Forks and Crookston creamery plants by Roy F. Bridgeman of Grand Forks, who took over the ownership of the Kiewel manager of the Bridgeman-Russell plants Monday after resigning as plants and vice president of that company.

The sale of the local branch includes the ice-cream manufactering plant and the agency for the Jacob Schmidt Prewing company. No change has as yet been made in the managing personnel, Ben Kiewel continuing to manage the plant until further word is received from Mr. Bridgeman who has been in Duluth this week closing the deal. The bottling plant and soft drink business was not included in the sale and will continue to operate under the management of Mr. Kiewel.

Rural Grads are Crop That Neither Drouth Nor Hoppers Could Harm, Says Rev. Fjelstad

"This is a crop that neither the drougth nor the hoppers could do away with," said Rev. R. M. Fjelstad in his commencement address at graduation exercises for the 109 eighth grade rural pupils of Pennington county, in the courthouse yesterday afternoon.

The chief aim and purpose of the public schools, Rev. Fjelstad stated, is to provide a foundation of knowledge and inculcate the ideals of loyalty, obedience, honesty, industry, and a reverence for God.

"When we look upon the public schools in that light," he told the parents and friends, "We will be interested in maintaining our chools at the highest rate of efficiency."

Turning to the graduating pupils, Rev. Fjelstad continued, "I hope that not ony have you passed thru the eighth grade, but that the eighth grade has passed thru you."

In concluding he advised them to enter high school and make a careful selection of courses for a well-rounded cultural development.

Presentation of the diplomas was made by A. C. Matheson, county of schools, who also wecomed the large gathering of parents and friends that crowded the limited space of the courtroom.

Norby, manager of the local Land O' Lakes plant; Alfred Skarstad of the Union State Bank, and H. A. Pratt, Soo Line agent. The election will be held next Tuesday, July 18, between 7:00 and 8:00 p. m. at Lincoln High School.

Wheat Delegation at Fargo Wheat Meet

Plans of the federal wheat administrator for carrying out the "New Deal" in wheat were rather vague and disappointing to members of the Pennington county delegation, consisting of Ed. Aubol, W. H. Quist, Louis Nelson, C. A. Lindquist and Alfred Longren, who attended the wheat conference at Fargo Saturday. M. L. Wilson, in charge of wheat, stated that farmers in low producing counties such as Pennington must take the initiative in organizing Control Associations, since the government would only actively organize counties where more than 200,000 bushels were grown. Marshall county comes under the heavy producing list.

Pennington county's allotment for wheat for 1934 uder the Agricultural Adjustmet Act, as determined by the United States Department of Agriculture will be approximately 74,664 bushels. This means that, if the wheat-growers of the county cooperate in full with the United States Agricultural Adjustment Administration on thebasis of past production, by contracting to reduce their production for 1934 and 1935, there will be paid to them all a total of approximately $11,199 for the year 1933. The payments for 1934-36 will be determined later.

New Committee Takes Over County Memorial Fund Founded in 1919

The original committee of the Pennington County Memorial Fund, appointed in 1919 by the county commissioners to collect money for the creation of a memorial to honor the veterans of the county who served in the World War, met last Tuesday afternoon to dispose of this fund.

T. P. Anderson who has been in charge of the fund since 1921 when it was transferred to his care from N. A. Nelson of St. Hilaire, stated that he was ready to transfer the money, which amounts to $286.10 according to figures brought out at the meeting, to the new committee, immediately upon its election.

The new committee was elected and now includes Gust Naplin, chairman, Peter Engelstad, Secretary-treasurer, Stephen Singer of Goodridge, O. C. Paulson, and B. O. Norhy. This group will dispose of the money for some suitable memorial to honor Pennington county veterans. It was suggested that it be used to furnish the Service men's room which is to be included in the new auditorium.

The original committee, composed of representatives from the larger towns in the county, and a representative from each township, had collected a total of $569.15. In 1921 the county commissioners passel a resolution to transfer the fund from N. A. Nelson, treasurer of the committee, to one of the county employees who was bonded.

The fund was deposited in the Farmers and Merchants State Bank in the name of T. P. Anderson, who was county auditor at that time.

The fund remained in the hands of Mr. Anderson from taht time to the present and interest was paid in three instances with a total sum of $76.10, before the closing of the bank. After its closing $210 in dividends were turned over to Mr. Anderson. These figures were obtained from the records of the closed bank by a committee of interested business men who presented them to the Elmer J. Ecklund post of the American Legion.

The members of the original committee accepted the settlement of $286.10, plus interest at two percent on the money from the dates issued to Mr. Anderson. The total, fund which will approximate $300.00 wa turned over to the new committee for deposit in the Union State Bank.

Mr. Nels Larson and daughter Edna returned to their home here Sunday after an extended tour of Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago and other points.

WORK WILL BEGIN ON AUDITORIUM

Mayor E. L. Tungseth approved and signed, last Thursday the resolution passed June 29, by the city council to advertise for bids on the proposed auditorium and municipal building as designed by Ray Gauger, St. Paul architect.

Advertisement for bids was made uly 6, and today, the bids to be opened Saturday, July 22.

Specifications have been placed in the builders exchanges at Duluth, Mnneapolis and St. Paul, and have also been filed at Fargo and Grand Forks. Many contractors are expected to make their appearance here the latter part of next week, and companies handling roofing, seats, glass etc., have already made inquiries to enable them to submit bids to the general contractor.

The council meets tonight in an informal session to discuss the tearing out of the old concrete foundation and floor. The ventilator must be removed, and the old boiler, which they expect to use again, will be moved to a new position. This work is expected to get under way by the first of next week under a made-work proposition.

At the meeting last Tuesday night the city council transferred the sum of $100 to supplement the band fund. The money will be used to erect a band stand for the Red River Valley Band association picnic to be held here July 23.

Two appications for the life-guard position at Tindolph Park, now being filled by Kenneth Holmstrom and Kenneth Pope, were turned in by Floyd Canfield, 720 Dewey avenue, and Jens A. Dale. The councilmen declined to act without consulting the park board which has the final appointing power.

"Its up to you fellows," said President Porter, "I swim like a rock. The only way I can navigate is with one foot on the bottom."

The council decided to arrange an informal meeting with the park board members for this evening.

City Attorney H. O. Berve advised the council to delay the second reading of the dog ordinance until information is received from Crookston city officials regarding the measure now in force there.

Mrs. R. G. Sager, propriator of a service station on west Sixth street, was granted a refreshment license, and a building permit was issued to Hilmer Lunke for estimated remodeing and construction at $200.

Truck Rates Now Fixed

About 350 operators of trucks have applied for permits as required by law new truck regulatory law, and it is estimated that approximately 2,000 permits will have been issued by the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission before the end of this month. All common and contract carriers who operate beyond a 35-mile zone come under the new law and must take out permits and charge such rates as are fixed by the Commission.

By unanimous vote, the three Commissioners - Frank W. Matson, Christian J. Laurisch and Knud Wefald - directed that all forms of transportation be placed on a parity, leaving the shippers to choose the form they wish to use. The rates heretofore charged by common carriers were made the basic rates under the new law and became effective Jrly yat.

It's a Dog's Life

Forty-three dogs, 40 of them male and three female are licensed in the city of Thief River Falls. They may trot the streets and sidewalks, unafraid, and look Poundmaster Oliver Oftelie in the eye with impunity. With only 3 female dogs registered, there is either a shortage of the gentler canine sex, or else they are old-fashioned home-bodies and keep out of the poundmaster's way. But then there isn't much use for them to stay at home and raise large families now that the council is advocating birth control; caninely speaking.

Directors of C. and C. Oppose Council's Stand On Purchase of Diesel

The city council's recent decision to purchase a new 1,000 horsepower Diesel unit for the local power plant which, was vetoed twice by Mayor E. L. Tungseth, again meets with opposition, this time from the board of directors of the Civic and Commerce association, in a discussion held after the regular meeting last Thursday afternoon.

A general discussion of the question by the entire body at the regular meeting today was urged by the directors who feel that the engine is apparently necessary for standby only, and that such an expenditure "should be made for employment."

President William Dahlquist reported on a special meeting which had been called in regard to the Federal appropriation of $10,000,000 allotted to Minnesota for highway purposes. The members decided that a portion of this money should be spent in the construction of a bridge across the Red Lake river on tht extension of Trunk Highway No. 30 from Erskine.

Plans for the annual trade tour of the Civic and Commerce association got under way this week with the appointment of a committee to arrange the details.

Bitter Fight Develops Over Code for Dairy Industry Between Centralizers and Co-ops

A bitter fight on the code to be submitted by creameries to the Government under the Industrial Recovery Act developed at a Conference in Chicago Wednesday, which had been called for the purpose of establishing a code of fair trade practices. Leading manufacturing concerns and centralizers were at swords points with representatives of farm co-operatives from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa. It wa finally decided to conduct a public hearing on the matter at Washington.

John Brandt, president of Land O' Lakes, mentioned the the possibility of such a fight developing in his talk at the Clearbrook creamery picnic Saturday. Leading butter manufacturers and centralizers he said, were attempting to set up a code which would give them a large profit regardless of benefits to the farmer, and that the producers themselves were not being given fair representation on the various boards. Mr. Brandt is on six of the committees, on several as the only representative of the co-operatives, which makes it difficult to give the proper attention to all of them, he said.

VALLEY BANDS TO HOLD PICNIC HERE

The Thief River Falls Municipal Band will be hosts to the Red River Valley Band association at a picnic to be held at Squaw Point, Sunday, July 23.

A feature of the program is 45 minute concerts by the various member bands of the association and a concert by the masesd bands as a grand finale. The concerts will begin at 11:00 a. m. and the massed concert is slated for 5:00 p. m.

The picnic is an annual event of the association which is composed of ten bands from the Red River Valley, namely; the Ada Municipal Band, the Crookston Junior Band, the Crookston Munilipal Band, the Moorhead Municipal Band, the Hendrum-Perley Band, the Halstad Concert Band, the Fertile Community Band, the Red Lake Falls Community Band, the Mshnomen School Band and the Thief River Falls Muicipal Band. All of the above mentioned bands will be in attendance here and each will play a concert some time during the afternoon.

The massed concert brings together over 300 musisians and has received a great deal of favorable comment throughtout the northwest in past years. Two years ago the picnic was held at Crookston and last year at Halstal. Both events were attended by thousands of people from thruout the valley.

Ray Lee of Twin Valley is president of the association and R. A. Nelson of Hendrum is the secretary. Local arrangements are in charge of the following chairman and their committees: Program, S.P. Orwoll; concessions, W. L. Carlisle; refreshments, Rueben (Slim) Lawson; stand, Leroy Groslie; platform, R. M. Aalbu; Grounds, Lyman Fossum.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to bring a picnic lunch and spend the afternoon with the bandmen. There will be refreshment stands on the grounds.

Dairy Code Not Developed In Interest of Producers Brant Tells Picnic Group

Charging that committees of the Agricultural Adjustment Act now working out a code of practices for the dairy industry are stacked by members who do not have the interest of the farmer in mind, John Brandt, president of Land O' Lakes, addressed a large crowd at the Clearwater creamery picnic Saturday; on the Dick Kolstrand farm near Highlanding. He was introduced by Stuart McLeod, chairman of district 17, who presided.

Mr. McLeod introduced the other main speaker of the afternoon, R. A. Trovatten, commissioner of agriculture, as a man who has the interests of farm cooperatives at heart, and is actively engaged in furthering their plans.

Nels Fore, president of the Clearwater creamery, also spoke, and music was furnished by the St. Hilaire band under the direction of E. Reiersgord.

Six creameries were sponsors of the picnic, including those at Goodridge, Plummer, Hazel, St. Hilaire, Oklee and Clearwater.

Famous Beer Sampler Puts One Over on Campbell and Stenburg in Blindfold Test

His long paunch shaking with silent mirth at the discomfiture of police Chief Stenberg and Alex Campbell, Izzy Sshneidermann, well known beer sampler of Millwaukee, rolled into his spacious Packard and headed south onMain last Wednesday afternoon, breezily waving a fat hand in farewell, It all came about over an argument on the respective flavors of beer and malt: The Chief said there was no noticeable difference in flavor, which was vigoriously denied by Izzy. Alex offered to buy two bottles and make a blindfold test. Hoping to put over a fast one, he bought two varieties of beer, removed all signs, labels or other incriminating evidence, and offered it to Herr Schneidermann. Izzy took a sip of each, smacked his heavy lips and gave his verdict,

"Dis is Hamm's," "Unt dis is City Club," both very goot beer. Gesundheit, I vil trink dem both!" With that he got into his car and left them counting their change.

Maple Sirup and Sugar U. S. and Canada Yield

Maple sugar and maple sirup are produced only in the United States and Canada. Not only is it purely an American industry, but a very old one, and one that we took over from the aboriginal inhabitants.

The earliest explorers found the Indians making sugar from the sap of maple trees in the St. Lawrence valley and elsewhere in the northeast, and when the Indians found that the white newcomers liked the maple products, they were the first to produce them in quantities for trade.

For many years among the early settlers of the northern part of the United States, maple sugar was the only sugar used, the imported cane sugar being beyond their means. It was these settlers who improved upon the Indians' method of tapping and boiling.

Sirup and sugar are produced chiefly from the sugar maple and the black maple. These trees are found throughout the eastern United States and Canada and as far south and west as Georgia and eastern Kansas. It is only in the northern United States and the adjacent parts of Canada, however, that production is important, the gradual spring of the north being necessary for a profitable flow.

According to requirements of the pure food and drug act, the sap must be reduced so that the sirup contains not less than 65 per cent total solids, and weighs not less than 11 pounds to the gallon.

U. S. Grant Product of Methodist Environment

Ulysses S. Grant was a product of a Methodist environment. His father was of Puritan descent, a book lover and a skilled debater; it was said of him that he carried the Bible in his heart. His mother also was a keen student of the Scriptures, a woman of sincere piety and of saintly temperament. Both parents were active in the church. The teaching of the boy's home became the practice of his life. Men who were with him at West Point later testified to the purity of his speech and the rectitude of his conduct. In the army "he gave every encouragement and facility for securing a prompt and uniform observance of religious services, and was generally found in the audience listening to the preaching." He had the chaplains say grace at mess.

As President, Grant and his family attended the old Foundry Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. J. P. Neuman was their pastor. He subsequently became a bishop, and Grant served as a trustee of his church, the Metropolitan temple, New York.

Original "Uncle Tom"

It is commonly believed that the prototype of Uncle Tom, in Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was Rev. Josiah Henson, who is buried near Dresden, Ont. According to the inscription on the tombstone, Henson was born on July 15, 1789, and died on May 3, 1883, at the age of ninety-three. His birthplace was Fort Tobacco, Md., and he escaped from slavery in 1828, reaching Canada and becoming a Methodist minister and one of the leaders in the "underground railroad" for fugitive slaves. According to the generally accepted account, Mrs. Stowe met Henson in Boston in 1850 and made use of his own story to write her famous novel. The assertion of western Ontario residents that Henson was the hero of this book was recently confirmed by the novelist's grandson, Lyman Beecher Stowe, in a speech at Montreal. Mr. Henson visited England several times and was entertained by Queen Victoria.

Orchardist Turns Clerk

The practice of keeping individual records of production, long common among successful stock raisers, has spread now to the orchardist and the individual trees in fruit orchards are being checked for their productivity. By this means the orchardist is able to determine which trees are yielding a paying crop each year, which ones are not making a profit and which should be eliminated to make room for new trees of better varieties. Some orchardists even go to the extreme of keeping tabs on individual branches of the trees which seem to yield better than others and these branches are used as a source for grafting in the production of new stock.—Washington Star.

Geological Periods

Geological periods cannot be reckoned by years with any approach to certainty. Even the dates of geological events in the "Recent," or "Human Period," immediately following the glacial period, cannot be arithmetically computed. The order of their succession is about all that can be established with reasonable certainty. In America evidences of glacial action extend as far south at least, as Washington and the Ohio river; in Europe to 50 degrees north latitude, and in some places down to 45 degrees.

Ancient Republics

Probably the earliest republican governments were the Jewish commonwealth or republic under Moses and Joshua and their successors, and the various republics of Carthage and the Greek states. The dates of these are approximately: 1491 to 1005 B. C. for the Israelitish commonwealth; 700 to 146 B. C. for the Grecian republic; 850 to 146 B. C. for Carthage.

Butterflies and Moths Fly Across North Sea

Most people interested in nature have wondered at the migratory flights of birds and marveled that such tiny creatures as golden-crested wrens should be able to traverse the North sea. But how many realize that butterflies and moths also fly into the British Isles, not only from Europe, but even from North Africa and Asia Minor?

Painted Lady butterflies, hatched from chrysales in Africa or Asia, flutter across the Mediterranean, across France and into England and Scotland. Probably some of these travelers fly right on—to Iceland. Thus the full journey of these fragile insects may be extended to nearly 4,000 miles.

Cabbage White butterflies also migrate in great swarms, and Clouded Yellows, which come across the channel from the northern coast of France, may often be seen fluttering down on English land in Kent and Sussex.

It may be noted that clouds of butterflies are observed at sea by sailors quite often, though inland large swarms are comparatively seldom seen—probably because the flights break up on reaching land.—Montreal Herald.

When Two Irish Kings Agreed on Peace Terms

Molachi and Brian Boru were two great kings of Ireland. They quarreled and fought for a while with each other to settle the question of preeminence, and finally entered into an agreement that became fateful in Irish history. They agreed to divide Ireland between them—Malachi to rule the north, Brian the south—that was in the year 998, and there is still a north and south of Ireland. Brian Boru was not of a temperament to be satisfied with a divided kingdom. He pleaded for the unification of the island and, failing in this, he invaded Molachi's realms and brought Malechi into his camp to swear allegiance to his sovereignty. He made Malochi titular king of Meath and from that time on Brian Bru ruled undisputed in Ireland. Then a miraculous thing happened—for Ireland. After forty years of warfare, the dove of peace descended upon the Green Isle, and from conqueror Brian became an Augustus and brought about Ireland's "golden age."—Kansas City Star.

The Monroe Doctrine

Among later events in which the Monroe Doctrine proved an important factor was its acknowledgment in the League of Nations covenant in 1919, which stated that the covenant does not affect the validity of international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace. The State department in 1929 published a historical review of the doctrine, and it was also invoked by some authorities in connection with the recent United States expedition in Nicaragua. Between 1829 and 1843 American statesmen gave notice that this country would not permit the transfer of Cuba to any other European power. In 1865 Seward gave formal notice that the French must leave Mexico. In 1895, in relation to the boundary dispute between Venezuela and Great Britain, the doctrine was invoked to compel arbitration. Other occasions have led to further enunciations and interpretations of the doctrine, which has become a permanent American policy.

The Bayonet

The bayonet, that cruel appendage to firearms, is said to have derived its name from the town of Bayonne in France where it was first manufactured. A Basque regiment which was engaged in fighting in the Pyrenees near Bayonne, became hard pressed. The supply of ammunition was exhausted and defeat seemed certain. Then the soldiers were directed to fasten their long knives into the barrels of their muskets and to advance upon the enemy. This they did, and the first bayonet charge was made, bringing victory to the Basques. This victory, due to the discovery of a new weapon, led to the manufacture of bayonets at Bayonne and their adoption by the armies of Europe. In England, use of the bayonet soon superseded that of the pike in battle.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Bahama Islands

There are 700 islands in the Bahama group and nearly three times as many rocks which extend above high water. The islands, only twenty of which are inhabited, comprise a chain beginning with Grand Bahama and the Biminis and extending over 760 miles in a southeasterly direction to Inagua, from where on a clear day the mountains at the eastern end of Cuba may be seen. One of their chief claims to fame is the fact that they were discovered by Columbus, San Salvador or Watlings island having been his first landfall on October 12, 1492.

Criminals in Bird World

"We have criminals in our world. So have birds," notes an authority in the Detroit News. "There are some cruel, murderous types—hawks, for example. Some writers describe the falcon's onslaught by saying that it rakes the body of its victim with its claws. In every instance which I have observed—and I've observed many of these crimes—when a duck hawk strikes, its claws are driven in and remain there. Usually victim and aggressor come to earth together."

Home Labor Expected To be Utilized For All Federal Highway Work

Labor to be employed on the state's $10,000,000 Federal fund highway program will be taken largely from the counties in which work is to be done, and will not be hired by the State Highway department, according to N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner.

Hundreds of persons have made applications to the Highway department for jobs in the past few days, apparently thinking that the department will be in charge of employment, Mr. Elsberg explained.

"Federal regulations governing the work say that the United States Employment Service in each state will designate agencies to prepare lists of skilled and unskilled labor for each highway project," he said.

"It is our understanding that when a contract is let in a certain county, the U. S. Employment Service will select some existing relief or employment agency in that county and have it supply a list of available workers to the contractor. The contractor will select his men from this list.

"Federal regulation contain this clause: "The requirements for preference in employment will not permit a contractor to carry with him skilled or unskilled laborers to any project unless they are ex-servicemen with dependents."

"War veterans with dependents are specifically designated as first choice for jobs. Next in preference are the residents of the city or county in which work is to be done, and third in order are residents of the state not living in the county in which the work is located."

The regulations also provide that the State Highway department shall do one representative construction project by direct labor, in order to provide a comparison with contract work in cost and efficiency.

In general, the contractors will be required to use hand labor where it does not interfere with sound economy and public interest. Any contractor who violates the Federal regulations will be barred from further participation in the emergency road work.

First projects under the emergency program are expected to get under way in August.

Weight of Feathers and Iron

In a vacuum a pound of feathers will weigh exactly as much as a pound of iron if the same standards are used. There is an old saying that a pound of feathers is heavier than a pound of iron. This is in a sense true because of the buoyancy of the air. The following experiment pictures this fact: Counterbalance in air a hollow sphere against a small solid sphere. Place the balance under the receiver of an air pump and exhaust the air. As soon as the air is removed the balance is no longer in equilibrium, the larger sphere then overbalancing a smaller one. Thus bodies which apparently have equal masses in air are found to have different masses in a vacuum. The large hollow sphere corresponds to the pound of feathers; the small solid sphere to the pound of iron.

Yale Lock Safety

A degree of safety is provided by the irregular shape of the key for Yale locks, so that no two keys will fit the same lock. The notches of the average key may be cut in eight depths, so that there are five notches, and the number of different keys possible is eight to the power of five i. e., 32,768. The notches are cut automatically to the required depth and the pins in the plug are made afterward to correspond. Still a further number of key changes is obtained by milling grooves lengthwise on the sides of the keys to correspond with similar grooves in the keyway in the plug. By varying the shape and location of these grooves a great range of key changes is made possible.

Cleveland Son of Preacher

Grover Cleveland came of a line of five generations of clergymen. His father was Rev. Richard Forley Cleveland, a Presbyterian minister. Born in a manse, he was reared in a religious atmosphere, but the home was broken up by the early death of its mainstay. However, the boy's mother inspired him to make his own way, an uncle aided him to study law, and by various shifts he achieved his first success—election as assistant district attorney of Erie county, N. Y. His path to the White House led through Buffalo, where he was mayor, and Albany, where he was governor. At his first inauguration a Bible given him by his mother in his boyhood was used.

Glass Windows Treasured

When Henry III presented his son, Edward I, upon his return from Spain with his bride, a house which had glazed windows, all England spoke of it as a wonderful gift. Even later in the reign of Elizabeth glass windows were considered treasures. It is said that the duke of Northumberland, about to leave his estate, was warned by his caretaker to have the windows of the house removed and stored in safekeeping until his return, so they would not be taken away as loot by robbers.

Several dead song birds, shot by small boys with twenty-two rifle, have been found around the outskirts of the city lately. Why anyone should want to shoot a song bird is hard to explain: dead ones are of absolutely no value, and alive they do a great deal of good in keeping down insects pests besides adding to the pleasure of many people.

Boys with air rifles may be more thoughtless than deliberately cruel when they shoot nesting birds, but an effort should be made to teach them in one manner or another the difference between sportsmanship and mere killing for sport. The Boy Scouts are doing good work along that line, but they reach only a limited number.

After all the talk we have heard about the youth of the country being the hope of the future, it is rather discouraging to see what the youth of Germany has done during the past few months under the Hitler regime. The Nazi movement was largely engineered by youthful "brown shirts:" young men hardened by fifteen years of defeat and dispair, until even the brown shirt that Hitler offered became something desirable.

During the past two months thousands of books have been burned in Germany by young men too intolerant to read them: Jews and Socialists have been whipped into conformity; the great gains of freedom of thought and speech that men have fought and died for trampled upon, and every decent human feeling invaded by young fanatics mad with power.

Viewing the scene in all parts of the world, there are indications of dark days ahead for what has been called the greatest safeguard of human welfare: the mind free to express its honest convictions regardless of fear or favor.

We are perhaps entering on an era of the same intolerance in economic and political affairs as was true of religion a few hundred years ago. In the early history of the American colonies almost every sect had its individual settlement and fought or banished those who did not conform to its beliefs. Today we see the Fascist, the individualist, socialist or communist carrying a chip on his shoulder for his particular belief and seeking to put down even discussion by force.

There is a way out, but it may be expecting too much of the human race to hope for such a course af action. The safe and reasonable approach to questions of public policy is by the method of science. That method begins first of all with an open mind, holding no briefs for either socialism, communism or individualism, but following the facts wherever they lead with absolute mental integrity. If the facts showed that there were certain working principles about communism adaptable to our condition, they should be taken over, such as has already been done to a limited extent in this country in the integration of industry. On the other hand, if there were certain values in individualism that should be preserved if possible, an attempt would be made to preerve them if they did not interfere with public welfare.

American farming offers an example of how the two philosophies might best be combined. Collectivized production would undoubtedly be impractical in a country with a tradition of several hundred years of family unit farming, even tho it is adapted to a country such as Russia, with an equally long tradition of communal agriculture as far as working the land is concerned.

But on the marketing side of agriculture the facts may lead to a different conclusion. Such examples as Denmark may not offer proof, but they at least show that the situation is worthy of study. In addition there are large numbers of collective marketing agencies in this country that should be studied and compared with private agencies.

No matter where the facts point to, they should be studied, compared and given out freely. Only in that way can progress be made with any sense of direction, and conciously speeded up. Despotism by any group in the country makes such a course difficult especially when it goes to the length that free discussion is frowned upon. It is hoped that the cause of ignorance does not win the first battle of the century by a world-wide movement to limit freedom of thought and speech.

Blood Money from Prisoners

Condensed from "Forced Labor in the United States"

While inhuman murders, constantly occuring on the Southern chain gangs, have made this system notoriously the most brutal type of force labor in the United States few people realize that throughout the country, several hundred thousand prisoners (not to mention boys and girls in reformatories) are likewise being cruelly exploited for profit — for the profit of private business men, of the state, and indirectly of politicians.

The commodities these prisoners make are being sold in the general market, both at home and abroad, furnishing cut-throat competition with "free" labor in a time of economic crisis when 16,000,000 "free" workers are jobless. The conditions under which the goods are produced are horrible: we find women hung up on pegs like hams of meat; men confined in the stocks, in dungeons, in disease-infested holes on bread and water; men whipped, shot or kicked to death. These tortures are administered for not doing enough work. Many of the prisoners thus victimized and murdered are guilty of "crimes" of hunger and unemployment; others are victims af the third degree and the frameup; still others are imprisoned for labor activities.

Many children are doing long sentences at hard labor in state institutions. Julian Leovitt, a well-known student of the prison labor problem, some years ago reported that in the Grendale House of Reform in Kentucky, 200 children under 15 were leased out at 3 cents an hour to the Kentucky Furniture Co. A Tennessee legislative investigating committee in 1931 found that children from boys' and girls' reformatories were contracted out to private establishments. Salant and Salant Manufactoring Co., shirt makers af New York, were using most of the prisoners in the State Agricultural and Training School for Boys at Nashville.

Cotton raised on the Kilby prison form, Alabama is ginned, woven, and made into shirts by prisoners for the Reliance Mfg. Co. of Chicago. The National Federation of Women's Clubs estimated in 1926 that 41% of all work shirts and 35% of all work pants were convict-made. A single prison contracting firm in 1923 produced in its 17 prison factories about 16,000,000 shirts. According to one of the foremost authorities on the subject, A. F. Allison, of the International Association of Garment Manufactnrers, prison compteition in the working-clothing line has grown steadily since 1923.

Commodities produced in federal and state institutions in 1930 had an estimated market value of $100,000,000. But there are also city and county jails. According to Dr. Hastings H. Hart, prison authority, 1,600,000 prisoners were committed to these institutions from January to June, 1930. Jobs done by such prisoners include not only road and bridge work but manufacturing, especially of furniture and clothing. In Massachusetts, for instance, eight of the local jails and houses of correction work their convicts in chair, shoe, and shirt making. Although there has never been any estimate af the total value of work done and goods produced by inmates of these city and county institutions, it must amount to tens of millions of dollars.

Many ingenious devices have been developed for getting rid of this enormous volume of prison-made goods. It is a matter of record that prisons have supplied large mail-order houses, chain stores and department stores with great volumes of prison-made shoes, stoves, brooms, furniture, house-dresses, overalls and aprons which have been sold under false labels. In 1927, the Federal Trade Commission was forced to investigate practices of this sort. One case reported was that of the Commonwealth Mfg. Co. of Chicago. This company's only facilities for "manufacturing" were a 15 x 20 foot office and a single desk. Yet it advertised far and wide the prison-made shoes, clothing and binder twine that it claimed to have manufactured.

The most cnnning of the tricks, however, is that of using patriotic labels, such as "George Washington Stove" and "Liberty Stove," both of which are made in the Nashville penitentiary. Similarly, convict-made brands of work clothes are called the "Uncle Sam," the American Eagle, the "Big Yank," the "Army," etc.

Convict-made goods are produced under several different systems. Under the "contract" system, a private firm contracts for the use of a certain number af convicts. The contractor then sets up machinery in the prison, provides raw material and sets his slaves to manufacturing some commodity. Julian Leavitt some years ago described a contract in the New Haven County Jail: "For the sum of 8 cents a day the New England Chair Co. has been getting the labor of an able-bodied man togather with food, clothing and shelter for the man; together with n factory building in which the man might work; together with heat, light and power and armed guards to see that the man works." In 1923, prisons in 19 statea used some form of contracts, and goods valued at $30,000,000 were pronuced and sold. There has been little change in the use of this systam since then.

The "Lease" system has perbaps the most sordid record of all. Under it the convict is hired out entirely in the custody of the contractor, who has complete authority to guard, feed, discipline and exploit him as he sees fit. Conditions under this sytem have been more horribls than under any other penal system in the modern world. penal system in the modern world. In Spite of the fact that the lease is illegal in several states it is legal for certain types of convicts in North Carolina, South Carolina, Arkansas, Louisiana, Florida and Kentucky. Florida legislated against the lease system — for almost all of its prisoners — in 1923, following the whipping to death of a young boy on a chain gang. Alabama abolished the lease in 1928 following the death of a convict who was delibertely scalded to death in a laundry vat — because he could not perform the amount of work required!

After an extensive prison-labor survey in 1925, Kate Richard O'Hare reported: "If the women convicts failed to make task, and all of them did fail more or less, they were punished with fiendish cruelty — beaten, starved, strung up by the wrists with handcuffs." A part of the Tennessee investigating committee's report in 1931 declared: "In the Nashville penitentiary women are required to work in a hosiery mill and certain tasks ara assigned to them. We found women handcuffed and hung on pegs. The inmates state that this was done for failure tn perform task."

Thus, as Howard B. Gill, superintendent of the State Prison in Norfolk, Massachusetts, recently admited: "During 150 years prison administrators in America have been more concerned with developing a profitable system than in directing it toward the individual." The "vocational" training given prisoners is often worthless Garment making, for instance, is the largest prison industry. The types of garments made in prison are practically all made on the outside by women. So a man may make shirts in prison for 20 years and yet not learn a thing that will help him earn a living when he gets out.

But if one of the most important factors determining penal methods all over the United States is the desire to make profit out of convicts, this profit motive reaches its most horrible climax in the Southern chain gang — a super-exploitation of labor from which states and private contractors profit richly. The state of Georgia alone made a profit of $3,270,000 on the operation of chain gangs in four years.

Historically speaking the chain gang has been largely an instrument with which to terrorize and exploit Negroes. During the past few years, however, the number of white prisoners on the chain gangs has grown considerably. This may be attributed largely to the economic crisis, resulting in impoverishment of white as well as Negro workers and farmers, and an increase in petty property law violations. Men toil on these gangs from 10 to 16 hours a day, according to season, crushing rock, digging ditches, building levees and roads. Brutal guards with whips and guns watch to see that the convicts work continuously.

Housing conditions are the worst imaginable. One form af house is a cage-like cell, mounted on wheels so that it can be moved as the camp follows the jobs. It is about 13 feet long, 8feet high and 7 feet wide, and looks more like a cage for fericous animals than anything else in the world. Into this "home" about 20 men during the hot summer nights are packed like sardines. A long chain is run through the short chains riveted around the prisoners' legs. Thus every man is fastened to every other man, and can't get out even to go to the toilet — a hole in the floor of the cage — without wakeing all men on the chain. In everal cases of fire men have been burned to death before they could be unlocked from the long chain!

Food for the chain gang victims is usually worse than in other types of prisons. At least it consits of corn bread, grease gravy, beans, black coffee for one meal, occasionally salt pork. One Alabama cannty recently boasted that it was cheaper to feed its convicts than its mules — it costs 55 cents a day for a mule and only 14½ cent for a convict!

The men in charge of the gang are brutal and ignorant. Ofte white convicts are made trusties and used to guard other convicts, especially Negroes. Newcomers are encouraged to escape by trusties who hope to get a reward or a pardon for recapturing or shooting them. In Mississippi trusty-guards shot so many prisonera "trying to escape" that the rewards had to be stopped.

The most nortorious trusty-guard was Cecil Houston, an Alabama convict serving a life term for murder. An investigation in that state in 1926 revealed that this killer, togather with others like him, was used to enforce the speed-up by the state and by private companies which had leased the prisoners. It was proved that Houston killed several fellow prisoners and had broken both arms of at least seven others. Houston was given a special bonus for all coal produced, and by driving the men he was able to support his family in style on the outside.

The Handbook af American Prisons and Reformatories for 1929 stated of Mississippi: "The prison farms . . . appear to be operated almost exclusively for financial profits." But there is another group, aside from states and business men, which profits from convict labor. Sheriffs, judges, clerks and others serve as employment agents to keep the gangs well stocked with workers. Under the fee system, officials are paid n commission on the number of convictions they secure. Several sheriffs in Mississippi in 1930 earned over $20,000 each. The average for 82 counties was only slightly less than $6,000. The same individuals in civil life would probably earn $100 a month if they were so fortunate as to find a job.

Far tao long, now, huge profits have been made out of convict forced labor. Convicts should work, yes; but for their own salvation primarily and not to make money for anyone else. The state must cease exploiting its prison inmate for profit and it must cease conniving with private business men to exploit them. The present profit-making attitude is responsible for the failure of the many campaigns in the past to end chain-gang conditions. Such campaigns no matter what the motive, will continue to fail until prison profit is abolished.

Animals 500,000,000 Years Ago

A strange fossil of a hitherto unknown primitive creature that perished possibly 500,000,000 years ago has been described by the Smithsonian Institution. There are strong indications that it is the earliest example whose form has been preserved in the rocks of that great order of animals which includes the corals, jellyfishes, and sea anemones, as well as such weird sea creatures as the Portuguese man-of-war. Thus another of the tangled lines of evolution is found extending back to the very horizon of life on earth—the Lower Cambrian geological period, in whose rocks are found the first fossil imprints which definitely can be identified as animals. This order is that of the Coelenterata, described by zoologists as the third most primitive division of the animal kingdom. Below them are only the single-celled Protozoa and those crudely organized colonists of cells, the sponges.—Boston Globe.

Moratorinm is Constitutional

The Minnesota Supreme Court has held the mortgage moratorium law to be constitutional; ruling that the Legislature, when it deems that an emergency exists, has the authority to abrogate the rights of contract. Justice Stone was the only member of the court to dissent.

Justice Stone holds that the law is "unconstitutional and unwise" and by his opinion places himself definitely with the defenders of the status Quo. He refuses to recognize the fact that the power of government is vested in the people and that they hava the right to change any law, or any recognized right under the law, when the conditions are such that a hardship will be worked on large portions of the population should the existing laws be maintained.

Under this ruling, the Legislature as the chosen representatives of the people would be powerless to act in any emergency, - - be it famine, pestilence or war, if such act in any way conflict with a rigid and strict interpretation of the constitution, unless they first delay the relief contemplated until the people can speak by a direct vote on an amendment to the constitution.

It seems to me that his decision stamps him as the worst kind of a revolutionist, for it would allow the people who suffer under unjust conditions but one alternate - that of seeking relief by armed force.

Call Out The Militia

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes goes the "radicals" and communists one better, addressing the gradusting class of the Washington and Jefferson college at Washington, he said, "the Elders who are now in control of America's political, financial and industrial affairs are forced to confess that they have made a mess of things. All that we asked from government yesterday was negation. So long as the powerful could exploit his brother, we wanted less government in business. We wanted the law of the jungle, where the strong can despoil the weak. We wanted to be let alone to pursue our selfish, acquisitive, lawless Godless ways.

"Today, it is a different story. The arrogant and ruthless have been caught helpless in the very machines they erected. Rugged individualists are running to the government at Washington, begging for more government in business to enable them to save something out of the wreckage that they so wantonly brought about."

Trying to Please Everybody

I spent two hours listening to the county board of commissioners proceedings on Monday and while I was there several requests for road construction were heard. In spite of the fact that there is no funds with which to build any more roads than the contracts already let this year, the board was very amiable and fixed all the delegations out with their coveted bit. Of course they made it plain that they would not be built until next year, but during my short stay, they promised out some over 12 miles of road.

The year still has six months to go so that if they promise during the balance of the year at the same rate as they did Monday they will need more county to put the roads in.

This method of road allottment is going to produce a large crop of disappointed people a year from now. The booard should order an asortment of bullet-proof vests as a matter of self-preservation.

Seriously, it seems to me that the board should adopt some method of road allottment that would be based on the amount of money available, and place the roads to be built with due regard for the greatest good for the greatest number. The present method is slovenly and inefficient to say the least. There should be no reason for promising every delegation that comes in with a request that they will get their road. I have heard of many that have been disappointed, but none that were not promised. There is a splendid opportunity at this time for the board to put the county road construction on a sensible basis if they will only awaken to the fact that it is just as easy to say, "your request will be considered in next year's program" as to say "yep you can have it."

Inasmuch as no more road can be built this year, every request should be laid on the table to be acted on when next year's program of road construction is formulated; which should only be after the board can ascertain with some degree of accuracy what funds will be available for road construction.

The allotment is based on the average annual wheat production of the county for the last five years, 1928 to 1932. The average production for the five years 1928 - 32, in this county was 93,330 bushels.

The allotment in bushels is arrived at by reducing by 20% the average annual production. The 20% is the proposed cut in the total wheat production for the entire United States, in which each grower is asked to cooperate by reducing his acreage 20%. It is expected that with such a reduction the supply will be adequate to take care of domestic needs on the one hand, and of possible export demand on the other hand, and at the same time help to dispose of the present excess surplus.

Compensatory payments, however are to be made only on that part of the crop which is domestically consumed; that is, consumed as human food in the United States. The normal domestic consumption is 50 to 60% of the normal prouction. The money allotment, on the basis of 50% of normal production for domestic consumption, therefore, is arrived at by multiplying one-half of the bushels allotment by 30 cents, the amount to be added to the price per bushel in order to bring the price of wheat to a parity in buying power with the price of wheat in the years 1909 - 14, before the war. The expense of administrating the affairs in each county will be deducted from the allotment that is finally made by the United States department of agriculture.

Two-thirds of the compensatory payments on the 1933 crop will be paid late in September or early in October and the remainder one-third next spring when the farmers have shown the required reduction in their 1934 wheat acreage seedings.

To obtain the compensatory payments, the wheat growers of the county are expected to form a voluntary wheat production control association made up of those who sign contracts with the agricultural adjustment administration to reduce their acreage. The steps in the forming of such an association will be explained by the county agricultural agent in each county having such an agent, or by agricultural adjustment agents in counties not having a county agent. Conferences are being held with such agents at University Farm, St. Paul, this week, to acquaint them with the details of the program.

First Typewriter Was Invented by a Printer

Many years ago a clever printer from Milwaukee, with a flair for invention, was about to emancipate American womanhood. He didn't know it. He thought he was simply producing a typewriter, or as he called it, "a writing machine." His name was Christopher Lathem Sholes. In March, 1873, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, he and his backer, James Densmore, were in Ilion, N. Y., where the Remington Arms company was building the first typewriter in its gunshop.

Feminists may find something symbolic in the fact that the typewriter was born at Ilion, not 100 miles from Seneca Falls, where in 1848 Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Stanton Cady started the American suffrage movement.

The typewriter and the telephone both made their first real bid for public recognition at the Philadelphia Centennial exposition. Both found the public rather languid. But it was not many years before the office girl and the hello girl were marching along en masse to take their place in the commercial life of the nation.

The superior dexterity of women gave them an early chance at the typewriter. Office men with Dundreary whiskers and fancy waistcoats growled at the feminine invasion. But the girls did better work on the new contraption.

Type of Alder Towers Eighty Feet in Height

The alder, commonly thought of as a small tree, almost shrublike in its appearance, belongs to a family which finds among its members one giant species which towers 80 feet in the air. The tall type is the Oregon or red alder, which is found along the Pacific coast.

Its usual habitat is along the banks of streams, on the sides of canyons and far up the mountains beyond even the spruces. The reddish, brown wood of the species is often used in the manufacture of furniture.

The alder which grows along the banks of rivers and brooks is valuable in keeping the banks from crumbling through the wash of rain and the constant sweep of water at the trunks.

There is no outstanding commercial use of the alder, although it does make its way into realms of usefulness. Branches of the tree make the finest charcoal for manufacture of gunpowder while its bark yields a valuable dye. The wood itself is used in manufacturing watering troughs, pumps, piles and other wooden articles which are subjected to constant exposure to water.—Boston Herald.

Cats Are Independent

"The cat is a much deeper animal than many people realize. They may not seem as intelligent to the lay observer as the dog, but if you had studied thousands of them closely, as I have," says an authority in the Boston Herald, "you would reach the conclusion not only that they are smart but that they are so smart that they are way ahead of you most of the time. Personally they fascinate me. The cat, you know, is one of the most stubborn animals living, and extremely independent. They will starve before they will change their habits. This is particularly true of pet cats. They will eat only certain things and many times they insist on having their food out of the same dish."

Wrote "Home, Sweet Home"

Is it not odd that a man who never had a home and died in a foreign land should have written the well-beloved lines of "Home, Sweet Home"? Or was it a natural expression of an innate longing for something fine never known by experience? John Howard Payne was born in New York in 1792, and was the author of several plays, among them "Brutus," "Charles II" and "Clari, the Maid of Milan," first sung at the Covent Garden theater, London, in 1823. In the last named play occurred the famous song. He was sent to Tunis as American consul in 1841, and died there in 1852. The song was adapted to a Sicilian tune written by Sir Henry Bishop, composer of many operas.—Indianapolis News.

Dog Next to Man

"The intelligence of the dog," says Albert Payson Terhune, authority on dogs, "is so uncanny at certain times that it takes precedence over anything possessed by man. Dogs feel states of mind, attitudes, emotions which must be exhibited in clumsy words to men. Long, long ago, their first ancestors made their compact of friendship and affection with men. That friendship has grown into an intelligent bond as well as an emotional one. And the brains of the dogs have commingled with the brains of man. In many instances, the dog's brains have not been inferior."

Indians Entitled to Vote

Since 1924, when the Indian Civilization Act was passed by congress, all native-born Indians of this country have been United States citizens and as such entitled to vote after complying with the voting laws of their states. Before that time, those Indians living in tribal relations on the various reservations, were not citizens. They have just the same privileges with regard to the franchise as white and negro citizens, though, of course, the Indians on the reservations are under restriction with regard to moving off the boundaries of the reservations.

Dive for Amber

Amber, once one of the wonders of the early scientists because of its development of electricity through friction, is found largely along the shores of the Black sea, although some small quantities are also found along the shores of Maryland, New Jersey and Massachusetts. It is found clinging to seaweed which is brought up from the bottom either by divers or dredges which toss the seaweed to the shore where women and children pick it over in search for the amber which has a relatively high value.

Pageant at Itaska State Park Will be Given Next Sunday

Enacted by a cast of more than 500 players, including a band of 200 Indians from the Cass and Red Lake reservations. Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee Pageanta started the summer's run with the premier performance Sunday at 1 p. m. at Itasca state park.

Augmenting the list of Minnesota residents who have roles this year are 200 members of the civilian conservation corps located in a camp just outside Itasca park, who, decked in uniforms of Indian war days, constitute the pioneer troopers who helped pave the way for the civilization of Minnesota. Members of the corps taking part in the pageant were from Wichita, Topeka and neighboring Kansas communities.

The troops, dressed in the earliest American army uniforms, represented the soldiers who came under Lieutenant Zebulon Pike into the little known parts of the upper Mississippi river region following its addition to the Minnesota domain by the Louisiana Purchase in 1803. The colorful presentation of Minnesota history began with a depiction of the primitive life of the redman and the coming of the first white men into the land of sky-tinted water, Duluth, Groseilliers, Radisson, Marquette and Father Hennepin, according to Earle A. Barker, president, Northwestern Minnesota Historical association, which in cooperation with the forestry division of the state conservation department, staged the pageants.

Closing scene of the tableaux series is the great Sioux outbreak of 1862, when more white persons met death at Indian hands than in any similar occurence on this continent, ending in a two-year war which forever crushed the Sioux in Minnesota.

The pageant grounds immediately adjoin the Mississippi river headwaters on Lake Itasca, where hundreds of trees and a background of blue water serve as natural scenery in the ampitheater. Enchancing the story of the founding of the first military post in the state, a replica of the log stockade which was the first Fort Snelling has been erected.

In addition to the civilian conservation corps members and Indians, players both men and women, recruited from the 10 communities, members of the historical society group. Those represented are Park Rapids, Bemidji, Cass Lake, Brainard, Clearbrook, Detroit Lakes, Red Lake Falls, Wadena, Walker and Thief River Falls.

Ah Je Dum O, Chippewa Indian chieftain who recently travelled to Chicago for dedication of the Minnesoto exhibit at the Century of Progress Exposition, will be one of the leading figures in the Indian portion of the pageant, Mr. Barker reported.

The pageant will be repeated July 16 and 30, August 13 and 27, and September 4. There is no admission charge.

Meaning of "Hinterland"

"Hinterland" means "back territory." The term came into general use at the time of the partition of East Africa between Germany and England in 1890. The doctrine of the hinterland is based on the claim of German diplomats that when a power takes possession of a strip of seacoast its right extends inland indefinitely or until its territory reaches the recognized boundary of some other country.

County Board Votes Tubercular Test as Offered by New Law

At the meeting of the county board Tuesday it was decided to accept the offer of the state to make a tubereulosis test of Pennington county. Due to the low price of cattle tbe state has accumulated a sum of money for this work, and at the last session of the Legislature a request was made that this money be expended on an area test in the few remaining counties not having been accredited.

It was argued that many of the larger cities now have ordinances against the sale of butter from cattle that are not accredited, and consequently butter from this county had to be kept separate in certain cooperative shipments.

The maximum payment for a condemned animal is $53 on grade animals and $70 on purebreds. The state pays one-third, the federal givernmen one-third and the remainder comes from the sale of the animal.

Consumers to Make Up Code at Confab In Cities August 5,6

A platform of consum'ers demands to be submitted to General Hugh B. Johnson, head of the National Industrial Recovery board, will be drafted at the Continental Congress of Workers and Farmers to be held in Minneapolis, August 5 and 6. The meeting is one of a group being held simnltaneously throughout the United States to fuse liberal minorities into a program of sound and fundamental social change.

According to Robert Miller, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, the platform is necessary to keep prices of consumption goods within the limits of the consumers' pocketbooks.

"President Roosevelt's recovery bill is one of the first official step toward a more sana and balanced economic state," he said, "but all its good will be undone if consumers do not organize nad vigilantly watch the selfish members of big business who might easily wreck tbe plan."

Keep them in the land of Enchanting Good Health with

MILK

"The most nearly perfect food for all ages," that's how scientists label milk. How wise Nature is to supply us with such a complete food, for man could never invent a substitute for milk. Milk is also the cheapest food you can buy.

In supplying milk for your family assure each child a quart daily, of course, for that's the amount necessary for best growth and health. Milk is just as important in the daily diet of grown-ups - they need at least a pint, preferably a quart, each day for strength, energy and youthful vigor.

If milk is the beverage for each meal and used generously in cooking, your whole family, from the baby to "grand-dad" will receive the necessary amount.

THIEF RIVER FALLS FORUM

GROUP IS FORMED TO GET RIVER AID

The first move in the direction of a permanent Red Lake River Development association, was made at a joint meeting this noon of representatives from Crookston, Grand Forks, East Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls.

The purpose of the organization, is to obtain Federal aid for the development of the Red Lake River in accordance with the provisions of the federal public works act. The project consists in the dredging of the river, perhaps from Highlanding or Neptune to the outlet at Red Lake, greatly increasing the flow of water. The Federal government would give direct finance to the entire project, with no part of the loan to be returned.

Morris Bye, chairman of the Civic and Commerce association committee on that project, was elected temporary president, Martin O'Brian of Crookston, vice-president; Paul Lundgren, secretary; and E. L. Lium of Grand Forks, treasurer.

The board of directors of the permanent organization will be composed of three members from each of the communities, namely, Grand Forks East Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and this city. The mayor of each city will be ex-officio member of the board and will appoint the two members that are to serve with him.

At a meeting slated for Monday July 31, at 8 p.m., in the Commercial club rooms in Crookston, the board of directors will elect a permanent set of officers, on approval of the articles and by-laws of the organization which are being drafted by a committee composed of H. O. Chommie of this city, Leonard Peterson of Crookston E. L. Lium of Grand Forks, and Paul Lundgren, acting as ex-officio member.

Mr. Lundgren, as secretary, was instructed to invite E. V. Willard, acting Commissioner of Conservation, and Dr. A. J. Chestly, of the State Board of Health, to be present at this meeting.

Local People Should Beware of Fish Peddlers Who Sell Tullibees That Harbor Tape Worms

It is reported that fish peddlers from the Lake of the Woods, are selling tullibees, a form of white fish, to the farmers of this community.

The tullibee is not the healthiest fish on the market, and the sale of it is forbidden by the pure food laws. It is susceptible to "trianenophorae", a yellow tape worm that may easily be found by cutting off the head.

If you should happen to take a trip to Lake of the Woods, ask any fisherman to show you what the tullibee looks like and he can also rip the fish open and display the mass of small yellow worms.

An examiner is stationed along the border to look over the fish boxes as they are unloaded, but several carloads have reached eastern markets.

It is easy for any fish peddler to sell the outlaw tullibee to unsuspecting farmers who should be on their guard, if once warned.

There is no market for the tullibee in the Twin Cities, it is stated by C. W. Harison, in charge of the federal pure food and drug laboratory in Minneapolis. He advises that fishermen, unless they are skilled with a urgical knife, should toss the tullibees back into the water.

Ten Free Trips to State Fair To be Given Club Members

Approximately ten free trips to the Minnesota State Fair at St. Paul, will be awarded as special prizes at the Pennington coulty fair, to 4-H club members, it was anounced this week by County Agent R. M. Douglass.

The ten prizes will be allotted to the various divisions as follows: two for the dairy calf exhibits, one each for the pig, sheep and clothing divisions, and probably one for the best dairy demonstration.

Trips to the Farm Boys' camp at the state fair will also be awarded to two boys who havn't had trips in previous years, for their activity in the general 4-H club activities.

Individual 4-H clubs will have four booths in the agricultural building, where the clothing, sewing, bread-baking, canning and other exhibits will be displayed.

The number of 4-H members exhibiting work is expected to exceed last years total of 250.

Bread-baking Contest of 4-H Club to be Held Here July 25

All girls enrolled in the 4-H bread-baking contest for the Pennington county fair, should be at the local high school next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, when the contest will be held in the domestic science rooms.

At the same time, all entries for the sewing exhibits are to be left at the county agent's office or at the high-school. The winner of the sewing contest will be picked for the state fair trip, and all other entries will be held over for judging at the county fair.

Mr. Douglas also announces the dates of three township 4-H club picnics and tours. On July 24th the Rocksbury club will hold its picnic after a tour to some of the member's farms where they will view live-stock.

The members of the Hazel club will gather on the same day and the Hickory group will picnic on July 22.

Service Men Should Wait For a Definite Program of Appeal

Nothing, up to the present time, has been definitely decided by the veterans' bureau in regard to the appeal on disallowed and reduced claims for compensation, by service men, it was announced this week by Oscar Paulson who is in charge of service cases in this city and county.

The re-habilitation committee of the American Legion recommends that the service men do not make their claims until such a time as the veterans' bureau outlines a definite program for appeal, said Mr. Paulson, because, when once opened, and disallowed, there is no opportunity to re-open them.

Announcement will be made of the time when blanks will be furnished by Mr. Paulson for the appealing of cases.

LOWER AUTO TAX CUTS ROAD WORK

Requests for more than $35,000,000 of immediate road improvements have been received by the State Highway department from cities, counties and other local groups thruout the state which are seeking to share in the $10,000,000 of Federal money allotted to Minnesota for highway work.

"It can be easily seen from this that the $10,000,000 is not going to meet all demands," said N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner. "Most of the improvements being urged on the department are practical and highly desirable, but much more money than is now available will be required to finance the work.

"In 1932 more than $25,000,000 was spent for construction by the Highway Department, and in 1931 nearly $24,000,000, so that the $10,000,000 allows only a comparatively small program. Owing to reduced motor vehicle taxes, the state has no funds to add to the Federal grant, as it would have had otherwise.

"The Highway Department is following Federal regulations in apportioning the $10,000,000 through the state.

Mr. Meagher, formerly shoe salesman at Montgomery Ward's, now of Minot, N. D., visited friends in this city on Monday, while enroute to Minneapolis where he will visit relatives for a few days.

Library to Attempt to Give Book Service to Rural Folk In Spite of County Aid Cut

H. A. Pratt will continue as president of the library board for the ensuing year, following the election held Tuesday, July 11, with Mrs. B. O. Norby voted to the vice-presidency to succeed Theo. Thronson, and Mrs. Gaston Ward elected Secretary to succeed Mrs. Perl Mabey.

Because of the recent cut in the county appropriation, Pennington no longer has an officially recognized county library. It has had the distinction of being the newest county library in Minnesota and one of the most active. Word has just been received that in a revised list recently completed by the American Library association, it has been necessary to drop it from the records.

In spite of this situation the library board wishes it known that for the remainder of this year every effort will be made to continue giving as much service as possible thruout the county and in the rural schools.

"It is interesting to note," says Mrs. Hazel Halgrim, local librarian, "that during the past year, no library books have been ordered for any one-room school in the county, excepting those handled by the Carnegie public library for the 23 districts having contracts.

She states that any districts wishing to sign contracts for book service for the year will do well to give this matter early attention. It is assumed that those having the service last year will continue as members unless notification during the summer is given to the contrary.

KNITTING MILL HERE SUGGESTED

The establishment of a knitting factory in the Citizens' Bank building was suggested to members of the depositors committee of the Citizens' bank, by J. F. Landry, representative of the real estate sales division of the state banking department, at a meeting in the office of W. N. Morell, deputy examiner last Saturday night.

Stating that he has no self interest whatsoever, and only that he wishes to sell the bank building for the depositors, Mr. Landry favored a sale of the building if a fair price can be secured, and suggested a knitting factory as a means of accomplishing not only the sale of the building, but also the establishment of an industry for Thief River Falls. He believes that several hundred people would eventually be employed and that the industry would aid the farmers of the surrounding territory, who shipped over 400,000 pounds of wool thru the wool pool here.

Mr. Landry hopes to assist in securing some one to atart such a factory, if the business men of the city will "warm up" to the idea. He stated that the Federal government might be induced to allow the monies that are available thru the Reconstruction Finance corporation, for loans to cities where employment may be created. Mr. Landry stated that 30 per cent of such a loan would be donated by the federal government.

He also mentioned a rumor to the effect that a "certain mail order firm might be interested in taking over this building on a lucrative leasehold", and he suggested that a group of men could form a holding association and take over the building from the banking department.

Mr. Landry left for St. Paul this week and will return soon with further information. He states that he may ask Mayor Tungseth and the city council to lend their aid to the idea.

The members of the depositors' Committee are as follows: Nathan K. Harris, chairman, Albert Engen, W. H. Mulry, E. Hermanson, Ed. Odelin, and W. M. Morell, deputy examiner.

Vote of People Asked On Diesel Controversy By Civic and Commerce

The recommendation of the board of directors of the Civic and Commerce association, to oppoce the city council's resolution to purchase a new 1,000 horsepower Diesel engine, was upheld by the group as a whole at a meeting last Thursday noon.

The association also stated in their resolution that the issue should be put to a public vote before any further action is taken in the purchase.

In regard to the length of time of the Pennington county fair trade tour, the Civic and Commerce members divided into two camps, the liberals and the conservatives, according to Secretary Paul Lundgren. The liberals stood fast for a two-day tour, and the conservatives advocated only one day. The issue was submitted to a vote and the conservatives won ont.

Acting on the recommendation of the road committee, the group went on record favoring the construction of a bridge across the Red Lake River to be located at the end of Third street connecting with Johnson street on the east side.

Indian Outbreak of '62 to be Re-enacted At Itasca Park Diamond Jubilee Pageant

Eyewitnesses of the great Sioux Indian outbreak of 1862 and their descendants now resident in Minnesota who relate the most colorful authetic incidents in connection with the most sanguino Indian uprising on the North American continent are to be guests at a reenactment of the incident which is one of the episodes in Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee pageants being staged this summer at Itasca state park.

Open to young and old in every corner of the state, the contest will begin Monday, July 17, and close Monday, August 28th, with three persons submitting the best authenticated pioneer stories of incidents of the outbreak guests at the final showing of the pageant Sunday, September 4th. The winners will be guests for three days at Douglas Lodge in Itasca park and be transported to the park from points nearest their homes served by Northland busses.

The outbreak itself, starting from the comparatively trivial incident of the pillaging of a hen's nest by four Sioux braves, cost the lives of some 500 persons according to Willoughby M. Babcock, curator, Minneota Historical Society, who compiled the basic material around which this phase of te pageant is built. The nest was near the cabin of Robinson Jones at Acton in Meeker county. One of the braves protested the seizure of the white man's property, whereupon his courage was questioned by the other three Indians in the party.

To prove his bravery, the Indian declared his willingness to approach the cobin and kill the white owner. The Jones family seeing the audacious appreach, fled to the cabin of their son-in-law, Howard Baker. There the Indians pursued, shooting down Baker Jones and three others, two of them women. The slayers then stole a team and drove directly to Chief Snakopee's camp and reported what they had done. Shakopee took them immediately to Chief Little Crow.

The shooting occured the afternoon of August 17, 1862. On that and the following night the Indians held a council of war, which culminated in plans for an attack on the Redwood agency the morning of the 19th as the Indians were particularly bitter against the traders whose posts were grouped thereabouts.

In the wild orgy of the first morning's attack, white men were shot down without warning. Coincidentally bands of Indians set forth to attack New Ulm and Fort Ridgely. Lightly garrisoned, these posts contributed many victims to the Indians' vicious onslaught. When word of the outbreak reached Governor Ramsey in St. Paul he hurried to General Sibley, who promptly assembled a force of recruits from Civil War volunteers in training at Fort Snelling to suppress the Indians.

After a decisive battle near Wood lake September 26th, most of the Indians fled into North Dakota, making sporadic raids against the Minnesota border during the ensuing three years. While on such a raid July 3, 1863, Little Crow himself was killed. Two other leaders, Little Six and Medicine Bottle who had escaped into Canada, and were kidnapped by Americans with English assistance and brought to Fort Snelling where, after military trial, they were hanged November 11, 1865.

Between September 28 and November 3, 1862, 392 Indians were tried on charges growing out of the uprising and the verdict in 303 cases was hanging. President Lincoln's revision of this list, however, saved all but 40 of these from the death penalty. One of these later received a commutation of sentence, a second died and the final chapter of the main outbreak was written at Mankato December 26, 1862 when 38 Sioux were hanged.

In addition to the episode of the outbreak, the pageant depicts many of the highlights of Minnesota history, starting with the pioneer life of the first years of the 19th century. It includes scenes showing the coming of Lieut. Zebulon Pike, fouding of Fort Snelling, Minesota being organized as a territory in 1849 and her admission to the Union in 1858.

Judges in the contest for additional facts concerning the outbreak in addition to Mr. Babcock will be Geo. H. Bradley, director, Minnesota Tourist Bureau, and Earle A. Barker, president, Northwestern Minnesota Historical association, head of the committee representing 10 northern Minnesota communities cooperating with the state department of conservation in staging the pageant.

Entries should be limited to 1,000 words, written on one side of the paper and mailed or brought to the Minnesota Tourist Bureau, room 115 State Capitol, not later than August 28. Martin E. Dunn, Lodge operator, and J. L. Williams traffic manager of the Northland Bus Co., assisted in making plans for the contest.

The pageant which was given its second performance Sunday, July 16, on the grounds at the source of the Mississippi river will be repeated July 30th, August 13ht, and September 4th.

CARBON BISULPHIDE WILL ELIMINATE THE LAWN ANTS

Ants that build mounds or nests in lawns or elsewhere may be eliminated by the use of carbon bisulphide, says a circular prepared by A. G. Ruggles, state entomologist, and issued by the extention division, University Farm, St. Paul. The bulletin says to make several deep holes in ant mounds, placing the holes about 6 inches apart, and then into each hole to pour a quarter of a cup of carbon bisulphide. After pouring the stuff into the holes the mound should be covered with a wet sack or rug to keep fumes in. This should be left on for 10 or 12 hours. It should be remembered, tho, that carbon bisulphide is inflamable.

Copies of the circular, which deals with various methods of ant control, may be had free by applying to the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul.

THE FRENCH WAY

Americans as a rule regard themselves as a far more moral people than the French, yet it Frenchmen had gambled on the necessities of life to the extent that we have done in this country most of our "best people" would be in joil. The French consider it decidedly immoral for anyone who happens to have the money to enrich himself by gambling on the price of wheat when he doesn't turn a hand to produce it. What they would do about it in times like these, when millions are tightening up their belts and waiting for a square meal, would probably not make pleasant newspaper reading.

Yet, we cannot blame the people who take odvantage of such opportunities: most of us, given the same opportunity would do the same thing. It is only another instance where our institutions corrupt us, and allow a few who have the money to make fortunes at the expense of many who are barely able to buy bread. It is another argument against the policy of every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost, revered by all successful grabbers as "rugged individualism."

The profit motive may have its place in building up initiative, and if limited to the actual producers, there is something to be said for it. But there has grown up along with the profit system a large class of parasites, who do nothing towards the betterment of society, yet reap the largest rewards. If the man who toiled in the wheat fields received the benefit of every rise in the grain prices, or the man who made railroading his life work received the dividends that go to watered stock, there would be enough justice in a system of production for profit to make it defensible. But to put a premium on the least useful functions of society is courting ruin.

The New Importance of Politics

Politics are not in very good standing among may people, ad there is undoubtedly some justification for the attitude. Too many political campaigns are either mudslinging and personal, or are sham battles between the pot and the kettle, each trying to make the one blacker than the other, when in fact there is very little difference.

One result of the "New Deal" however, will be the necessity for each of us to take a more active interest in politics. In the days when the big issues were high or low tariffs and Republican or Democratic postmasters, politics had very little to do with our daily lives. But now government tells us how long we shall work, how much wa shall receive for our wheat or our labor, and a hundred other things that were never interfered with before, politics have become of vital importance to all of us.

With the political stakes so much higher, the fight will naturally become more intense. Those who hava been obliged to forego huge profits and forced to pay a living wage will rebel if they can, and elect men who think along their own lines. Since the only thing that the world respects is power they will have their way uless other classes take active interest in politics. In that sense the new deal offers both a threat and an opportunity: a threat to our dearest liberties if it becomes an unbalanced dictatorship for the benefit of the few; and an opportunity for each of us to raise our standard of living to heights never before reached, it we use to the fullest the new powers that government gives us.

What will be the outcome of the new deal one can only guess, but to anyone who has been observing the struggle to bring industries into line, this much seems fairly well indicated. they will not give a single inch unless they are forced to; they will make the spread between producer and consumer as wide as public opinion will let them, and pay as low wages as possible. Human nature being such it is probably foolish to expect anything else.

But at the same time it indicates thot unless the producer and the average consumers, mainly the workers and farmers, get together politically and fight for their rights with intelligence and determination they are going to be left out in the cold.

The Liberal Digest

THE CRIME AGAINST YOUTH

by Rollo Walter Brown

(Condensed from the June issue of the Atlantic, by Don Snyder.)

Now that we have fallen to confessing our many grievous sins of the Twentieth century, we may sooner or later discover that the one we shall have to agonize over longest is our violation of the spirit of youth.

Little or nothing has been said of the swift developement of the entire Amarican scheme of life into a monstrous obstacle that blocks the way of youth, not merely to a specific attainment, but to any kind of enriching maturity whatsoever.

Hera is the all-inclusive, ultimate crime against youth: a nation that has adopted as a philosophy the habits of mind of pot-bellied middle age. In any society where organization has highly perfected, it is always easy enough to adopt this philosophy. The twentieth-century mania for organization imposed as a chief requirement upon the individual that he fit snugly, and make no disturbance of any kind. The natural result was a large and early crop of degenerated minds characteristic of lazy middle age.

Since they are well barricaded in organizotion, they logically became the dominant class. And since their philosophy was profitable ti them, they did not want the foundation of it disturbed.

Thru education thru economics, thru religion, they sought to add to their number--- as long as they could do so without losa of influence or profits. They squeezed into the schools and colleges and taught the glories of Samuel Insull, in truth, sime of them discovered that Jesus had been a business man himself, altho be had never risen to such heights as supporting Civic Opera in Chicago or floating loans for international match companies.

In so far as they had any beliefs about youth, they supposed that youth should dawdle along in an educational scheme vaccinated against anything dangerous to middle-age philosophies, and then, when that process was ended, fit into a corporation and earn dividends for the middle-aged until some vice president toppled over with fatty degeneration of the heart and left a swivel chair for a younger man.

In the suffocation of that philosophy we have forgotten what youth can do. If a man of thirty chances to be made the president of a college, or succeeds in publishing a distinguished book, or wins in a competition in architecture, the fact s publcly mouthed over as though it were something contrary to nature. And a man of twenty-five is treated as if be were but an infant in arms, mentally.

Anyone can remind himself that much of the significant record of tha human race has been made by men and women no older than candidates for advanced degrees in American universites. More terrfying still, anyone can remind himself that no inconsequential part of the record has been made by men and women scarcely older than the hundreds of thousands of students who must mull along in crowd fashion year after year, in our undergraduate colleges.

Until recently this prolonged period of mental and emotional agony for youth could always be held out by the mddle-aged as a bait. "If you go thru with it all, we wll admt you to the vast world which we have created for our comfort. You can marry, especally if your wife is willing to work in an office, too; and join the country club; and settle down. After another twenty years you may wake up some day and find that you are a somebody.'

But now the promise of reward has been withdrawn. The middle-aged have been carried by their own philosophy to the point where they believe they can best keep what they have by seeing that nobody else has anything. They would stop admitting youth to industry,-to commerce, to the professions, to the trades.

And as if this were not a great enough transgression, they would be guilty of another: they would deny to youth the privilege of even a slow-moving education.

Youth has a way of turning to all sorts of matters when it is denied the right to participate in the legitimate activities of its elders.

What the American people in their present bewilderment most need is precisely what youthful minds could contribute-- the very minds they refuse to let function. We are cursed with level heads. We need a great influx of lopsided youths. The social order must be reconstructed by somebody who believes something, by somebody who has aome enthusiasm, and not by the perfectly balanced men designed by nature or by their accumulated habits of life to be chief barbers and head waiters.

Youth would be ready to work towards these high ends if it had as much as half an opportunity. But with youth ceaselessly coming along, with youth eager, with youth unoccupied, with youth impatient, with youth growing embittered, the middle-aged of mind put up signs everywhere: "It is forbidden to youth to enter."

Farmer-Labor News Service

By H. G. Tiegan

Attorney General Harry H. Peterson and Deputy Attorney General F. A. Pike are waging a splendid fight in behalf of the peopla to secure a reduction in telephone rates in the state.

For several weeks the Attorney General's office has been busy before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission showing the injustice of the present rates charged by the Tri-State Telephone company in the city of St. Paul. The same charges of high rates that apply to St. Paul apply equally well to other cities and communities served by the Tri-State company.

The fight being waged by the attorney general's office is based in the main upon an investigation made by D. F. Jurgenson, chief engineer of the railroad and warehouse commission. Mr. Jurgenson completed valuation of the Tri-State company's propertles in the citles of St. Paul, Rochester, Owatonna, Caledonia and Stillwater. His figures and testimony abundantly supported by proof and stand as a prima fcie case against the telephone company in the record mde at the hearings before the commission.

What the Testimony Shows

Here is what Jurgenson's testimony shows:

1. Telephone rates in the city of St. Paul could be reduced at least 25 percent and still give the company a net return of approximately 8 percent on the "present fair value" of the property which it devotes to the public aervice.
2. A 25 percent reduction would also allow the company to pay all its fixed interest charges on its outstanding bonds; pay 6 percent on its preferred stock, and yet provide the company with an 11.64 percent return on the par value of its common stock.

It is on the basis of the above information supplied by Mr. Jurgensen that the Attorney General's office has appealed to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission to bring about relief to the patrons of the Tri-State company.

Just what our commission's decision in the case will be is difficult to predict for it must be borne in mind that much of the delay caused during the past three years was due to the utter failure of Attorney General Benson to perform. It was not until the Farmer-Labor Attorney General took charge that action in thematter was had.

Public Ownership Solution

It is doubtful whether any public utility company is more extortionary in its charges than the Tri-State telephone trust. What is required as an ultimate solution of this problem is government ownership of long distance lines and municipal ownership of the local telephone system.

In this connection it is of interest to note the charges for similar service rendered by the Garden Valley Telephone company, a cooperativelly owned company serving the people in the Northwestern part of the state.

Rates Compared

Let us compare the charges at Caledonia now served by the Tri-State company with the charges of the Garden Valley company at McIntosh:

One Party Line	Caledonia	McIntosh
Business	$3.25	$2.00
Residence	$1.50	$1.50
Two Party Line
Business	$2.75	$1.75
Residence	$1.25	$1.25

Residence rates at the two points are the aame, while the difference in charges for buainess phones amount to $1.25 per month for a one party line and $1.00 per month for a two party line. The Garden Valley company also affords its patrona a still lower rate where a four party line is used. No such service as that is afforded by the Tri-State at Caledonia.

Distribution of Profits

The Garden Valley Telephone company has now been in successful operation for many years. During the years from 1920 to 1932 there has been no increase in rates. At the same time the properties of the company have increased in value from $159,333 in 1920 to $313,913 in 1932; all paid out of the earnings of the company. Besides, dividends have been declared each year since 1923, which go into the pockets of the patrons and not into the exchequer of a Wall Street group as is the case with the Tri-State and other trust owned companies.

I want to repeat that what the people of this country need is public ownership of the telephone system as well as of all public utilities. Only by such a method can real relief be had from the extortions of these companies. In the meantime let us hope that the attorney general may be successful in his demands that the telephone rates at St. Paul and in other cities be reduced according to the recommendationa made by Mr. Jurgensen.

There are other differences that might be noted but they cannot be discussed here. In a later article I am going to discuss more fully the Garden Valley Telephone company and what that company has done for its patrons in cities, villages and rural communities of the Northwestern counties of the state.

International Highlights

Scandinavia and the Nazis

When the Nazis threatened to flow over into Slesvig, Denmark acted swiftly and rushed thru government proposals forbidding tha wearing of party uniforms by communists, conservatives, and Slesvig Nazis and providing additional men for the state police force to cope with the trouble.

Apparently the Swedes havn't much time for the Hitlerites either. A mass meeting of Stockholm Socialists have denounced the Nazi regime as a menace to "world peace, democracy and the working class thruout the world," and passed a resolution declaring that "we can best help German workers by promising that what has happened in Germany shall never happen in iur own land."

Russian Economic Advance

Conditions within the Soviet Union appear to have improved substantially from the low point reached in midwinter. The American press has recently published stories of wide-spread famine with "thousands already dead and millions menaced with death from starvation," but, judging from observations of Americans in Russia who are familiar with the situation, such statements seem to exaggerate the difficulties. There is still a severe food shortage in the peasant areas of the Ukraine, North Cacausus and lower Volga, but the government however, has the situation well enough in hand to prevent actual starvation. No open rebellion of the people against intolerable living conditions has appeared, nor are there any signs that the present Communist regime is losing its control over either the party or tha country at large.

Greenland Declared Danish

Denmark's contention that the Norwegian occupation of territory in Eastern Greenland on July 10, 1931, was unlawful and invalid in that it constituted a violation of the existing legal situation, was upheld by the Permanent court of Internatonal Justice at the Hagua on April 5. This decision was accepted with joy in Denmark as it establishes ther sovereignty in Greenland. In 1930 the island's exports, mainly cryilite, were valued at 10,742,000 kroner ($2,900,340 at par).

Sweden Combats Unemployment

Definite plans to combat unemployment were laid before the Riksdag late in March. An unemployment insuranca proposal makes all workers above the age of 16 eligible for paymenta. These paymenta would be, at the most 6 Kroner a day (approximately $1.26 at the current rate of exchange), and not less than 2 kroner a day (42 cents). Benefits could be drawn for not more than 120 days during the year. Half would be paid by the insured worker and the other half would be shared by the employers and the government.

Nurse the Cold

In business houses where a physician is on the staff, it has been found that if the employea who are found to be coming down with colds can be persuaded to stay at home in bed for a day or two, not only is the cold usually controlled but also the danger of infecting others is eliminated. In some organizations sunlight treatmenta are given and records kept of results showing thot colds have been reduced greatly in number and in seriousness.

To Kill Gasoline Odor

To remove the odor in cleaning garments with gasoline, use about ten drops of oil of sassafras to a quart of gasoline. A teaspoonful of salt in a quart of gasoline lessens the danger of a ring being left around spots that hava been removed.

Civil War Finances

The British government did not finance either side during the Civil war, though both sides sold bonds in Britain and other foreign countries. The Confederates had hoped to finance their operations through the sale of cotton, but the blockade interfered with this plan. British subscribers to the Erlanger bonds for the Confederacy in 1863 lost millions of dollars. Dewey's Financial History of the United States states that while the war lasted, but little foreign capital was transferred to the United States, but when peace was established European funds were rapidly turned westward and government bonds were sold abroad in large quantities until the agitation began for the payment of bonds in currency instead of gold.

A farm boy caught his hand in a cog wheel of a corn binder. His mother ran to the house and telephoned a neighbor, who came quickly and released him. Later the doctor said that if they had not had a telephone to get help quickly the boy probably would have lost his hand.★

In an emergency a single call may save enough to pay for the cost of your telephone for many years—even for a lifetime.

★AN ACTUAL EXPERIENCE, TOLD TO US BY A FARMER

Labor Unions, Farm Groups, Urged to be Represented Aug. 5, 6

All local producers' and consumers' cooperatives, labor unions and farmers' organizations are urged to elect delegates before August 4, for the state meeting of the Continental Congress in Minneapolis August 5, and 6. Credentials must be submitted by that time for all delegates.

Daniel Hoard, Mayor of Milwaukee will be among the speakers to address the congress and other speakers include John Bosch, president of the Minnesota Farm Holiday Association, Beecher Moore, Washington correspondent; Charles Egley, manager of the Farmers' Union Livestock company and other liberal leaders of the state.

The congress will consider ways and means to organize liberal minorities, farmers, and workers' groups into a mutual program of social change. Niels Nielsen, 335 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, who is receiving credentials from those groups desiring to porticipote, called attention to the necessity of organizing consumers and producers into a single program in the planning that is now begining to take place in Washington.

"Reports from the department of commerce show," Nielson said, "that altho there is much talk of prosperity, the volume of retail business steadily declined from April to June. This and other incidents show the need for forceful vigilance and steadfast demands by the producers and consumers for a more sane policy. Credentiols of more than 250 delegates have already been received by Nielson and several hundred more are expected by th deadline, August first.

Sheep Specialists to Demonstate Soon in Pennington County

To show Pennington county lamb growers how to tell when a lamb is in top condition for market, will be the main purpose of a series of lamb grading and drenching demonstrations being arranged by County Agent R. M. Douglass. The exact dates and places for these demonstrations will be announced soon, and all sheep men are urged to be ready to attend. A demonstrator or specialist to put on these demonstrations will be furnihed by the Agricultural Extension Division of the University of Minnesota, University Farm, St. Paul.

The Agricultural Extension Division is putting on another state-wide lamb grading campaign similar to the one in 1932 which reached 50 counties with 173 demonstrations, attended by 2,800 lamb growers. The regular staff of the Extension Division will be assisted in putting on this year's demonstrations by representatives of the Central Cooperative Association, the St. Paul Union Stockyards Company, the Producers Commission Company of Sioux City, Iowa, the Soo Line railroad and Armour and Company, W. Fargo, N. Dak.

The state-wide campaign will begin in July and continue through August with W. E. Morris, livestock specialist of the Extension Division in charge. The demonstrators before starting out will be especially trained at South St. Paul under the direction of the Animal Husbandry Division and Art Bayne, sheep salesman for the Central Cooperative Association. One or more of the demonstrators will serve in each county where demonstrations are scheduled. The demonstrators for this county have not been definitely assigned, but a thoroughly competent man is assured, says Mr. Douglas.

Only about 35 to 50 per cent of the native lambs arriving at the South St. Paul market sell at the market top, according to market authorities. One of the main reasons is the lack of fat or finish on many of these lambs.

Through the lamb grading demonstrations, farmers will have an opportunity to learn how to judge finish on lambs, from a specialist well versed in what the market demands. Each demonstration is to be held on some farm where the lambs will be sorted and farmers will have a chance to handle the various lots and learn the difference between those ready for market and those that need further finishing. The specialist will also discuss feed and methods that can be used in bringing the unfinished lamb to top market condition.

Each demostration this year will also show the proper way to drench lambs for the control of stomach worms, which are the most troublesome parasites with which lamb producers have to deal.

Emil Ostlund of Birchdale, Koochiching county, who attended a lamb grading demonstration last year reported that form what he learned he was able to sort his own lambs for market and fatten the unfinished ones, so that everyone of his lambs lost year sold at top grade. Likewise in Pennington county, many farmers who atteded the demostratio later told County Agent R. M. Douglas that this work had helped them greatly in picking out their market lambs.

DRYING FOODS AND FRUITS

Drying food products does not destroy any of the energy, protain and mineral contents, but there is a definite loss of vitamins. This loss is greater in home drying than in the commercial vacuum dried products, and much greater than the loss in canned products.

"Filling Silos With the Field Ensilage Harvester" is the title of Minnesota bulletin 290, which describes the new, easier way to fill silos and compares costs with other methods. A copy may be had free from the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul

Fight on Tuberculosis in Illinois Successful

The state department of agriculture in Illinois, through its extensive program of testing poultry for tuberculosis, has succeeded in suppressing to a large extent the disease in the counties where this work has been done.

But of much greater importance is the fuct that the information secured can be used by any flock owner in other North Central states where tuberculosis in poultry is equally prevalent, to rid his flock of this menace without applying the tuberculin test.

Out of a total of 2,302 poultry flocks in LaSalle, Livingston, Bureau and McLean counties, Illinois, tuberculin tested during the period September 1, 1931, to December 1, 1932, 1,323 or 57 per cent disclosed one or more reacting tuberculosis birds. This is a lower percentage of flock infection than was found in several other counties in the North Central states.

Out of a total of 96,088 old birds tested (over eighteen months of age), 12,571 or 13.08 per cent reacted. Out of a total of 250,802 young birds tested (under eighteen months of age), 3,080 or 1.23 per cent reacted. This strongly confirms previous data secured which shows that old birds are much more seriously affected with tuberculosis thon pullets. The lower percentage of the pullets reacted in the counties where the testing was done at an earlier age.

Use Large Bin to Mix Homemade Laying Mash

Use a large bin in which to damp the ingredients for the home-made laying mosh. A small bin means that some of the ingredients will lodge in the corners and not receive a thorough mixing. Shovel over the mixture until all the streaks of material disappear. Hens should not receive too much meat scraps one day and too much bran the next doy when they are expected to keep up a continuous production of eggs.

Some feed companies sell a supplement which can be purchased to mix with home-grown ground grain. This mixture may contain meat scraps, fish meal, dried buttermilk, bone meal, etc. It contains everything needed in a poultry loying mash which cannot be supplied from the grains produced at home.—Indiana Farmers' Guide.

So Much Better!

If you have met the funeral director you call in time of need, and have learned to know him, then you turn to him as a friend, and not as a stranger.

Personally, we like the idea of meeting people and letting them judge us at leisure. We invite visitors at all times, that they may examine our establishment, and see for themselves what kind of folks we are.

Valley Has Largest Increase in Sheep

According to Superintendent A. A. Dowell the sheep population hos increased more rapidly in the Red River Valley than in any other section of the state. A few years ago the greatest concentration was to be found in the southeastern Minnesota counties, while Roseau county now takes first rank. Sheep are destined to play an increasingly important part in the agricultural development of Northwestern Minnesota. They are the most efficient of all animals in the control of weeds, require comporatively little labor during the crop growing season, and can be grown and finished for market with less grain than any other class of livestock. Furthermore, sweet clover pasture and alfalfa or sweet clover hay, crops that are especially adapted to this region, are unequalled as roughages for the breeding flocks and growing and fattening lambs.

A new sheep barn has just been completed at the Northwest School and Station under the supervision of A. M. Foker, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds. It is a story and a half building, 90 feet long and 36 feet wide with a general work room extending across the entrance on the north. This room serves as a combination feed room and shearing floor with stairway to the store room above. A central feed alley extends through the center of the main section of the building, with a series of sheep pens and combination hay and grain racks on each side. An added feature, is the concrete dipping vat which has been installed in the central alley so that the regular spring and fall dipping can be completed with a minimum of work. The gambrel roof not only gives adequate space for hay and straw, but adds to the general appearance of the building.

MILK HAS NO SUBSTITUTE

Luckily, we do not need one. The supply in Thief River Falls is ample, the price is low.

Milk is a natural food which nourishes the body in a natural way. No other food can take its place. Of all foods milk supplies more for the money than any other food.

There are hundreds of ways to use milk in cooking and baking in addition to its use as a beverage. The best plan to assure a quart daily for each member of your family is to serve milk as a drink at least twice a day. The glass-of-milk-at-every-meal-habit is a healthful habit.

Public Hearing for Truckers in St. Paul

A public hearing that will be of state-wide interest to truckers and which will be attended by several hundred truck operators and representatives af railroad companies, will be held at the House Chamber in the State Capitol, July 21, at 10 o'clock, as a result of an order issued by the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse' Commission this week.

The purpose of the hearing is to consider the establishment of commodity rates. Since the order of the commission of June 28, establishing rates for truckers under Chapter 170, the new truck regulatory act, numerous requests have been received from truck operators for authority to continue the scale of rates in force before the new truck law went into effect, or for the establishment of commodity rates.

For this reason the commission decided to hold a general hearing and give all truckers and shippers an opportunity to present arguments and evidence.

Among the truckers that are applying for changes in the new rates are those that have been hauling for creameries, packing plants, and chain store companies. They say that unless they are permitted to reduce their rates to the level prevailing before July 1st, the creameries, packers and chain stores will purchase their own trucks for the transportation of their merchandise.

RETIRED WHEAT ACRES OFFER NEW CROP USES

Land which is withdrawn from surplus production of wheat by wheat farmers who cooperate next year in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's program of reduction may be planted to other crops, as long as such crops do not contribute to existing surpluses, according to information received at University Farm, St. Paul.

A chance to improve and take care of abused, depleted and eroded land is seen by the administrators of the Adjustment Act in the fact that acres retired from surplus production may be seeded to sweet clover or other legumes or to grass. These crops will improve the soil and prevent or check soil erosion.

Farmers may also utilize the retired wheat acres for the production of food or feed for their own use.

Under the plans made, several million acres will be taken out af surplus crop production, the bulk af this being retired from wheat and cotton acreage. For wheat, the percentage of reduction will not be more and probably less than 20 percent of the present acreage.

Farmers who participate in the reduction program under the plan, will receive compensating adjustment payments. They will have something definite in the way of cash to gain, and at the same time can be giving part of their land a change and rest that will improve it.

NORBY BIDS LOW ON AUDITORIUM

A total auditorium contract fo $59,501, was signed by the city council last Monday afternoon, after a unanimous vote of approval. Mayor Tungseth may give his approval Saturday after the required four days interval.

The general contract was given to B. O. Norby, of this city, lowest bidder, who bid $48,261 on the 75 foot width. The plumbing and heating contract went to the Fergus Fall Plumbing and Heating company who were low bidders at $8,770. The temperature control unit will be installed by the Johnson Service company of Minneapolis, for $1,270. The city electric light department will install the wiring and fixtures of the proposed building, at an estimated cost of $1,200.

Including the cost of seating equipment, and the architect's fees of 3% it is estimated that the total expenditure will total over $50,000.

Beginning last Saturday morning, the council considered the bids of thirteen general contractors until late that night, and resumed the figuring Monday morning. Bids submitted by each contractor on the 60, 70, and 75 foot widths. Carlson and Hasslen company was the next lowest bidder, with $51,688 for the 75 foot width, including a steel deck roof and fixed balcony seats, as did Mr Norby's bid of $48,261.

The remaning bids ranged as high as $53,390 without the estimates of the steel deck roof and fixed balcony seats.

Labor regulations in the specifications, require that preference be given to local labor, and mechanics, provided competent. The wage scale is set at 35 cents an hour for common laborers, 50 cents for carpenters, 75 cents for brick-layers, 80 cents for plasterers, and 60 cents for painters

As soon as the surety bond, to insure completion of the building, is made out, the engineers will survey the old auditorium site.

It is expected that the drag-line owned by H. P. Lund and Son, will be at work clearing out the basement of the old auditorium, by the end of this week. The drag-line is now being used by B. O. Norby on the excavation for the new Bothun building on Main avenue. Completion of the auditorium is called for by Feb. 1, 1934.

The final decision o fthe councilmen and Mayor E. L. Tungseth follows a lengthy series of negotaitions that hinged on the size of the building and the expenditure to be made. The Mayor issued a statement to the citizens of the city, May 23, asking for an auditorium with a minimum seating capacity of 1800 and perhaps 2000. The final agreement last Monday morning,between the councilmen mayor, and representative citizens was made on a structure that will eat a normal capacity of 1500, and a possible 1700.

The building itself will measure 80 feet by 140 feet.

Pastor and Wife to Observe Golden Wedding Anniversary

A golden wedding celebration will be given for Rev. and Mrs. I. L. Lasseson of Goodridge at their home at2 p. m. Sunday. The celebration is sponsored by the Thief River Falls Lutheran circuit, of which Rev. R. M. Fjelstad is president. In case of inclement weather it will be held in the church parlors. Besides Rev. Fjelstad, members of the committee are Rev. M. L. Dahle of St. Hilaire and Rev. H. Peterson of Viking.

A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the Rev. and Mrs. Lasseson to be present. There will be an informal program.

Unemployed Veterans Asked To Register for Federal Jobs

All unemployed ex-service men in the county are asked to register with B. O. Norby, Alex Campbell or Oscar Paulson in order to be in line for jobs under the Federal public works program, which gives preference to ex-servicemen, it was announced this week by Mr. Paulson, Legion Service officer.

Community Church Services To Be Held Sunday Morning At H. Hoel Farm Near City

The morning Worship hour will be held at 11:30 at the H. M. Hoel farm home, which was the Albert Johnson farm about 1½ miles south of the city.

The plan is for each family or group of families to bring their picnic dinner and enjoy it together on the spacious lawn immediately following the worship service. Each family or group is to bring its entire dinner including coffee. We should bring the whole family and enjoy this out of doors service. Cars will meet at the church at 11:00 o'clock, and persons without cars should meet there at that time and transportation will be provided.

There will be service in the evening at the church at 7:45 o'clock, when the pastor will begin a series of bible lessons and teachings.

Clayton Remark, former manager of the local Gamble store, now invetory man with the Gamble company called on friends in the city last Wednesday night. He was accompanied by Andrew Grinley of Grand Forks.

WORK BEGUN ON BOTHUN BUILDING

Early in October of this year, Martin Bothun, local florist, will be back next to the location where he first started out in business, April first 1901. He will be there to stay, this time, in a new, $10,000 building on the west side of Main avenue near Third street. Excavation was begun this week by H. P. Lund and Sons, who were awarded the sub-contract by Bert Norby, general contractor.

The completed one-story building, built for a second story, will measure 49 ft. by 80 ft., and will include a heated double garage in the rear. The building will house two stores, each measuring 23 by 80 ft., on the inside. will include black vitrolite pillars trimmed in orchid, below the plate glass windows. The upper section will be finished in brick, with trimmings of black and white stone worked into the whole design.

An oil burner will be installed for the heating which will be circulated by a fan system. No decision has as yet been made as to the letting of the plumbing and lighting contracts, Mr. Bothun stated ysterday. The four bids which have been placed on the plumbing and lighting will be decided this week, he said.

The new building will be located next to the Hilliard grocery where Mr. Bothun first started clerking for his brother in 1901. Later he built the store where A. M. Langseth is located, and was for a time connected with the Pure Food grocery. In 1911, after selling out, Mr. Bothun opened his first flower shop across from the Evelyn hotel, in the building now occupied by the Korstad cream station He moved to his present location four years ago, but, due to an expanding business, he has found it necessary to build.

Mayor Tungseth Calls on Municipal Groups To Help Raise $2,250 Towards Auditorium

To Our Citizens:

The auditorium dispute has been settled. With the vote of the council last Monday for a 75 ft., width for the new auditorium, the erection will begin at once. Bids were opened last Saturday, Mr. Norby, our own contractor putting in the lowest bd. The general contract costs is $48,266.00 and the plumbing contract $8,770.00. Fergus Plumbing and Heating Co., were lowest bidders on this latter contract. We are all happy because our local man, Mr. Norby got the general contract as it means that local labor will reap the most possible benefit out of the investment which our city now will make. And after all, we might as well as a city invest the money, which we otherwise would have to spend anyway supporting the unemployed, in construction. Then we have something to show for the money used. So let us all feel good about the matter knowing that the additional money invested beyond what we received in insurance will serve the dual purpose of providing labor for the needy as well as building a fine auditorium Personally I would very much have liked to see the new building set in 10 or 15 feet from Main and 3rd streets Realizing however, that this would cause serious delay, and which delay will mean additional cost, I gladly retrench in favor of economy and immediate construction. Whether or not this whole project can be completed at once or not will depend upon our financial resources later this fall Right now I want to call on our local municipal organizations to prepara plans whereby they can raise money and thus assist us to complete the building. I want to raise the $2,250 which is the diffference between the cost of the 70 and the 75 ft., widths by extra endeavors and call for the united support of all our citizens in this important project. The additional items of lighting and heat control will make the total cost outside of architect's fees appriximately $50,000.00 Seating capacity will be some 1700.

The most severe injury was sustained by Kenneth Olson of Norden, who suffered a compound fracture of the skull, and resulting injury of the brain and a badly broken left shoulder The doctor in charge, at the local hospital where he is being treated, stated that chances of recovery are favorable if meningitis does not set in. Norman Olson suffered a dislocation of the hip, and bruses, in the same accident that took place on the Angus road when they were returning from Grand Forks, Saturday night. County Repeal Unit of State Association Will Fight 18th Amendment

Unanimously agreeing that the Eighteenth amendment should be repealed, a group of local men met last Monday night at the court house to organize a Pennington county repeal unit to affiliate with the state association. H. O. Chommie, acting as chairman of the meeting, was delegated full power to appoint a committee of three members who are to appoint a permanent staff of officers. Mr. Chommie stated yesterday that he had made the tentative appointments of H. A. Brumund, W. W. Prichard Jr., and W. H. Schermer, who have not yet signified their acceptances. The committee of three will serve with the four officers as a permanent executive board.

Mr. Chommie, urging a united front, stated, "When the 18th amendment is out of the way, then will come the hair pulling: My opinion is that the distilled liquors should be handled by the state alone, there should be no opportunity for any corporation to make a profit but, nevertheless, to make the liquor available so that we do not have to go to the bootlegger like the W. C. T. U. and preachers have made it possible to do."

Pleading for straight, sane thinking, Mr. Chommie continued, "There must be some successful system that can be used. Take the profit out of it. We don't want to go back to the old saloon. We want to handle this problem sanely and not as hysterical women and preachers have done."

A public meeting will be called at some later date, when the organization has been perfected.

Wheat Production Control Should Be Carried Out in Spite of Short Crop, Declares Wallace

"In spite of the short wheat crop this year-- the shortest since 1893-- there is every reason for going ahead with the wheat production control plan," declares Henry A. Wallace, United States Secretary of Agriculture, in a statement received a few days ago by Andrew Boss, University Farm, St. Paul, who is in charge of the wheat production control work in Minnesota.

Right now, there is a carry-over of wheat in the United States, amounting to about 360,000,000 bushels, and that is what has been the matter with wheat prices. That carry-over, as Mr. Wallace explains, added to a possible crop of 500,000,000 bushels this year, will give for the coming year 850,000,000 bushels. Of this amount, it is estimated that there will be used in the United States during the coming year, as food and for seed, about 620,000,000 The exports for the year are put at 40,000,000. There is in sight, then, the disposal of 55,000,000 of the present crop and the carry-over. This will leave a carry-over of 200,000,000 bushels.

"With a normal seeded acreage and an average yield, the crop next year may be expected to be about 845,000,000," says Mr. Wallace. "Add to this the 200,000,000 estimated carry-over, and we have again a total supply of more than a billion bushels."

This would mean another immense carry-over, with depressed wheat prices. That is the reason Mr. Wallace feels that the present plan of wheat acreage reduction for 1934 and 1935 should be carried through. "One average crop," he says, "would bring back the old ruinous conditions -- unless the wheat-reduction program is carried out."

The plumbing and heating contract went to the Fergus Fall Plumbing and Heating company who were low bdders at $8,770. The city electric light department will insta the wiring and fixtures of the proposed building, at an estimated cost of $1,200.

Including the cost of seating equipment, and the architect's fees of 3% it is estimated that the total expenditure will total over $60,000.

Beginning last Saturday morning, the council considered the bids of thirteen general contractors until late that night, and resumed the figuring Monday morning. Bids submitted by each contractor on the 60, 70, and 75 foot widths. Norman Olson suffered a dislocation of the hip, and bruses, in the same accident that took place on the Angus road when tbey were returning from Grand Forks, Saturday night. Anne Tweten was drivingthe car at tbe time of the accident, which got out of control because of a faulty steering gear the car plungiag over a culvert and into the ditch. Miss Tweten sustained a broken knee-cap, nnd Albin Peterson and Mary Sponheim received bruises and minor injuries.

Disc wheels on tha car they were driving, saved the lives of Joe Adlis and Evelyn Tunheim, of Newfolden, when they were hit by a freight on the Soo Line at a bad crossing near Newfolden early Sunday morning. Struck by tbe engine squarely in the center, the car was carried along for 700 feet, the front and rear wheels on one side, dragging. The steel wheels held the car upright, preventing it from tipping which would undoubtedly have crushed the occupants. The train crew unhooked all cars except the caboose and brought tha unconscious victims to a local hospital for treatment. Mr. Adlis suffered a severe crushing of the chest and several broken ribs, and minor cut and bruises. Except for a severe shaching up, Miss Tunheim was not injured.

A motorcycle, driven by Joe Becker with Bud Schuster on behind, crashed into the rear end of a truck nt Eighth street and Davis ave., Sunday afternoon, leaving both boys with bsdly cut faces aad bruised limbs. They were brought to a local hospital, and released tbis week.

County Repeal Unit of State Association Will Fight 18th Amendment

Unanimously agreeiag that the Eighteenth amendment should be repealed, a group of local men met last Monday nigbt at the eourt house to organize a Pennington county repeal unit to nffiliate with the state association. H. O. Chommie, acting as ehairman of the meeting, was delegated full power to appoint a committee of three members who are to appoint a permanent staff of officers. Mr. Cbommie stated yesterday that he bad made tbe tentative appointments of H. A. Brumunl, W. W. Prichard Jr., and W. H. Schermer, who have not yet signified their acceptances. The committee of three will serve with the four officers as n permanent executive board.

Mr. Chommie, urging a united front, stated, "When the 18th amendment is out of the way, then will come tha bair pulling. My opinion is tbat the distilled liquors should be handled by the state alone, there sbould be no opportunity for any eorporation to make a profit but, nevertheless, to make the liquor available so that wa do not have to go to the bootlegger like tbe W. C. T. U. and preachers have made it possible to do."

Pleading for straight, sane thinkiag, Mr. Chommie continued, "There must be some successful system that can be used. Take tbe profit out of it. We don't want to go back to the old saloon. We want to bandle this problem sanely and not as hysterical women and preachers have done."

A public meeting will be called at some later date, when the organization has been perfected.

Wheat Production Control Should Be Carried Out in Spite of Short Crop, Declares Wallace

"In spite of the short wheat crop this year-- tbe sbortest since 1893-- tbere is every reaoa for going ahead with tbe wbeat psoduction control plan," declared Henry A. Wallace, United States Secretary of Agriulture, in a statement received a few days ago by Andrew Boss, University Farm, St. Paul, who is in cbarge of tbs wbeat production control work in Minnesota.

Rigbt now, thera is a carry-over of wbeat in tbe United States, amounting to about 360,000,000 bushels, and that is what has been tbe matter witb wheat prices. That carry-over, as Mr. Wallace explains, added to a possible crop of 500,000,000 busbels tbis year, will give for the coming year 860,000,000 hushels. Of this amount, it is estimated that tbere will be used in tbe United States during the coming year, as food and for seed, about 620,000,000 The exports for the year are put at 40,000,000. Tbere is in sigbt, tben, the disposal of 66,000,000 of the present crop and the carry-over. This will leave a carry-over of 200,000,000 busbels.

"With a normal seeded acreage and an average yield, tbe crop next year may be expected to be about 845,000,000," says Mr. Wallace. "Add to this the 200,000,000 estimated carry-over, and we have again a total supply of more than a billion bushels."

This woud mean anotber immensa carry-over, with depressed wheat prices. Tbat is the reason Mr. Wallaca feela that the present plan of wbeat acreage reduction for 1934 and 1935 should be carried througb. "One average erop," he says, "would bring back the old ruinous conditions -- unless the wheat-reduction program is carried out."

Something We May Regret

Without expert opinion being consulted in the matter, it seems to us that the project to dredge the Red Lake River was taken up rather hastily. Altho dredging Red Lake river is undoubtedly desirable from the standpoint of waterpower; we are not so sure that it will be beneficial in some other important respects. Like some other dredging projects which we are all now so thoroughly disgusted with, it will tend to hasten the flow of water from the Red Lakes nrea and lower tbe nlready low water levels of tbis region.

What the effect of all this drainage will be on rainfall is something we are not prepared to sny. It is certainly true that one of our biggest problems of late years is drouth. Denuding our forest areas has affected the rainfall in this section, and lowering the water levels and draining the lakes is probably also responsible for some of the decrease.

In the face of such strong indications that we are gradually making the country drier every year by hastily conceived projects to secure more waterpower or drainage for semi-worthless land, it does not seem advisable to carry on any more such work until we know definitely where it will lead us. After all, waterpower nnd drainage are secondary problems. If it is found that such projects as the one now contemplated will tend to drain off lnkes and swamp areas too rapidly, thereby cutting down the number of local rain showers wa would certainly be doing ourselves considerable harm by carrying them out. If it does not have this effect tbere can bc no objection, providing the benefita equal the costs.

It doesn't even require nn expert to see tbnt something has happeaed to our water supply in the past twenty years. Except for n ahort time in the spring, both Red Lake and Thief rivers ara only smnll, trickling streams above tbe backwnter of the dam. Not so many yenrs ago large boats wera navigating tbese rivers to Red and Thief Lnkes.

If this change has come about thru drainage and cutting down trees, the logical thing to do is to dam up ditches and reforest more intensively. If our forests had been takn care of in a scientific way, it ls estimated that a crop of timber worth $100,000,000 could be taken off each year. That would also have helped to preserve wild life nnd our water supply, besides bringing in more than the dairy industry does at the present time. It is yet not too late to begin to restore this area for the future.

In the meantime, we believe that any projects which may jeopordice the supply of water in the Red Lake basin should be npproached with caution, and only after we have had expert opinion on the matter.

From the Sidelines

By R. M. Aalbu

The republican party publicized and commercialized the dry issue for fifteen years; capitalizing on the sentiments of the people while their bootlegger appointees profited in tbe rum-running racket. Now that the tide of public opinion has swung to the opposite extreme, the democrats nre capitalizing the wet issue.

Not that the republcans are drier, nor the democrats are wet, but simply because tbe democrats, being lean, hungry and alert, saw the nickel and got their foot on it first.

Just watch the demos mulcht the brewers and distillers in the next election. They will pay through the nose ---- and how.

Which all goes to prove that if you want any issue, be it moral, economic, political or for that matter religious, handled honestly and in line with the best interests of all the people, you will have to pick someone who has no investment to protect in either side of the controversy to do it.

If there is a sane and rational liquor law placed on Minnesota's statute books after the eighteenth nmendment is repealed, which it undoutedly will be, it will be because we have a farmer-labor party and a farmer-labor governor in Minnesota that do not have their foot on a nickel.

Commenting on the evident procrastination and sabotage of many of the captains of iadustry and finance in withholding cooperation witb the government in the appliance of the terms of tbe National Industrial Recovery Act, Oscar Ameringer, writing in tha American Guardian, says:

"——— if tbe measures through which Roosevelt seks to save capitalism from itself are frutrated by the hoggishness of its leaders, the next step may well be an attempt at Fascism. But Fascism in the United States means something quite different than in Italy or Germany. It means the violation of every American ideal and trsdition. It means tbe scrapping of the democratic institutions under wbich Capitalism governed the country so long and so successfully in it own interest. It means that instead of ruling by fooling we shall have ruling by gat and castor oil.

"Now the American people may have reached the place where they are willing to accept that sort of a regime in exchange for bread and beans, and if so, goodbye America of Ethan Allen, Nathan Hale, Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln, goodbye America of the Declaration of Idependence, Bill of Rights, Emancipntion Proclamation and Gettysburg address. But we believe nothing of the kind. On the contrary we are coavinced that any attempt to establish Fascism on American soil will be the prelude for a drama wbose last curtain descends on a sceae in which there is no more room for eaptaina of industry and Napoleons of finance than there was for conrt chamberlains, king'a jesters grand aigneura aad royal governora after Cromwell, Robespierre and Washington finished their jobs." ..

Gentlemen of Plutocracy, it is your necks Roosevelt is trying to save. Will you let him?"

If you were asking me, Mr. Ameringer, I would say that they wil not let him, if they can help it. A few will cooperate, but the vast majority of the induatrial barons are only watchiag for an opportunity to ahirk to slide out from uader and grab off nice fat slice for themselves.

I would liken the buman race to a mnn carying all his possesions in front of him, the more he has of this world's goods, the less able he is to see the pitfalls ahead. Most men are so small comparatively, that no matter how little we are burdened with, we are still unable to see past it. A few, but very few, are so large that even the largest fortunes canaot obscure their vision.

For that reason, I see no rosy time ahead in the immediate fnture for tbe American people, nor for the heroic men who are trying to save them from their own avarice. The government will be forced to usc the mailed fist to bring the powerful financial interests and captains of industry to necl, and there will be money spent without stiat to defeat the purpose of the reconstruction act just as soon as the present emergency has to some extent been nmeliorated.

I see corruption in high places in the nenr future that will make the Teapot Dome scandal pale, unless wc have changed our entire national moral code as a result of tbe annealing process which we have pased thru the last three years. Unless we firmly resolve that the era when crime, corruption racketeering and graft was permissable "as long as you get awny with it" is of the past, never to be resurrected.

More than ever before, we need to pray with the poet;

God give us men, a time like this demands,
Strong hearts, true faith, clear minds and ready hands.
Men who are honest; men who will kill.
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy.
Men who possess opinions nnd a will;
Men who are honet; men who will not lie.
Men who will stand before the demogogue
And damn his traiterous flattery without winking.
Strong men, sun-crowned, who live
In pnblic actions and private thinking.
For while tbe rabble witb its thumb-worn creeds,
Its loud professions and it little deeds
Mingle in selfish strife; Io, freedom
weeps,
Wrong rules the land and waiting
Jnstice aleeps.

CAN SELL WHEAT, GET BENEFIT PAYMENTS, TOO

Reports have reached the Agricultural Adjustment Administration that wheat fnrmers in some areas have been planning marketing operations in the erroneous belief that they must withhold their grain in orler to qualify for paymenta to be made later on acreage reduction contracts.

Oae of tbe features of the wheat plan is tbat payments in consideration of pledges to rduce acrage are to be made to farmers seperately from and independently of the market price of wheat.

This plan permits farmers to market their wheat in the normal manner to which they are accustomed, without in the least affecting the amount of payments to be made later to thosa cooperating with the wheat plan. Growers can send their wbeat to market now or withhold it on their farms without in tbe least affecting tha compensation payments to be made later. These paymenta are to be made to those who sign contracts pledging acreage reductıon np to 20 per cent. The payments are to be based on past production without regard to present prices. Farmers can sell their wheat in tha open mnrket now, and in addition collect their payments after their contracts to reduce acreage are signed

Local Power Situation and Stand on Diesel is Explained by City Council

We, the City Council of Thief River Falls, would lika to mnke ths following statement relative to our Municipnl Power Plant.

Thera seems to be considerabla misinformntion with referenca to our Power Plant. In order to clear up many points, we ths Council, endeavor to set forth ths present condition of our plant.

In 1900 a Mnnicipal Direct Cnrrent Light Plant was started, at which time a 150 H.P. water wheel was used to generats tba electricity. About 2 years later a second water wheel, also 150 H.P. was installed. Both machines are now scrapped and replaced with new water wheels.

In 1912, due to lncreased load, two 225 H.P. Bush-Sulzer Diesel engines were installed and placed in operatlon. Tbese engines and water wheels took care of the plant for many years.

In 1928 it was decided to change over the distributing system gradually from direc current to alternating current, so as to permit the uss of new and modern appliancca, rsdios, etc. At tbis time n new Hydro plnnt was installed consisting of two units, one 300 K.W. — 450 H.P. unit and one 250 K.W. — 375 H.P. water wbeel. These were both alternating current.

By 1930 a considerable portion of the city bnd been changed over from direct to nlternating current. Tha lond had jumped quite rspidly and due to this increased load, together with the tremendous drop off in water available for water power, a 750 H.P. --525 K.W. McIntosh-Seymour Diesel engine with alternating current generator was installed. Present power plant equipment consists of:—

2-225 H.P.- 150 K.W. Diesel Unit engines, 21 years old. Above geaerators nre direct current and in order to serve alternating current they must operste thru a motor generator set, causing 20% loss in power.
1-450 H.P.- 300 K.W. Water Wheel
1-375 H.P.- 250 K.W. Water Wheel
1-750 H.P. 525 K.W. Diesel Engine

Present load conditions during fall and winter months:—

Peak loads, evenings	600 to 700 K.W.
Dny londs	300 to 400 K.W.
Evening loads aver.	500 to 650 K.W.
Max. peak load	700 K.W.

Water power nbsolutely cnn not be counted on. The river is low lake is low, and the water power is wholly inadequate. Therefore the available generating equipment with all Diesel engines running ia a maximnm of 825 K.W.

The water wheels are shnt down for nina months per year, and can be depended upon only during spring months. If any thing happens to the large Diesel unit, over half of tbe City would be out of lights.

The following shows the growth in the Municipal Light Plant:—

The amount of energy generated by water power in 1932 was only 107,600 K.W.H. or 5%. The balance, 1,878,730 or 95% was generated by the Diesel engines.

No charge is made for street lighting, white way, or pnmping of water, which is a saving to the tax payers of $8,000.00 to $10,000.00 annually. We have many outstanding bonds, on water works, auditorium, paving, etc. Net casb surplus is being used to n large extent to help pay tbese off, and will be continued to be so used, even if a Diesel unit is pnrchased.

We all realize that aomething must be done. We cannot continue to go along, hoping that no trouble will arise, and that no shut downs will occur. Any machinery must have a check over to prevent break-downs. Under present conditions this cannot be done.

There are three courses to follow:—

1. Endeavor to get mora water power.
2. Buy power from Power Compnny.
3. Purchnss a Diesel sngine.

Tbese three hava been, and still are being given carful considration.

No. 1.— Mnra Water Power.

We hava tried repeatedly to get more water, but without avail. This matter has been taken up with our Senators in Wnshington, with the Minnesota State Board of Health, and with the Commissloner of Drainage and Waters. Last year tha Indian Depnrtment gnvs us all they water they could spare, and in fact the level of Red Lake was lowered until its level was practically even with the outlet level. All efforts have been stranded, ns tha lnke level cannot be reluced lower than the outlat to our aystem.

No. 2.— Buying Power.

This matter was taken up with the Interstate Power company at Crookaton, last year. They wanted a five year contract, a standby charge, plus 2½c. per K.W.H. This is now up agaln for consideration, and a new propoaition asked for.

No. 3.— Purchnse of a Diesel Engine.

Bids have been opened and action postponed until Monday July 31nt. Investigation has been made, and is being made so ns to procura money from the United Statea government. If this fnils we can buy a new Diesel unit, pay for it out of the earnings over a five year period, with small pnyments during 1934, 1935, and 1936, so as to permit of using cash profits from the Power Plant during these years for bond retirement, same as in tbe past.

The big problem now confronting us is:— Shall the City of Thief River Falls continue to develop its own generating power and retain its profits at home, or,

Shall we tie up with the Power company for a period of yeara, and become dependent to a great extent upon them.

This will be considered at a public hearing next Monlay evening July 31.

WINTER RYE MAKES GOOD PASTURE FOR FALL, SPRING

To provide for a shortage of pasture during the coming fnll and next spring, R. F. Crim, extension agronomist, Universty Farm, St. Paul, suggests the seeding of winter rye for fall and early spring pasture. Tbe need for such pasture is likely to be great in some parts of the state where the hot, dry weather has had seriuos effets

Mr. Crim says that winter rye is one of the best crops to be used in the fall of the year. It should be seeded soon after the removal of tbe summer crop and wben the mosture condition is aucb that tha soil can be prepared properly.

Any standard variety sucb as Swedish, Minnesota No. 2, Dakold or Rosen, may be sowi at the rate of 1½ to 2 busbela an acre.

The crop may be pastured within three or four weeks after seeding, but the area should be given a chance to recover before the coming of cold weather if it is to be pastnred tbe following spring. In the apring the rye may be pastured again as soon as the land is well settled and dry enough to support livestock.

RAGWEED CAUSES HAY FEVER

Eradicating ragweed would greatly reduce the autumn type of hay fever, according to U. S. Dept., of Agr.

Ragweed should be cut twice a year, first just before it flowers and again hefore flowers develop on the low growing branches thnt appear after the first cutting.

International Highlights

Recognition of Soviet Russia npparantly has been hastened, says Paul Y. Anderson, writing in the Nation, by public reaction to the step taken by the R. F. C., when in substancs, it lent $4,000,000 to a governmsnt whose legal existance we refuse to admit. All signs indicate that the loan was a "feeler", and that failure of publlc opinion to manifest any resentment will bs followed by a much larger one, possibly $25,000,000 or even $100,000,000. The first loan was to ennble Russia to buy our cotton; the next presumably will bs to enabla her to buy our American products, particularly copper.

One View of the London Conference

Mr. McDonald said that the "thowts of the wurruld were with them. They must co-operate."

M. Daladier of France favoured cooperation in so far as it gave other nations the opportunity to make sncrifices for France.

Mr. Chamberlain of Great Britain, believed in co-operation if it gave Britain an ndvantage over other nations.

Signor Jung of Italy supported cooperation if Italy got the thick end of the deal.

Baron Neurath of Germany would co-operate if everybody would give Germany something.

Litvinoff of Russia said that all the Capitalist System needed was a stick of dynamite. It was felt that he was trying to turn the occasion into an Economic Conference and he was voted no gentleman.

The Conference then adjourned, the hall being seeded for a conference of Americans to decide who had tbeir policy if any.

And that is the brilliant success of the conference so far.

Why Conferences Fail
(by Harold J. Lasky)

The British governmeat dare not make a free-trade gesture for fear of the Tory eagerness for tariffs and tbe economic imperialism of Ottawa. The French will not abandon their complex system of qnotas and embargoes for fear of endangering tbe unsteady equilibrum they hnve maintained thru the depression. Germany has so economic policy; and Japan must, somehow flood the markets of the world with sweated goods in order to pay for her imperialistic adventure in China. Southern and Eastern Europe tremble on tbe abyss of an economic disaster, usable to move effectively in tbe absence of international agrement by the great states. America is too preoccupied with her own internal prcblems to act decisively upon any problem, from debts to tariffs, which implies a limitntion of tbe domestic policy to which her main attention is given.

There can only bc international planning, whether in the realm of disarament or of economic matters, when the interest of states in the result is nn equal interest. The prime logic of a capitalist world is inequality; and this canference is merely a supreme illustration of the contradiction between porld needs and nn institutional system which denies their title to primary considerstion. What it reveals is the imposibility of any such achievement in n world of capitalistic states.

PUBLIC OPINION

Please permit me to discuss the possibility of consolidating Penninngton and Red Lake counties.

If we can agree to consolidation, there are mainly two difficulties we have to iron out. The one is the fear of being outvoted at election, so that the biggest county would elect the county board and other officials.

The other difficulty will be to agree on forming the new commissioner districts.

As to the first one that "fear" seems atfirst thought, to be well founded. We may admit that at the first election some voters would most likely, vote for some candidate who lived within their former county. But I am sure the majority of voters would be big enough to be impartial along this line; and after having been united some years in one county, and knowing the advantage of living within a bigger county, it seems natural that that provincial way of thinking would fade out. We all know that Pennington county is the largest and has the most vote. The last census has 10,487 for Pennington and 6,887 for Red Lake county. But I am sure we all agree that the citizens of either county are equally good and honest. To be fair to the citizens of both counties, we should lay out the new commissioner districts north and south across both counties. By so doing that there could be a candidate for all offices in both parts of the former counties. And it seems plain to me that the two central districts would get a majority of voters from Red Lake county. At least that should be so arranged. Thief River Falls will become one district alone. We also know very well that at former elections the people have voted for the candidate they had most confidence in (sometimes the least objectionable) no matter where he lived.

If wo then lay out the new commissioner districts north and south as near as possible, I believe the fear of being outvoted by the biggest county can be dismissed.

While we discuss this matter we must also remember that each county has had bitter fights about some candidates at elections in former years; and we can feel assured that some struggles at elections cannot be any harder after we consolidate.

Now as to the second difficulty mentioned above; all the trouble we need have about that will be to go by the rule of the Great Master: "Do unto others what you would want them to do unto yourself."

As I stated in my former article, the sum needed in the future for caunty government only would be about $30,000. (This year $32,000 is levied for Pennington.) After consolidation the new county would sava about $30,000 annually. For a period of ten years that would be $300,000. The court house in Pennington county is too small and its frame is not strong enough to carry a 3rd floor. The west half of the basement is in poor condition and not made for a bigger building. But by patching a little here and there the building can serve for another 8 or 10 years, if the consolidated county retained the safety vaults in the court house in Red Lake Falls temporarily. Last mentioned building is also getting old and in need of repairs, so the new county would have to plan on building a new court house in the near future. Such a modern, solid, fireproof and big enough court house could be built for about $50,000. By consolidating the two counties we could build such a court house after 8 or 10 years and have some $250,000 over.

The present court house in Red Laka Falls should, I think, be given to the city of Red Lake Falls for a community building.

When I now close this discussion, permit me to mention the call president Roosevelt sent out to all governors of the states to meet him at Washington, March 5th to consider and plan for a reduction of the present tax burden etc. One of the five subjects, or questions to be considered at that conference was "reorganization and consolidation of local governments, (counties etc.) so that expenses could be reduced." Those who are wise make good plans for the future. I think we are wise enough to see the benefit of cansolidation, but perhaps we are afraid to try the experiment If we trust each other we can consolidate and live together in one county. If we cannot trust each other we have to continue to liva seperately and pay the cost. Here in Pennington county the expense of living seperately will be about $15,000 annually and the same applies to Red Lake county. We all know that consolidation has been of great benefit to the steel trust, the harvester trust, to the millers, to thos manufacturers and to our own industry of butter making and to all other manufacturers — yea, even to those manufacturers who make caskets for our last resting place in this world. Why not try consolidation of these two brother counties? It is now time to do something. Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota have already begun.

Respectfully,
A. K. Lockrem

PUBLIC OPINION

Please permit me to discuss the possibility of consolidating Penninngton and Red Lake counties.

If we can agree to consolidation, there are mainly two difficulties we have to iron out. The one is tbe fear of being outvoted at election, so that the biggest county would elect the county board and other officials.

The other difficulty will be to agree on forming the new commissioner districts.

As to the first one that "fear" seems atfirst thought, to be well founded. We may admit that at the first election some voters would most likely, vote for some candidate wbo lived within their former county. But I am sure the majority of voters would be big enough to be impartial slong this line; and after having been united some years in one county, and knowing the advantage of living within a bigger county, it seems natural that that provincial way of thinking would fade out. We all know that Pennington county is tbe largest and has the most vote. The last census has 10,487 for Pennington and 6,887 for Red Lake county. But I am sure we all agree that the citizens of either county are equally good and honest. To be fair to the citizens of both counties, we should lay out the new commissioner districts north and south across both conntics. By so doing that there could be a candidate for all offices in hoth parts of the former counties. And it seems plain to me that the two central districts would get a majority of voters from Red Lake county. At least that should be so arranged. Thief River Falls will become one district alone. We also know very well that at former elections the peopls have voted for the candidate they had most confidence in (sometimes the least objectionable) no matter where he lived.

If ws then lay ont ths new commissioner districts north and aonth as near as possible, I believe the fear of being outvoted by tbe biggest county can be dismissed.

While we discuss this matter we must also remember that each connty hae had bitter fights about some candidates at elections in former years; and we can feel assured that some struggles at elections cannot be any harder after we consolidate.

Now ae to the second difficulty mentioned above; all the tronble we need hsve abont that will be to go by the rule of the Great Master: "Do unto others what you would want them to do unto yourself."

As I atated in my former article, the sum needed in the future for county government only would be about $30,000. (This year $32,000 is levied for Pennington.) After consolidation the new county would save about $30,000 annuslly. For a period of ten years that would be $300,000. The court house in Pennington connty ie too small and its frame is not etrong enough to carry a 3rd floor. The west half of the basement is in poor condition and not made for a bigger huilding. But by patching a little here and tbere tbe building can serve for another 8 or 10 years, if the consolidated county retained the safety vaults in the court house in Red Lake Falls temporarily. Last mentioned building is also getting old and in need of repairs, so tbe nsw county would have to plan on building a new court house in the near future. Such a modern, solid, fireproof and big enough court house could be built for about $50,000. By consolidsting the two counties we could build such a court house after 8 or 10 years and have some $250,000 over.

The present court honse in Red Lake Falls should, I think, be given to the city of Red Lake Falls for a community building.

When I now close this discnssion, permit me to mention the call president Roosevelt eent out to all governors of the states to meet him at Washington, March 6th to consider and plan for a reduction of the present tax burden etc. One of the five subjects, or questions to be considereo at that conference was "reorganization and consolidation of local governments, (counties etc.) so that expenses could be reduced." Those who are wise make good plans for the future. I think we are wise enough to see the benefit of consolidation, bnt perhaps we are afraid to try the experiment. If we trust each other we can consolidate and live together in one county. If we cannot trust each other we have to continue to live seperately and pay the cost. Here in Pannington connty the expense of living seperately will ba about $15,000 annually and the same applies to Red Lake connty. We all know that consolidation has been of great benefit to the steel trust, the harvester trust, to the millers, to shoe manufacturers and to onr own industry of butter making and to all other manufacturers — yea, even to those manufacturers who make caskets for our last resting place in this world. Why not try consolidation of these two brother counties? It is now time to do something. Wisconsin, North Dakota and Sonth Dakota havs already begun.

Respectfully,
A. K. Lockrem

STATE T. B. TEST TO START AUG. 14

All Animals in the county Over Two Weeks Old to be Tested

Twelve veterinarians working under the direction of the State Livestock Sanitary Board and the federal Bureau of Animal Industry are to make a tuberculosis test of all cattle in the county over two weeks old, beginning Monday morning, Aug. 14. This test which is free to the farmers who will be reimbursed for all animals that react to the test, is put on as a result of the agreement executed by the county board of commissioners with the State Livestock Sanitary Board, and when it has been completed this county will be designated as a Modified Accredited Tuberculosis-free area. This is practically without expense to the county, as it is limited to an appropriation of $100 and some assistance in the payment of the local expense·. As stated there is no charge to the farmers whose animals are tested. In addition to the fact that it is free, the farmers are guaranteed against loss thru the fact that all animals that react to the test are paid for by the government, a price which is, at the present price of cattle, quite commensurate with their value.

Twelve veterinarians are assigned to this county, and they will start their work on Monday morning, Aug. 14. On Sunday morning, Aug. 13, at ten oclock the veterinarians will hold a meeting in the court house to outline their work and at one p.m. the same day they will meet with their guides and assistants in the same place to plan final details of the work. The work will be completed over a two weeks period and farmers are asked to cooperate by having their animals confined to the stable on the day that the veterinareceived by all her owners giving them ample time to arrange for the test.

The veterinarian in charge of the work will mantain an office in the court room at the court house during the period that the work is being carried on in this county and anyone who desires additional information in regard to the matter, will be able to get it from him at that time, or from Mr. Douglass the county agent at any time previously.

All state-federal accredited herds whose tests may be due at this time or within 60 days will also be tested and any accredited herd owners whose herds were not included in this first test, an whose test is due or will be due in 60 days will be tested four months later when the veterinarians will return to retest the infected herds.

HEARING FAVORS DIESEL PURCHASE

Questions were hurled back and forth and answers were given, politely punctured with expletives at the public hearing on the Diesel question, in the council chambers last Monday night. The large crowd of local citizens that turned out, was questioned individually by council members and by City Attorney H. O. Berve, to determine whether they favored the purchase of a new 1,000 horsepower Diesel engine, on an earnings basis, or a temporary hookup with the high-line for stand-by power.

The vast majority favored the purchase of a new engine, some believed that the city should buy neither engine nor stand-by power, many bitterly denounced any hookup with a highline, and a few advocated a temporary contract with the Inter-state Power company of Crookston.

Many heavy users of electric energy were conspicuously absent from the hearing, and president Porter of the council, was surprised at the small showing of the Civic and Commerce association members who previously went on record in opposition to the purchase of a Diesel at this time

A petition asking the council to postpone the purchase, signed by 60 citizens brought the remark from Alderman Harris that it would have been better to circulate a petition after the hearing had allowed a full knowledge of particulars.

The atmosphere cleared with the reading of a letter from the Inter-State Power company, offering standby power on either a one, three or five year contract. Leonard Peterson, district manager, stated in the letter that it would be necessary to build a new 33,000 volt line from their present line at the east city limits to the city hydro plant, installing three 2,000 KWA transformers and that the necessary equipment, at a cost of about $9,000.00.

The three contracts offered are as follows:

1.— For a five year contract, a monthly fixed standby charge of $150 per month, energy at 2½ cents per KWH; all expenses of construction to be paid by the company.

2.— For a three year contract, standby charge and rate the same as on proposition number 1; the company to furnish the substation only (trausformers etc.); the city to build the line at a cost of approximately $2,500.

3.— One year contract, the standby and KWH rate as in propositions 1 and 2; city to furnish all lines and equipment except the transformers at a cost of $7,500.00.

Walt Jung of the Jung's Quality Bakery, B. O. Norby of the Land O' Lakes, and B. Dan Bjorkman of the Model Laundry, were the only heavy users of power present at the hearing.

Advocating a hook-up with the high line, Mr. Jung stated that whatever the council did decide to do, would meet with his favor.

Mr. Norby was against any hookup with the power company that will endanger the up-keep and maintainance of the local plant, and in referring to figures presented by Alderman Harris, stated, "As the figures show, I believe it may be cheaper, in the long run, to install another engine."

In the same vein, Mr. Bjorkman urged the council to go ahead and to be sure that they purchased a Diesel of sufficient power.

Stating that he has made a thorough study of the local power and light plant, Oscar Paulson, former councilman, reminded the gathering of the fight the council had in 1924, to save the municipal plant. "As far as the plant is concerned." he said, "it has saved the taxpayers a great deal of money, but it is now inadequate to take care of the present situation." "Why pay service fees to the highline," he querried, "why is it ecessary to pay charges for juice that we can produce ourselves? Therefore I am in favor of maintaining the local plant."

Applause greeted the comment of Lars Backe, former judge of probate court and the city's first city clerk, when he said, "Buy a new engine. I don't think we should tie up with the high-line."

One of the signers of the petition asking postponement of the purchase of an engine, Olaf Neset, refering to the figures presented by Mr. Harris, concerning the cost of power production at the local plant, stated, "There was a time when I thought it would be just as cheap to hook up with the high line, but if we can produce it at a cost of three-quarters of a cent per kilowatt hour, I favor your stand."

Otto Halldin, local railroad man,

Farmers Should Watch Late Crops For Hoppers, Says County Agent R. Douglass

Pennington county has suffered relatively slight damage from the grasshoppers this year, according to R. M. Douglass, County Agent. In some areas which have been the hardest hit by the drouth, damage has been considerable in some fields, but in other areas damage has been so negligible that any estimate of the percentage of damage for the county as a whole is impossible to make, Mr. Douglass says.

Farmers are urged however, to keep a vigilant watch on their potatoes and flax, snce now that the other crops are harvested the insects are liable to infest those fields that are still on the root. There is still poison mash available Mr. Douglass states, and anyone having infested fields are urged to make use of it at once.

NEW BRIDGE FOR CITY IS ASSURED

Efforts to obtain a new bridge across the Red Lake River in the city, met with a fair degree of success last Thursday when a local delegation was assured the construction of a $50,000 bridge by State Highway Commissioner N. W. Elsberg, in charge of the $10,000,000 federal highway allotment for Minnesota.

At the same time, the commissioner instructed Division Engineer A. O. Torgerson of Detroit Lakes, to make a survey of the site at Third street and Johnson avenue on the East side. Mr. Elsberg stated at the time that he favors a bridge constructed of concrete. The entire sum of $50,000 would come from the government.

At the same time city officials conferred with L. P. Zimmerman, executive engineer in charge of the Minnesota public works program, concerning Federal aid in the construction of the new auditorium and the installation of a Diesel engine. Mr. Zimmerman stated that there would be a possibilit-- of obtaining a 30 per cent grant of both projects.

Wets

Officers of the Pennington county repeal unit, to be affiliated with the state association, now include Harry Brumund, president; Roy L. Ericson secretary; P. J. Michaels, treasurer; and W. H. Schermer, Ben Kiewel and Mr. Chommie, executive committee. A vice-president has not yet been announced.

Acceptances by the local men who are appointed will be followed by an organization meeting, and a public gathering at some later date.

According to figures announced by the U. S. Brewers association, the state of Minnesota ranks sixth in beer drinking, consuming 106,459 barrels of beer during the month of May. New York takes first place, using 593,333 barrels of the brew. Wisconsin is second with 355,348 and Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Illnois following in order named.

Garnishment for Wage Case in School District Dismissed

Common School District No. 5 garnished for wages to the amount of $20, which had been voted to the clerk Mrs. Mollie Baker, at the annual meeting an the case was dismissed by Judge Nick Tarrant of the municipal court where it came up this week.

By law no sum exceedin $6 a year may be paid the clerk of a common district, unless the notce of the school district meeting, specifies that a larger wage is to be paid, subject to the vote of the board. No such notice had been made in this case and the Treasurer, Mrs. Frances Paneck, refused to pay any amount higher than the $6 provided by law.

Police Hands Out 64 Tags For Defective Lights in Check-up

Sixty-four tickets for defective lights have been handed out during the past week by the local police department, according to Chief Stenberg. The local department has been working in cooperation with the Minnesota Police association, the Minnesota Safety Council and the Highway Patrol in the light check-up which is being conducted in connection with the state-wide "Drive Carefully Campaign".

The owners of cars with defective lights are required to have them adjusted within 48 hours or face a fine according to the chief.

David C. Broderick, president of the Minnesota Police association reports that every police officer in the state and the highway patrol has cooperated in the drive. John P. Arnoldy, chief of the highway patrol, commenting on the campaign, said that demands for patrolmen to assist in the check-up has been just as great as during the recently conducted brake check-up and added that it will be some time before all requests could be filled.

"The motoring public has been offered free inspection and certification of their cars at authorized garages in many places. Drivers who want to keep their cars in safe condition go to these garages and receive their OK windshield stickers, which exempts them from inconvenience in police tests. There is another class who can't be bothered to find out if their cars are safe. It is members of this class that are stopped anl often receive tags for unsafe and illegal equipment," Chief Arnoldy said.

The drive against defective lights will be continued thruout the entire summer if necessary in order to curb the bad lights nuisance, authorities state

The authorized light adjusting station in Thief River Falls is the Lund and Tunberg Ford garage on Main avenue.

WILLARD FAVORS RIVER DEEPENING

The newly organized Red River Developement association was assured last Monday that the contemplated work on the river woud be included as a hundred per cent project in the Public Works program which is being directed in this state by E. V. Willard, commissioner of conservation.

At the association meeting held in Crookston, Monday, Mr. Willard stated that the project will be presented to President Roosevelt on Aug. 7th by Governor Floyd B. Olson and himself.

According to Mr. Wilard the four major projects in the state are; Big Stone lake, Lake Traverse, Roseau River Flood Control and Red Lakes and the Red Lake river.

He also gave a brief history of the Red Lake Conservation board and suggested that it might be feasable to revive it in order to have some in the event that the Federal government insists on dealing with some organization within the state, to sponsor the project.

The 15 directors, appointed by the respective mayors of Crookston, East Grand Forks, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls, met Monday and elected a permanent staff of officers.

Two local Civic and Commerce association members, Morris Bye and Paal Lundgren, were elected president and secretary respectively. Ed. Aubol of St. Hilaire was elected second vice-president.

President Bye will secure from the cities, data concerning the water supply of the cities long the Red Lake river, and W. H. Quist was delegated to procure particulars of the situation on upper Red Lake river, between Highlanding and the Lake.

The local men attending the meeting were; Directors Paul A. Harris and W. H. Quist; and Morris Bye and Paul Lundgren.

"The Death Kiss" is Feature At Lyceum Sunday, Monday

On Sunday and Monday, at the Lyceum theatre, the feature picture will be "The Death Kiss," from the popular book by Madelon St. Dennis. The attraction on Tuesday and Wednesday will be "False Faces," taken from the book, "Ugly People." Both pictures are presented through the Fox Film Corp.

John Holmgren Installs Own System for Securing Water

John Holmgren says that he is "all fed up" with prognostications of "wet seasons" that do not materialize. Hensforth he will install an engine and a force and just as wet as he desires,— if the river will hold out.

Year after year, he has seen the garden and berry bushes on his two acre tract on Horseshoe Island shrivel up for want of rain, and his patience has become just about exhausted. He is therefore erecting a small building on the river bank and will nstall an engine and a force pump to supply water for the entire tract. Pipelines to conduct the water to every corner of his garden and berry plot will have hydrants at convenient places for connecting hose.

ED. KOGLIN TO HARVEST HIS GRAIN WITH COMBINE

One of the first combines in this community was bought the other day by Ed. Koglin, who purchased an Alls-Chalmers combine from the Mainstreet Motor Corporation, which he will use to cut the grain on his farm this year.

MANY THRONG TO FAIR THIS WEEK

Getting under full steam today Thief River Falls day at the Pennington county fair, is expected to attract a capacity throng. A warm day and prospects of a warm night, are expected to pep things up along the Midway of the J. Crawford Francis shows, Mr. Francis stated during an interview last night.

Despite the cool evening Wednesday, many people were enthusiastic, praising the quality of free acts before the grand stand, and the free performance held on the Midway at 4 o'clock every afternoon and at approximately 10:30 o'clock every evening, following the acts.

Gertrude Avery's Diamond Revue performing before a back-ground of blue, sparkling with spangles, went thru a series of dancing acts that excel anything of the kind that has ever shown here. Modern rythm is furnished by Don Tranger's orchestra, and Randall and Bogash, comedians, supply the laughs.

Thrills are furnished by Mlle. Florence who performs on a 50 ft. pole, and an Arabian tumbling act by the Six Comets.

Local business places will be closed this afternoon to observe Thief River Falls Day, and the Red Lake Falls band will present a concert on the grounds this evening before the grand stand acts commence.

Rev. and Mrs. I. L. Lasseson Observe Golden Wedding at Gathering of Friends Sunday

In commemoration of the golden wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. I. L. Lasseson, many residents and pioneers of the Mavie community gathered at the aged couple's home last Sunday and presented them with a gift in remembrance of the occasion.

Rev. Lasseson was paster of the Hauges Synode church now merged with the United Lutherans some years ago. He has been retired from active work in the ministry for a year and a half.

Rev. R. M. Fjelstad of this city, presided at the gathering, and helped arrange the event together with Rev. M. L. Dahle of St. Hilaire and Rev. H. O. Peterson of Viking.

Drys

Last week the wets met. This week the drys rallied. Anticipating the vote on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment in Minnesota, Sept. 12, the Allied Drys of Pennington county, gathered at the Trinity Lutheran church, Tuesday night, to organize their forces.

With voluntary opinions of the situation being offered by all individuals, the meeting was informal but efficient. The majority of those present were women who 15 years ago, were ardent successful crusaders against the saloon. Now, confused by an economic pressure that has punctured the beer barrel, they are mappng out a campaign to bring out the dry vote in September.

Rev. E. A. Cooke, pastor of the Community church and past president of the Allied Drys, opened the meeting with a fearless review of the liquor situation. "I really can hardly see where we are at," he said, "we have a tremendous task on our hands, not because we havn't people supporting us, but a lethargy of feeling has come over us and we hear the remark, "Oh, let them have it." We can't arouse our people to the necessity of voting. I don't know how Minnesota would go if everyone got out and voted."

"It may be that the other fellows are willing to spend more money to make the country wet," Rev. Cooke continued, "They have money at stake. The question is, how can we stir the State of Minnesota to hold it in the column of dry states? Our business is to organize this county."

In the open discussion that followed Rev. Cooke referred to an article on liquor control, that advocated the selling of hard liquor at cost, and thru the government or state. "The curse of liquor is the profit that can be made from it." he stated.

That the economic situation is endangering the morale of the nation's youth thru lack of employment was the opinion of C. E. Helquist. Severt Benson stated that altho much criticism has been directed at the "modern youth", they are not more immoral than the young people were in his youth.

During the meeting, Rev. Cooke selected a committee composed of Rev. E. L. Tungseth, H. O. Berve, and Mrs. E. L. Rolland, to select a permanent committee of nine, which will in turn, elect officers from its own group. A meetng for this purpose will be held in the office of H. O. Berve, next Monday night at 8 p.m.

Its members drawn from the wards and representative groups of the city, the committee includes Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, first ward; Miss Hannah Gustafson, second ward; G. H. Mayer-Oakes, thrd ward; Mrs. H. A. Pratt, fourth ward; Mrs. C. H. Jung, Senator Laura Naplin, Alfred Bredeson, O. Bakken, and Rev. E. A. Cooke.

Prince George, 26 Year Old Showhorse Now Retired, Was Beginning of John Francis Show

How does a carnival show begin? One answer to that question is tethethered near the J. Crawford Francis show now appearing at the Pennington county fair.

One would hardly guess that the pony grazing contentedly just off the Midway, is the beginning of the Francis shows. Bright lights, the put-put of engines, blaring music, 'barkers' shouting to a milling crowd —these are woven into the 23 years of Prince George's life as a showhorse.

Back In 1907, John Francis was working at the Bijou theatre in Decature, Ill. Looking about for a pony to give to his son, J. Crawford Francis, then two years old, he picked up Prince as a colt, scarcely weaned and made him the pal of his son.

The pony was more than a pal; he became a student. Mr. Francis trained him a bit at the theatre, and then had an offer with a circus. From the start, his tutor instructed him to work alone, and soon Prince was one of the two ponies in the U. S. to go thru his perfrmance without guidance.

The pony was a hang-up success and; in later years, as a carnival attraction there were times when he drew thousand dolllar crouds at 25 cents a person.

From the proceeds of the feature, Mr. Francis financed the present show in 1920. Two years ago Prince was retired from active service at the age of 26 years, after a long and honorable career as an entertainer.

But he still follows the show of which J. Crawford Francis, son of John Francis is now president.

From the office car on the Midway, Mr. Francis directs the business of the show with the aid of H. W. Smith and Art Martin, in charge if the Hawaiin show. The show people hail him as "Crawf," and refer to his father as "Uncle John." The dark young showman has had a through education, attending Lake Forest academy, Lake Forest Ill., Maryville college, Maryville, Tennessee, and the University of Tennessee.

Forty Employers Sign National Recovery Act Agreements to Cut Hours and Raise Wages

Employment Limited to Forty Hours for All Except Those Who Handle Foods

SEVERAL STORES HIRING MORE HELP DURING WEEK

Government Asking Boycotts of All Those Refusing to Comply with Act

Forty local business and professional establishments have placed themselves squarely behind President Roosevelt's National Recovery Administration according to an announcement made this morning at the local postoffice where the forty pledges have been entered.

Almost every line of local business is represented among the names signed up, including grocery stores, clothing merchants, meat markets, restaurants, music store, ice-cream plant, hardware, millinary, ladies' ready-to-wear, funeral home, druggists, newspapers, and dentists.

The local business men lined up in quick order last Saturday night, at a meeting called by H. E. Nelson, chairman of the merchants' committee to determine whether or not the local men were to cooperate with the NRA.

Mr. Nelson explained that under the terms of the act the employees can work a maximum of 40 hours a week, and the stores must be kept open not less than 52 hours a week. This will necessitate the employment of additional help, he stated, and suggested that the merchants should get behind the movement whole-heartedly.

A committee consting of one member from each of the various mercantile lines in the city was appointed to work out further details of the methods to be used locally to comply with the terms of the act.

"The Sign of Hope"— the eagle topped by the letters NRA is posted in each establishment that has pledged in Food dealers have been permitted a 48 hour week, the clerks to work an eight hour day except the day before a holiday, and an additional 12 days of ten hours each, every six months.

A 40 hour week with minimum wage of $13 a week is specified in the code for dealers in clothing, hardware, dry-goods, furniture, shoes speciality shops and mail order houses.

Plans for a nation wide purchasing drive to supplement the government work spreading, wage raising program were disclosed today by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administration chieftain.

"I am going to supplement our present program by adding a request to all consumers that they spend for re-employment," he said.

WHEAT MEETINGS HELD NEXT WEEK

Every farmer in the townships of Bray, Polk Center, Sanders, Norden, and Numedal will receive a letter from County Agent R. M. Douglas, announcing the date and place of meetings, when he will inform the wheat farmers regarding details of the allotment plan and give them an opportunity to sign contracts.

Mr. Douglass will be in Bray township next Tuesday, Polk Center on Wednesday, Sanders on Thursday, and Norden and Numedal on Friday, he announced last night. As a preliminary to these meetings, the organization committee composed of business men and farmers, and appointed by the Agricultural Extension bureau, will meet in the county agent's office, Tuesday at 2 p.m., when they will plan the organization work. D. C. Dvoracek, wheat specialist assigned to the eleven northwest counties, will be present at the meeting.

The members of the committee include W. W. Prichard Jr. of this city, O. M. Mandt of Oklee, L. A. Nelson and Alfred Longren, both of this city city Ed. Aubol of St. Hilaire, Emil Larson and Harry Johnson both of Wylie.

By signing 3-year contracts with the government to reduce their wheat acreage, farmers of Pennington county can receive benefit payments on 50,396 bushels of this years crop of wheat.

Other information released to Dr. Andrew Boss at University Farm, St. Paul, in charge of the education program of the wheat adjustment campaign in Minnesota, shows that for the five-year period, 1928 - 1932, Pennington county's yearly average seeded acreage of wheat was 6,820; its average yield per seeded acre was 13.7, and its average yearly production in bushels was 93,330.

Under the government's plan, cooperating farmers will receive two-thirds of their benefit payments within a short time after the contracts are signed. In other words, they will receive an initial payment this fall of 20 cents a bushel on their allotment. The balance, less cost of local administration, will be paid next spring, after their fields have been inspected to see that they reduced their acre-

The business side of farming will be stressed in courses offered at the Northwest School of Agriculture during the coming yesh, which opens October 2 and closes the last of Mar.

The Northwest School is making every effort to give the young men and women of this territory the kind of training that will assist them in mastering the business side of farming.

Clean Out the Rats

Catching rats now may reduce the loss of chicks next spring. We have had good luck in trapping rats by placing a small square of cloth over a steel trap and leaving the trap close to a rat hole. Even if no bait is nsed the rats will often run over the trigger. We have also used red squill mixed with hamburger steak and hava seen no rats in the vicinity for many weeks afterward, indicating the plan is a good one.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Time to Do Culling

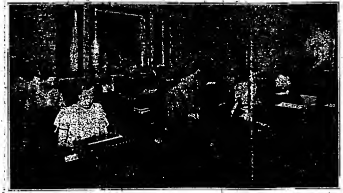
With the laying flock in winter quarters it is a good time to go over the birds carefully to detect any that are out of condition and likely to be diseased. These, if found, should be removed immediately to avoid any general outbreak. Strict attention at feeding time, noting birds that are slow to come off the roosts, and careful handling will usually bring out the birds that should be removed, making room for pullets to be added later in the season.

Washington.—The only woman listed officially as a regular member of the United States Army, Warrant Officer Olive L. Hoskins, is sailing to do another "hitch" in the Philippines.

It will be like going home for her, for it was there that she joined the army more than 25 years ago.

Miss Hoskins was so anxious to go to France during the war that she sent a note to Washington saying that an officer who went over as Pershing's chief clerk wanted her assistance. But it did no good.

Class In Business Training at Northwest School of Agriculture



Girls in attendance at the Northwest School of Agrioulture are offered a wide variety of courses in sewing, cooking, household management, home nursing, business (including book keeping) and music. There are four instructors in the Home Economics and Home Nursing department, each hsving special trsining for the work they are offering. With the completion of the remodeling of Home Economics building this will be one of the best equipped departments of the Northwest School.

Bnsiness training work has always been populnr among the girls. They are taught to use the typewriter efficiently and to master the technique of hookkeeping.

Music has always been given special emphasis at the Northwest School. All in attendance are permitted to join the choruses, glee clubs, and orchestra without educational fees. For those who wish specinl training, private lessons are offered in voice, piano, and violin.

The fall term opens October 2, and closes the last of March. This has been found to be an ideal time for farm boys and girls to be away from home. For further information, write the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston.

INFLUENCE OF DIET ON TEETH

Need Proper Materials for Their Maintenance.

Teeth used to be considered largely a matter of lack—a matter of predestination—decided perhaps by the power of the good fairy who presided over our worldly affairs. While we do not cast aside our belief in the pre-natal influence upon teeth, we do, however, give credit or discredit largely to the diet of the mother. We also do not despair entirely if the teeth come in, in less than the best condition. Instead, we take even more than the usual care to add to the diet, foods which will help to strengthen the structnre of the teeth and which will enable them to resist decay. We also are careful not to feed an oversupply of sugar, which seems to hasten decay of the teeth when eaten in too liberal quantities.

The tooth itself depends npon an adequate amount and a proper balance of the minerals, calcium and phosphorus and upon the vitamins A, O and D. As the first teeth are formed before birth, the diet of the mother must have liberal quantities of these essentials. At the same time, that the new baby's teeth are assured of proper nourishment, the mother's own teeth are protected. It used to be common to hear that the teeth of a new mother had been injured during pregnancy and that more than the usual amount of attention by the dentist was needed after the birth of a child. It is stranga that with this it took us so long to realize that the teeth, like every other part of the body, need nourishment.

Research work in regard to teeth is now going on in a number of laboratories and clinics throughout the country. Scientists disagree in regard to the cause and prevention of teeth decay, but most of them agree that tha teeth must be supplied with proper materials for their construction and maintenance.

For calcium and phosphorus, milk is the best source. For vitamin A we turn to milk, to vegetables, especially carrots, spinach, lettuce and other greens; to fruits, especially oranges, bananas, pineapple, prunes, and to eggs.

For vitamin C, we depend npon citrus fruits, bananas, pineapples, tomatoes, raw cabbage, lettuce, spinach and other greens.

For vitamin D, we go outside tha regular food supply and get it from tha direct rays of the sun, from cod liver oil or from irradiated foods. The irradiation of food by ultra-violet rays from a certain type of lamps is one of the newer departures in the food world. There are several breakfast cereals which are treated in this way and as well, both a white and whola wheat bread—a few slices of which will give us what we need of this vitamin.

One or two dairy companies have been experimenting with feeding irradiated food to animals to produce milk with an adequate supply of vitamin D, especially for infant feeding.

A reader recently wrote me to ask if thera was any danger to health in getting an oversupply of vitamins. This can be answered in the negative. Doctor McCollum, the famous nutritionist of Johns Hopkins university, states that there is no danger of this, so that we can go on comfortably putting in as many vitamins as we can get into our diet in the interests of good teeth and good health of the whole body.

PUT THE MILK PITCHER BACK ON THE TABLE

If you want to practice true economy:

There are two ways of judging economy - how much you get and how little you pay. The money spent for milk cannot buy as great a value in any other food.

Every one will be glad to know that recent investigations by economists and food authorities have shown milk to be the best food investment. They have shown that everyone can afford milk and no one can afford to be without it.

When you put the milk pitcher, filled to the brim with milk' on the table at every meal you assure each one in your family of his quart a day. And here goes news! The family will want less of other foods that take time for preparation. Milk will do more than any other food to keep each member of your family healthy and happy.

A Closer View of the "New Deal"

Now that the "New Deal" has at last reached Thief River Falls, and about forty employers signed agreements to raise wages and cut the hours of employment we will have a better opportunity to judge for ourselves what the outcome may be.

The avowed purpose behind it is to furnish work for more people, and at the same time increase the buying power of the producers, so that they can buy back a larger portion of what they produce. Otherwise surplusses will again pile up, and the factory wheels stop for lack of buyers.

We will soon have an opportunity to see how it works out in our own locality. If wages rise faster than the price of goods, so that those employed can buy more goods with their wages than they did before, it means that we are following out the intent of the "New Deal". But if the opposite becomes true: if prices rise so much faster in proportion than wages that they can buy less, we are in reality worse off than before. This does not necessarily mean that the merchant will make less money. The increase in wages should stimulate buying, and make for a much quicker turnover.

It is interesting to note that in carrying out the provisions of the National Recovery Act, the government is using the very weapon which union labor has been fined and jailed for using in the past. Some twenty years ago the hatters' union was fined a quarter of a million dollars under the Anti-trust laws for boycotting hats without the union label. Now the government is calling on all the people to boycott those who do not sign the NRA agreement to raise wages and cut hours. The old weapon of the unions, declared illegal by the Supreme Court, has come into good standing. Which recalls tha words of the humorist, Bill Nash, that the "Supreme Court follows the ballot box". It evidently makes a lot of difference in who asks for the boycott.

THE VIKING SPIRIT

Some time ago the mining companies in northern Minnesota gave out the statement that they would not pay the last half of their 1932 taxes which comes due before Nov. 1st. It is contended by Range citizens that the mining companies have made plenty of money—by the millions—the last dozen years so that even if things are not moving so well for them at present and has not been good the last two years, they can well afford to pay their taxes at this time.

A conference of municipal, township, and school officers on the range together with Governor Floyd B. Olson was held in the city of Virginia Monday afternoon. The governor questioned the local officials as to expenditures of municipalities today compared with formerly, the amounts spent for relief purposes the number of unemployed who formerly worked in the mines and the outstanding bonds. If there is to be any compromise on mining company taxes it will be a local compromise, said the governor, though he was not suggesting or approving such. "So far as the state of Minnesota is concerned," said Governor Olson, "there will be no compromise, absolutely none. They will pay their taxes 100 cents on the dollar."

Again it is comforting to realize that we have a man in the governor's chair who places human rights above property rights, a man who understands the people, knows their needs and has the courage and ability to fight for them and carry through the plans.—Askov American

REPUBLICAN LEADERS WOULD MAKE CONSERVATION AN ISSUE

G O P Move for State Conservation Council Thinly Vailed as Political Maneuver

The Minnesota republican party leaders are desperate. After 61 years of republican misrule, they abhor the idea that control has slipped away from the special interests into the hands of the majority. They are making every effart to again secure control.

Now under the guise of conservation, the 1934 Minnesota republican campaign has already gotten under way. At the Ryan Hotel in St. Paul on July 14 a thinly vailed political convention was held with the avowed purpose of forming a state-wide Conservation council.

Minnesota is fortunate in having, and having had for a number of years two strong, active conservation organizations, the Minnesota Isaak Walton League and the Minnesota Game Protective League. Both organizations are on the alert to protect the natural resources of the state and to further the cause of conservation.

It is significant that both of these organizations declined flatly to participate in the "convention" although invitations were extended in the name of conservation. It is to the credit of both organizations that they maintained a strict non-political attitude and refused to be a party to such a scurrilous method of attacking the present administration.

Through the clever manipulations the conservation committee of the state American Legion through the biased position of the chairman was brought into the limelight at the political meeting held. It remained for Gerald V. Barron of Cloquet, former Legion commander , to emphatically refute the ill-advised position in which the non-political organzation of former service-men was thus placed. The issue will be fought out on the floor of the Legion convention to be held in St. Cloud and petty politics will be strictly baaned as has been the practice of the Legion since its very inception.

A close-up of the self-designated leaders of this political conservation movement proves interesting.

William T. Cox, deposed Commissioner of Conservation, who lived in Brazil long enough to become inculcated with the dictatorship idea, led the attack with a bitter tirade against Governor Olson, including W. D. Stewart, Director of the Division of Game and Fish, in his virulent remarks. He failed in his attempt to set himself up as Minnesota'a little conservation dictator and now has turned revolutionary with the threat of taking conservation to the polls. In that statement he revealed the entire purpose for the calling of the convention, so-called.

Mr. Cox good man Friday, Dr. H. K. Endres, who is the husband of the woman who served as Cox's ecretary when he was state forester, is the nominal moving spirit presumably of tha new political conservation movement. Merely a puppet in the filthy game of republican politics, he acts for those who lack the courage of appearing in their true light.

The convention would have been incomplete without the presence of Senator "Vin" Weber, Slayton newspaper publisher and editor of a republican scandal sheet in Minnesota. He is a reactionary of the first water and served as chairman of the Senate Conservation investigating committee that gave the department a clean bill after spending weeks of delving into the records with the avowed purpose of giving the state administration a black eye through conservation. What a fiasco this investigation turned out to be is now known to all Minnesotans. A clean bill of health was given to the Department of Conservation, yet a new council to save the cause in Minnesota becomes necessary. Political subterfuge is the only answer.

A former Game and Fish Commissioner, George McCullough, of Minneapolis, who happens to be a restaurant operator in place of a "cement dealer" was prominent at the meeting. Like Mr. Cox, he too, is disgruntled and is sailing in political waters with conservation seemingly as the motive power, while in fact he is motivated by nothing more nor less than political ambitions. With Mr. McCullough, politics is first in his scheme of things, conservation only secondary. Any means to attain an objective is his apparent slogan.

Not a single dollar of hunting and fishing license money has been lost to Minnesota sportsmen since "Bill" Stewart, a successful St. Paul business man, took charge of the game and Fish division. Can the same he said for former republican administrations whose leaders are now so much concerned about conservation?

Minnesota's real sportsmen, the true conservationists of the State, members of the Isaak Walton League and the Minnesota Game Protective League, of independent sportsmens' and conservationists' group, the rank and file of the American Legion will repudiate such craven tactics that the masquaraded with sheep skins and have only ulterior and most sinister motives that should fool no peron who realizes the republican incentive responsible for this "noble" movement.

AUXILIARY NOTES

The regular meeting will be held Tuesday evening, Aug. 8, at 8 p.m. The meeting will be in order for election of delegates to the state convention at St. Cloud.

Reports on the fair and rummage sale will be given and lunch served at the close of the evening. The Girl Scouts and Brownies will leave Sunday about noon for Maple Lake where they will spend the week at the scout cottage with Mesdames Lynde, Matheson and Hanson in charge.

All scouts interested in going must register with Mrs. Lynde before Friday evening Aug. 4th. Several of the girls have already signed up so don't leave this until the last minute.

J. Crawford Francis, now head of tha Francis Shows given him by his father, John Francis, stated in an interview with a Forum reporter last night, that be is glad to he showing in Pennington county, and that he would be glad to come back. "Things are picking up for us," he stated, "we are doing better on our dates and everyone of our fairs has given us 25 to 30 per cent more business than last year."

The Roosevelt Administration is swinging towards the left. By this I mean primarily that the progressive elements represented by Secretaries Ickes, Perkins, and Wallace are steadily gaining influence at the Whita House at the expense of the reactionary and partisan elements personified by Budget Director Douglas and Postmaster-General "Genial" Jim" Farley. That concluson is supported by several events, foremost among them the President's choice of Secretary Ickes to administer the huge $3,300,000,000 public-works program. It had a double significance. Ickes had headed a faction whch demanded that the entire program be launched with the least possible delay, while Douglas was spokesman for those who contended that prosperity was already returning, and that expenditure of the entire sum was unnecessary and wasteful. The view of Ickes prevailed. In the second place, the spending of such a sum obviously offered opportunities for graft, patronage, and favoritism on an enormous scale. It is reported that the agents of a dozen big Tammany contractors had been hanging around for weeks, with greedy eyes and watering mouths. They received their "there is no inside track to a contract.' His thirty years' record as a foe of graft and spoils in Chicago is sufficient assurance that he means precisely what he says, even to those who do not know him. It is a terrible disappointment to the "deservng" ones. As if to dispel any doubts that his ideas were in complete accord with those of his administrator, Mr. Roosevelt made a point of telling reporters that, in considering applications for public-works loans, the administration would be particularly disposed to finance the construction of municipally owned utilities, such as power plants and water works. Of the money advanced, 30 percent will be outright gifts; the remaining 70 percent will bear only 4 percent interest, and may be repaid out of earnings. A sad, sad day for the power trust!

If the National Recovery Administration maintains its present rate of speed, we may be living under a new economic order by Aug. 1. The application of a blanket code, although euphemistically called a "voluntary agreement", not only will he undertaken with all the moral force of a Presidential command, but it will be supported by a campaign designed to arousa mass opinion to wartime fervor. All plans have been made for nationwide radio appeals, campaign posters, public speeches, and other devices employed in the Liberty Loan drives—not a few of which revive unpleasant memories. That the adventure is a perilous one is obvious, but this writer is convinced that there is no alternative except complete abandonment of the attempt to restore order and prosperity in industry. A continuation of the rising price curve, unaccompanied by any rise in purchasing power adequate to support it, could only end in a disastrous collapse of prices and a devastating curtailment of production. Indeed it has already resulted in a minor collapse of stock and commodity prices. Furthermore, it will take months to work out codes for individual industries, and it is manifestly unfair to require some industries to conform to the codes approved for them while others indulge in an orgy of speculative production at depression wages and hours. Indeed, it is a question whether industry can surviva half law-abiding and half anrchist. The Administration's problem has been intensely aggravated by the attituda of certain large industries, notably steel, which, having learned nothing from the depression, have seen in the a chance to seize new spoils and recover old ones. Only an industry dominated by the traditions of Frick, Gary and Morgan would perceive in the present sitution an opportunity to obtain government sanction for company unions, reinstatement of the outlawed "Pittsburgh plus" system, and a ban against devices reducing production costs. You can't reason with a hog.

* * * * *

Most of the criticism of the Recovery Administration has impressed me as being incredibly petty and mean. The critics are somewhat in the position of saying: "Produce the millennium on this spot at two-thirty goes your head." I have never been accused of lacking a critical temperament, but when I see men and women of unimpeachable sincerity working eighteen to twenty hours a day in a desperate effort to save all our economic lives, I cnnot stand off and snipe. It is a curious fact that much of this nagging has come from so-called liberals and "friends of labor", altho liberals and labor are in the saddle at recovery headquarters to a degree that would have seemed impossible and even preposterous three months ago. I venture to say that I am as well informed concerning what goes on inside that the ground, and I do not hestate to declare that its policies up to the present have been overwhelmingly influenced by the views of Donald Richberg, Alexander Sachs, Edward Mc Grady, Leo Wolman and Frances Perkins. If liberals and labor cannot trust them, who the devil can they trust? Something of the same sort might also be said of the criticisms of the Roosevelt Administraton at large. Here, as if in answer to the liberals' prayer, we are confronted with a program which represents, in very large part the hopes, asperations, and labors of such men as Justice Brandeis; Senators Norris, Wagner, and LaFollette; Joseph B. Eastman, Harold Ickes, Frances Perkins, and tion which, when it was unable to obtain Felix Frankfurter's personal tions in filling nearly half a dozen of the most important legal posts in the government, And still some of the libenals asen't satisfied. What do they want?

I would be one of the last to assert that there is nothing to criticize in the adminstration's policies. The situation produced by the "economy" movement, for example, is little short of a national disgrace.

What could he more absurd than the miserly attempt to save a few paltry thousands a year by wrecking the staff or a great scientific institution, the Bureau of Standards, whose researches have saved millions a year for industry? The whole tragic farce is a hangover from the panicky days when Ogden Mills and a majority of the newspapers were clamoring for "a balanced budget"— as if a really balanced budget were possible in such times as these! What is needed is not so much a balanced budget as a balanced outlook.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

Young children, as a rule, have a wonderful and well-developed sense of balance. They can slip and almost fall and regain their equilibrium without a tremor or the feeling of having done anything unusual. They bava had a wide experience in their young lives, whereby they have acquired their power of equilibrium. Every mother knows of the constant tumbles the wee tots bava when they are learning to walk. They are so little and so short thet they have no heavy falls or of a great height unless they tumble down staira or off of some high place. At first the falls these small folk heve are almost equal to the number of steps they take. So determined to conquer are they that after a few years they may be said to ba masters of equilibrium. They ere practically fearless.

It is at this stage that parents and grandparents often make the mistake of instilling the element of fear in the children. With their older yeara and greater stature, falls are not of small significance to these adults. They hold their breath as they watch their children climb tall trees, and often call out words of warning when in reality the youngsters are as secure as if on terra firma. They plant their feet well on limbs or in crotches of branchea and revel in the feeling of freedom and elevation above the green grass many yards below. They look out over the heads of their elders or over the roof of garaga or barn and get the exhilaration of adults who sit securely in airplanes when they take flights from aviation fields.

Sure-Footed Safety.

This ability of children to keep their balance and to climb will stand them in good stead when they grow older, provided they do not get so many warnings that they imbibe the spirit of fear which will hamper them later on. There is no time in one's lifa when to be sure-footed is more prized than adult years. The ability to grip the ground or the floor with the feet ia valuable. To walk fearlessly over a plank across a stream, to tread the uncertain deck of a steamer plowing through a storm and remain well balanced is an enviable thing. To climb to mountain heights over rocky crags and icy surfaces is an accomplishment which only the sure-footed can enjoy. The children who continued to exercise their power of equilibrium during their growing yeare and have tha sense well developed are in thia favored group.

Elsberg "Stands Pat" on Distribution of Federal Funds to All Parts of the State

N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner is "standing pat" on his plan to distribute Minnesota's $10,000,000 of Federal highway funds in all parts of the state.

Faced with demands from Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth for more than a third of all the Federal money, Commissioner Elsberg told them plainly that he will allot them $1,500,000 for immediate work and will give them mora assistance next year, but that he will not taka money allotted to the smaller communities and rural districts and turn it over to the three big cities.

This statement brought a threat that the cities would hold up the entire state program if possible in order to get a guarantee that they will be given at least 35 per cent of Minnesota's total allotment. Protests were immediately made to Washington officials and to Governor Olson, demanding that this amount of money, approximately $3,7000,000 be set aside for the three big cities. This would mean $2,200,000 less for the remainder of the state than would be received under Elsberg's plan.

Aroused by this action, the state Association of County Commissioners and the Minnesota Good Roads Association sent the following telegram to Washington:

Hon. H. C. Wallace,
U. S. Secretary of Agriculture
Washington, D. C.

We believe it would be extremely unfortunete if any local differences of opinion over the allocation of Minnesota's allotment of national recovery highway funds are permitted to deley approvel of general program as submitted to Department of Agriculture. This state as a whole wishes work to be started as quickly as possible: Any local disagreements can be settled later. Minnesota has very short construction season and any delay now will greatly lessen effectiveness of highway program in relieving unemployment. We sincerely request earliest possible approval of preliminary statement of allocation as submitted.

Minnesota Good Roads Association,
James C. Kelly, Secretary.
State Association of County Commissioners of Minnesota, J. A. McLean, secretary.

Commissioner Elsberg, explaining his ellotment of the funds, made this statement;

"Our allocation of the $10,000,000 Federal aid fund was made in accordance with the principles and regulations laid down by the Federal government.

"Briefly, these regulations requira the Highway department to divide the money among at least 75 per cent of Minnesota's 87 counties. They follow the principle that a large number of small projects in all parts of tha statte are desired, rather than tha centralization of large expenditures in a few centers.

"Careful consideration was given to the unemployment problem. St. Paul Minneapolis and Duluth hava serious difficulties but they are not tha only places in Minnesota with serious unemployment. All over the state tha smaller cities and villages and the counties have urgent problems of local relief. Furthermore, the larger cities receive Federal funds from other sources than this.

"The highway depertment must look at the situation from a statewide viewpoint. We heve the greatest sympathy for the difficulties of the three largest cities, and wish to help them as much as posible.

We believe that the $1,500,009 which ha been allotted to them is approximstely all the money they can efficiently spend this year on streets eligible to receive this Federal aid. Next year we hope to be able to give them additional assistance from state funds which ere not availeble this year or from any increase in the Federal allotment to the state.

"If the three cities can show us that they really need $3,500,000 for proper use on state trunk routes in their limits, wa will try to give them a large pert of it if not all. Let them take the $1,500,000 now end get work started without more delay. Then them more help next year. If the cities show us the necessity and we will giva them more help next year. If the cities are sincerely interested in getting men to work at the earliest moment, they will stop fighting and co-operate.

IT PAYS TO CONTROL LICE AND MANGE ON YOUR HOGS

Mange and lice cause large losses in hogs by lowering the vitality of the animals, increasing the feed necessary to make gains, and, particulsrly in the case of mange, often roughening the skin to the extent that the hogs will ba discounted on the market.

H. G. Zavorel, extension livestock specialist, University Farm, St. Paul, says thet either lice or mange may be reedily controlled by any of several treatments, which may be applied by dipping, spraying, the use of concrete or wooden wallows or by hand application. Hog oilers end rubbing posts are not as effective for treating either lice or mange, but properly used will tend to lessen the spread of either, ha says.

Among tha meterials that may ba used are several commercial dips, which should be used according to directions. A lime sulphur dip is the most effective treatment for mange. Coal tar creosote dips or crude oil ara also excellent. Mr. Zavoral has prepared a circular giving these treatments in detail, and anyone interested may have a copy free by writing tha Agricultural Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul.

POTATO GROWERS GET A TIP ON HARVEST DEALS

Minnesota potato growers are cautioned by specialists at University Farm, St. Peul, to be careful about signing contracts to market their potatoes when harvested. They should be sure that they are dealing with licensed wholesale buyers. All buyers in this state must have both federal and state licences. Irresponsible buyers might fail to keep their contracts in case the contract price should be higher than the market price.

Another consideration to be kept in mind is that tha merket price may be higher then the contract price at the time for delivery, and in that casa the grower would be the loser becausa he would have to sell at the contract price.

Reports from some parts of tha state indicate that the farmers are being offered contracts to market their potatoes when harvested.

Home Project

R. J. Christgau, essistant animal husbandman and athletic coach at the Northwest School and Station, is spending the week in Pennington and Red Lake counties inspecting tha home project work that is being carried on during the summer by the Northwest School students. As a part of the requirements for graduation, all students must complete a minimum number of projects to supplement tha classroom work. Thus, little schools of agriculture and home economica are scattered thruout Northwestern Minnesota counties.

The following Pennington and Red Lake county students, together with tha project work they ara carrying on will ba inspected by Mr. Christgau during the week: Olaf Dahlen, Erie, sheep production; Otto Omlid, Erie, farm shop; Morris Engelstad, Thief River Falls, potato production; Robert Toomey, Thief River Falls, turkey production; Laura Hansen, Thief River Falls, baking, dressmaking and thrift; Pearl Hansen, Thief River Falls, canning fruits and vegetables, dress-making, meal preparation and thrift; Glenn Tasa, Trail, potato production; Clarenca Weckworth, Hezel, dairy herd management; Nora Howard, Goodridge, canning fruist and vegetables, baking, dressmaking, and thrift; Rosa Naplin, Wylie, dressmaking and thrift; and Oscar Larson, Crookston, (Red Lake county), plant identification.

While in this community, Professor Christgau, who is recognized as an authority on enimal husbandry, will be pleased to be of service to the livestock producers.

Diesel Hearing

brought another round of applausa witb, "I'm very much in favor of a Diesel. If you get a highline in here, it will be hard to get rid of. I think that I have contacted most of the ordinary people, and I know that they are in favor of a new engine all the way thru."

R. M. Aalbu, saying that if the city is to consider tying up with the highline, they should know just what kind of people they are dealing with. He cited outright steals of puhlic and private property by the power companies. Stating that America leads the world in a number of things, he said that one of the things are tha racketeers, and the power companies are the peers of the rscketeers.

A. E. Mattson of the Times, stated that he believed the council could decide the issue and that it might he best to buy an engine.

Several others spoke in favor of buying an engine, among them Severn Brandon, W. K. Hoefer, S. Brandvold, Gust Hanson, Severt Benson and H. H. Arhart.

Alf Borry told the council that it would be a mstake to let the highline huild into the city, hut stated that most of the argument had developed from tha council's use of specifications drawn up hy Fairhanks-Morse company. Alderman Harris had denied this coatention earlier in the evening, stating that Ole Legvold, Superintendent of the Water and Light department had prepared tba specifications, and that figures had heen compiled by P. G. Peterson, the city clerk.

During the last three days of the fair, a total of $490 in cash prizes were given away, $150 on Thursday, $150 on Friday, and $190 on Saturday, with three prizes given away the first two days, and four on the last day.

STATE TO PAY $7 PER TON FOR HAY

Because of the threatened starvation or livestock in many of the western counties of Minnesota unless the draught stricken farmers are able to secure hay, the state Executive Council has proclaimed that an emergency exists, and steps will be taken to secure all the hay possible, it was stated by Geo. H. Lund of the Department of Agriculture, Dairy and Food, who was in Thief River Falls this morning to make arrangements. This includes purchase of hay at seven dollars per ton, baled and delivered at the nearest railway station.

Hay stumpage on all state owned and tax delinquent land will be utilized, and any farmer who wishes to cut hay on these lands may get the rigth by seeing County Attorney Paul Lundgren. He will be paid for this hay at the rate of seven dollars per ton. Because of the emergency, all hay on state owned lands that is not needed by the farmer, must be sold to the state at the above price, Mr. Lund says.

Anyone having hay for sale can sell it to the state by getting in touch with the following indiviuals;—

County Agent R. M. Douglass; Game Warden, W. H. Quist; Sec'y of Fair Ass'n, R. J. Lund; Mngr. L O L, B. O. Norby; County Att'y Paul A. Lundgren; County Sheriff, O. L. Ihle, Co. Commissioners, Andrew Ness and H. W. Kinghorn, all of Thief River Falls; Co. Com. O. M. Mandt, Oklee; Co. Com. O. C. Lee, Erie; Co. Com. Paul Roy, St. Hilaire; Pres. of the Farm Bureau, L. A. Nelson, Thief River Falls.

Northwest School Offering Instruction in Shop Practice

Gas motors, farm mechanics, blacksmithing, carpentry, field machinery and mechanical drawing are among the courses to be offered by the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the Northwest School of Agriculture during the coming year.

Work in gas motors will include principles of construction and handling of stationary and traction gasoline engines including timing, ignition, starting and lighting systems, carburetion, cooling and lubrication. Practical work will also be given in overhauling and repairing automobiles and tractors. Work in soldering, pipe fitting, babbitting and bearing scraping, together with rope work, belt lacing and harness repairing will be given in the course in Farm Mechanics.

Students in blacksmithing will be required to familiarize themselves with operations necessary for blacksmith repair work on the farm. Carpentry work includes training in the construction of the foundation, framing, stair and rafter cutting, and selection of materials and concrete work.

S. A. Anderson, who graduated from the University of Illinois in 1928, and was granted a Master's degree in 1931, will have charge of the work in motors, gas engines, and field machinery, while A. M. Foker, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, will direct the work in blacksmithig, carpentry, farm mechanics and mechanical drawing.

The fall term will open October 2.

Payment of $14,775 in Bonds Thirty Days Before Maturity Leaves City Cash at $40,700

The monthly report for July, submitted by City Clerk P. G. Pederson to the city council Tuesday night, revealed a total of $40,700 in cash on hand in the treasury. The balance would have been higher, $14,775 having been paid, thirty days prior to maturity on electric light bonds due Sept. 1.

Mr. Pederson pointed out that a total of $38,000 in bonded indebtness had been met this year, leaving a total of $6,000 yet to be paid on electric light bonds which will clean up the bulk of indebtness. Bonds that have been retired include $15,000 in waterworks, $11,000 paving bonds, and $12,000 in electric light bonds. In each case they were paid thirty days prior to maturity.

The receipts for July, $23,575.25, compare favorably with the disbursements of $23,005.28.

Blaze Does Big Damage to E. Griebstein House On Horace Last Night

Fire broke out on the front porch of the Darby R. Anderson home, 511 Horace avenue,N., last night at 11:45 o'clock, and spread thru the interior of the house before it was brought under control by the fire department. Of unknown origin, the fire destroyed the front section of the building and ruined the entire furnishings. The house is owned by Emil Griebstein who recides adjacent to it on the south side. He stated last night that it was partly covered by insurance.

Rusell Anderson, brother of Darby Anderson was the only person in the house at the time of te blaze. Sleeping on the porch, he awoke to discover the flames and ran out shouting "Fire!" Mr. Griebstein woke up and turned in the alarm immediately.

In St. Cloud at the time of the fire, Mr .Anderson was notified last night and arrived in this city today.

Scouts Sell Themselves to Public With Demonstrations And Big Outdoor Camp at Fair

That the Boy Scout outdoor exhibit at the Pennington county fair should be an annual feature of the exposition, is the opinion of both fair officials and the public whose ideas of scouting were clarified by the exhibitions of the 35 boys participating.

Launched in June, the project consisted of a fenced in area where the scouts pitched their tents, built fireplaces, and erected a bridge and signal tower, all done under the supervision of Scoutmaster Frank LaFleur.

After a parade on the city's streets, Wednesday, the scouts went into camp, and commenced their demonstrations that included fire-building by friction, fire by flint and steel, signalling and knot tying. In the afternoons the boys performed it before the grandstand crowds. Scoutmaster L. S. Hess was in direct charge of the camp, where the group slept in their tents each night of the fair, and prepared their own meals, living in true outdoor fashion.

The boys are to be complimented on the way they conducted themselves when on the grounds, and for the services they rendered as messengers at the entrance gate and at the secretary's office.

"The Last Mile" is Featured Lyceum Film Sunday Monday

"The Last Mile", at the Lyceum Suday and Monday and Monday, starring Preston Foster and Howard Philips, is the season's dramatic thunderbolt, picturing in all its intensity, the fear and courage of men who are about to take that last walk from the death cell to the electric chair.

The scene of the play is in the "Tombs", and the directors have spared no efforts in duplicating the grim finality of that "last mile." Not since the "Big House" has a more dramatic prison picture been produced.

"Trailing the Killer" with mountain lions, snarling wolves, deadly rattlers, and relentless marauders, will be the attraction on Tuesday and Wednesday. Both pictures are Fox Film presentations.

The Carnera-Sharkey fight pictures will be shown on Thursday and Friday, Aug. 17 and 18, in addition to the regular program, with no advance in prices.

CROP YIELDS BETTER THAN EXPECTED REPORTS STATE

Reports coming in on yields in this vicinity, are to the effect that returns will be better than was expected thirty days ago.

Wheat is reported as yielding an average of twenty bushels to the acre and oats about 25 to 30 bushels to the acre.

North Dakota points are also reporting yields on the average better than had been anticipated.

Stabbing

"Pat done cut me with a knife," said a colored woman to Chief A. B. Stenberg out at the fairgrounds Saturday, the last night of the Pennington county fair.

"Pat" certainly had cut his big, dark wife—right in the fleshy part of the back. Just a little family quarrel. Both of them were performers in the "Georgia Minstrel Show" and had decided to put on an unscheduled act, the plot of which is not known. The ending was comparatively happy, tho. Doctors patched up the stabbing victim and sent her on with the show which left Sunday morning for Fargo.

ROCKSBURY 4-H CLUB MAKES GOOD SHOWING AT THE FAIR

The Rocksbury 4-H club was well represented at the Pennington County Fair. In the calf project the five highest were: LaVerne Anderson, Raymond Oen, Pearl Hansen and Earl Engelstad all of Rocksbury, and Raca Woolson of Silverton. Three of these winners will receive trips to the State Fair. In the sewing project, Florence Hansen won first in second year sewing and Violet Anderson won second. In third year sewing, Pearl Hansen won second . In Canning II, Ruby Engelstad won second. The 4-H club also had a booth at the fair.

The Rocksbury Community Club had a party at the fair grounds in the Agricultural building on Saturday evening. A program was given after which ice cream and cake was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Arne, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Houske and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Finstad spent Sunday afternoon at the C. E. Oien home.

WHEAT OFFICIAL EXPLAINS PLAN

Stating that the world carry-over of wheat was close to 360,000,000 bushels, D. C. Voracek, federal wheat specialist, explained the need for curtailment of production, and showed how it would be carried out in practice before a meeting of the temporary county wheat committee Saturday in the Legion club rooms.

Two-thirds of the bonus of thirty cents per bushel will be paid the farmer this fall when he signs his agreement to cut production, and the remainder will be paid next spring on proof that the agreement has been lived up to. The plan will be explained further at a series of township meetings, after which farmers will be given an opportunity to sign the agreements.

The allotment for each farmer will be based on the average of his wheat crops for the past three years, and the percentage that he must agree to cut will be announced on August 24. The aim of the plan, he said will be to raise the purchasing power of the farmer.

According to the average yield in Penington county during the past three years, about $12,000 will be paid out to wheat growers if they all sign acreage reduction agreements.

Bag Gone, Money Gone Where? No One Knows

A bag of money containing $233.50 given to Leon J. Kaliher of the Union State bank for safe keeping by the Trinity Ladies aid society at the fair grounds last Saturday night, disappeared in some inexplicable manner between the fairground's office of R. J. Lund and the bank. Mr. Kaliher believed that the money may have been taken from the office by some strangers, while he was there but some of the fair officials were of the opinion that the money might have been dropped between the dining hall and Mr. Kaliher's car.

Mr. Kaliher made good the amount and the following day the money bag containing three checks and no cash was found on Fourth st. at Knight av. by Lloyd Lund, who turned it in at the bank.

Last Rites Friday at 2:00 P. M. in Trinity Church For Mrs. Sverre Loveid

Altho she had been ill for several months, the death of Mrs. Sverre Loveid at the home of her father, Lars Backe, 417 Atlantic avenue north, came as a shock to her many friends in this city, where she spent more than half of her life.

Born in Marshall county, September 8, 1888, Mrs. Clara Backe Loveid came to this city with her parents in 1891. She attended the local schools and Lincoln highschool, later continuing her education at Red Wing seminary. Besides teaching in both the city and rural schools of the community, she was city librarian, and took an active part in church activities.

In 1913 she was married to Sverre Loveid and moved to Middle River, living there until 1929, when they went to Los Angeles. Mrs. Loveid was often called upon as a soloist in Los Angeles churches and was an active member of various musical clubs, dramatic societies and choirs. She was also a member of the Legion Auxiliary.

Due to the ill health of her eldeat son she moved to Arizona last winter, staying there until a few months ago.

Beides her husband and three children, Ruth, Norman and Paul, those left to mourn her departure are her father, Lars Backe, her sister, Mrs. Gaston Ward and her brother, Bertel Backe of Los Angeses.

The last rites for Mrs. Loveid will be conducted Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Trinity Lutheran church, the Rev. R. M. Fjelstad officiating. Interment will be made in Sorenson cemetery.

The monthly meeting of the Rocksbury Community Club will be held on Saturday evening.

Reporter Gets "Low-down" Thru Back Door When Council Holds Secret Diesel Session

Before the city council turned into the home stretch to make the final decision on a Diesel enine, Tuesday night, the councilmen cleared out the grandstand gallery of interested observers and representatives of the press. After the front door of the council chambers had been locked and the shades drawn, the members went into a secret session. They evidently forgot that the near-by back door was open and a snoopy Forum reporter on the job. A discussion of the relative merits of the various Diesel engines followed. The differences of the two-cycle and the four-cycle units came up and they decided to call in a representative of the former type. President Porter went to the door and called for a volunteer from the group of salesmen seated outside. H. N. Anderson of the Fairbanks-Morse company of St. Paul, responded and was escorted to the privy council which plied him with questions.

"Will a two-cycle engine burn as cheap a fuel as the four-cycle," queried Alderman Harris.

"Absolutely, there is no reason why a two-cycle engine should not run just as cheaply," replied Mr. Anderson, "They have identical systems of ignition and fuel pump."

After the saleaman had been dismissed, the councilmen continued their discussion which finally simmered down to the advisibility of taking a trial ballot, as was done earlier in the year to decide on the auditorium architect.

City Attorney H. O. Berve tore up slips of paper and then counted them, saying, "Well let's see how many there are so no one votes twice— 1, 2, 3, 4, 5." Only five aldermen were present, Carl B. Larson being out of town.

The individual votes were duly made and then collected by Mr. Berve who read them off, to be tallied by the city clerk, Mr. Peterson. Fairbanks-Morse company scored four and Norberg one.

"Well," said Algot Johnson, "Do you want to vote again?"

The councilmen evidently did, because Mr. Berve again tore up more slips of paper.

This time the balloting showed four votes for Fairbanks-Morse, and McIntosh-Seymour in the running with one vote.

Everyone laughed and someone bet that the Bush-Sulzer would score on the next vote, which it did, Fairbanks-Morse drawing its regular four votes.

Not satisfied, the council decided to take one more ballot to see if a unanimous opinion could be reached. The vote was five for Fairbanks-Morse and the council stood united.

A tentative resolution was drawn up and after conferring with Mr. Anderson who had been called in again, the council inserted a clause that would allow the city to accept the cash bid of $53,990 by July 15th 1934. The resolution was formally voted on and passed unanimously.

"Now we ought to get a little rest." said Paul Harris.

"Who's going up my way?" asked Christ Porter.

When the remark was made that "Maybe we'd better go out thru the alley." the Forum reporter scrammed and turned up at the front door, looking dumb, with many foolish questions to ask the councilmen.

COUNCIL AWARDS DIESEL CONTRACT

Fairbanks-Morse Company Has Lowest of Six Bids-- Awarded Contract

The Diesel controversy is settled—at least for the present. After letting the contract to Fairbanks-Morse Company of St. Paul, for a new 1050 horsepower Diesel engine at the meeting Tuesday night, the city council expectantly awaits Mayor E. L. Tungseth's action on the resolution which he may sign or veto four days after its passage. The mayor has twice vetoed the council's resolution to advertise for bids on a Diesel, stating that the city should endeavor to "get thru another year or two until financial conditions improve.

The $56,984 bid of the Fairbanks-Morse company, was the lowest of the six original bids submitted, and includes the engine with circulating pump, air intake, alarm gauge panel, direct connected exciter, and a water pump valued at $1,405.

Drawn up for payment on an earnings basis, the cotract gives the city the right to make a full ettlement at any time on or before July 15, 1934, by paying the cash price of $53,990 less any installments which may have been paid with accrued interest.

Only the excess of the earnings of the electric light and power plant, will be pledged for payment of the engine, deductions being made for all costs of maintainance of the electric light and water plant, such as labor, insurance, fuel, distribution system, etc. A sufficient amount is also reserved by the city to pay for plant bonds as they come due, with the earnings plan arranged over a period of six years.

Twelve equal consecutive monthly payments of $600.00 each are to be made during each year of 1934 and 1935. Twelve payments of $100 each are called for in 1935, and twelve payments of $1500 in 1937. In 1938, eleven payments of $2,000 will be made, and one final sum of $1,384 will be paid in 1939.

All payments will draw interest at the rate of six per cent, payable semiannually on July 15, and January 15.

H. C. Anderson and M. C. Roy, representing the Fairbanks-Morse company, assured the council that installation of the engine could be completed by November 30.

A resolution was submitted and passed authorizing the payment of $609.39 at cost plus five per cent, to Bert Norby for the walls, floor, and moving of the boiler, of the old auditorium. The payroll of the job totalled $507.25.

An application of the Park Hotel for an on-sale beer license was referred to the chief of police and the license committee.

The removal of the building next to the Squaw Point bridge on Eighth street, was referred to the fire marshal.

AGED MAN DIES AFTER INJURIES

Injured severely, either by accident or intention, Nels Samuelson, 75 years, died yesterday at 6 P. M. at a local hospital, without regaining consciousness since he was found lying on Trunk Highway No. 33, one-half mile west of the fairgrounds last Sunday at 5:20 A. M.

Local police have advanced two theories: the aged man, walking homeward to his place west of the fiargrounds, was either struck by a hit-and-run driver, or waylaid by thugs.

The position of the body, feet in the center of the road and head towards the ditch, substantiate the first theory. The two head injuries, one in back of the left ear, and one on top of the head, point to criminal intentions. A deep hole in the left elbow, resembling a bullet wound, was probed by the doctor in charge, but no bullet was found. A bundle of keys and a pocketbook containing 61 cents were found on his person.

The injured man was discovered at 5:20 A. M. by V. M. Higinbotham of Red Lake Falls, presumably a short time after the mishap. Patrolman Knadle and Lamberson were notified and brought Samuelson to a local hospital.

He is survived by a daughter and two sons, living here, and a son in Chicago.

Police are working this week on a theory that may disclose the parties guilty of the mishap, but refuse to give any information.

A Logical Appointment

The most important piece of legislation affecting this section of the state that was passed by the last session of the legislture was undoubtedly the bill colling for liquidation of the Rural Credit department holdings. Two-thirds of these holdings are in the Northwestern portion of the state, and several thousand farmers in this territory have a vital interest in the policies that will be adopted.

In the appointment of T. H. Arens to the post of Conservator, Governor Olson selected a man of ability, who con be relied upon to handle the interests of the state as well as the farmers in a fair and copable manner. Three assistants are now to be appointed by Mr. Arens to aid him in carrying out his difficult work, and it is hoped that in selecting these men, this section of the state will be given the representation it is entitled to.

No one is better qualified, both by ability and experience, to represent Northwestern Minnesota on the new board than Arthur Tnnem of this city, and we are pleased to hear that he is one of those being given favorable cosideration. His appointment would be logical from any angle it is considered, and the Forum joins with his many friends in hoping that he will be one of those selected to help stear the department through the difficulties ahead.

Patronizing the "Cocosnut Cow."

A recent report on the increased sale of oleomargarine during the past year is not very flattering to the dairy products producing sections of the country. The report shows that the sale of oleo in June 1933 was forty-two per cent higher than in June 1932, with most of the increase coming from the areas where dairy products are produced.

If te farmer patronizes the "Coconut Cow" he can hardly expect to get the full support of city consumers in his efforts to increase the use of dairy products. And at the sams time he is cheating himself of the health-giving effects that come from the use of butter and milk.

By the way, when will that "deflated dollar" become more plentiful? No NRA or other pious device or hope will bring prosperity to stay until dollars become easier to get.

The government borrows $850,000,000 with wonderful ease, and that is called prosperity. It is nothing of the kind. Bonds are bought eagerly by those that do not want to put their money in payrolls or businese enterprises. After the taxpayers have paid interest on those bonds for ten or twenty years, they will know that a debt is a debt.

To go off the gold basis, and then make the dollars as scarce as diamonds, saying to the little employer, "You go ahead and make a heaven on earth," may turn out to be good magic but it is puzzling to many.

If the government had issued and distributed $850,000,000 worth of perfectly good, nice new green dollars "off the gold," putting that amount into circulation instead of going out and borrowing $850,000,000 and cutting down the available cash supply, it would have shown inteligence.

Why load millions a year more on the taxpayers, discouraging business, when you could pay your bills with your own money and save the interest?

Is the government's name and guarantee any better on a yellow bond than it would be on a piece of green paper? —Arthur Brisbane

GENTLEMEN PREFER PROFITS

(Condensed from an editorial in the Nation for August 2.)

The difficulties of building a planned economy on foundations of individualism, competition, and the acquisitive instincts are emerging day by day to create dismay in the hearts of the officials who have undertaken the herculean job. Gentlemen, it seems, prefer profit—even to general recovery. They were, it is true, promised profits, but the Administration expected these to follow, not precede, the reemployment of labor and the raising of purchasing power. Since inflaton was destined to cut the buying power of the dollar and prices were certain to raise, it was considered arithmetically self-evident that people would have to be paid proportionately more dollsrs to enable them to even buy the little they had been buying—let alone increasing their purchases sufficiently to create prosperity. All this was told to the industrialists of the country by the President, and the National Recovery Act was passed for the single announced purpose of putting men and women to work at wages that would buy enough things to return—eventually—a profit to the concerns which made and distributed them. Most of the industrialists seemed to understand this simple equation. They said: "Sure, we want to employ more men and we know wages must go up and we'll be tickled to death if President Roosevelt will make everybody obey the same rules—pay the same wages and work their help the same hours. And it's a good idea for the government to spend $3,300,000,000 on public works especially if the contracts go to private business."

And so, swiftly and inevitably confidence increased and bred wide spread activity. The stock marke started its spectacular climb. Production mounted. Each day produced a crop of optimistic news reports of men reemployed and factories reopened; wage increases were reported. And prices began to rise. From June 10 to July 8 wholesale commodity prices rose 5 per cent. In June they had increased 3 and one half per cent, showing, for the firs time since 1929, an increase over th corresponding month of the previou year. Dun's index number for July 1, 1933, was 19.04 per cent above th level of July 1, 1932.

But meanwhile another by-product of optimism began to be evident. Industry, now convalescent, lost much of its former willingness to submit t the vigorous treatment prescribe administered under government control. Several great industries submitted codes promptly, and one, th cotton-textile code, was accepted But others hung back, meanwhile piling up production at existing lo costs in expectation of orders at higher prices later on. Undoubtedl most of these industries counted upon the effects of of the recovery act—th higher wages and wider employment to provide these orders. But as individuals, again fairly rugged, they were determined to gain what advantage they could by delaying their own higher costs and cashing in as handsomely as possible on the increased purchasing power to be created by industry as a whole. This may seem reprehensible, but bueiness is business. Let him who still hopes for the social regeneration of the capitalist system cast the first stone.

As a matter of fact it has already been cast. The crisis created by rising prices and increased production and the delay in submitting codes has become so acute that every member of the Administration concerned with the recovery program has taken a shot at the offenders against the plan. President Roosevelt, Secretary Perkins, Recovery Administrator Johnson, Mr. McGrady, all have made statements attacking the saboteurs of recovery. The result of this alarm was a blanket emergency code recently announced—an agreement to be entered into by individual employers and the President to bridge the gape betweent the perilous present and the ultimate acceptance of detailed codes in each industry. The "voluntary agreement" is to be put over by high-pressure publicity methods based upon a nationwide patriotic appeal.

So this is where we stand at the present moment. In order to induce American industry to preserve its existence and the system under which it operates, the Government of the United States must embark upon a national drive. Minute men must rush around from Rotary Club to Chamber of Commerce dinning into the eara of business men the patriotic duty of saving their own skins. And why is this preposterous nonsence necessary? Becouse the exuberance of a few months of increased activity, largely speculative has induced so many industrialists to sabotage the recovery program that the program itself is in imminent danger of collapsing into ruins and corrying with it the gains of the last few weeks and the hope of future improvement.

But each day gives to our rulers valuable if expensive lessons in social and economic realities. Business will not voluntarily cooperate; each industry, each concern will grab whatever advantage it can get without regard for the whole. Labor will receive the least industry can possibly pay no matter what this does to general "purchasing power." Cooperation will work only if it is enforced by the government. A patriotic appeal may be effective as long as the emergency is acute and business is worried, but an indutrial system cannot run on patriotism. Already we have seen a vast government machine created for the purpose of instructing, cajoling, and exhorting our capitalist economy to stay alive. Even a few weeks' operation is enough to convince us that it will be able to succeed only through the exercise of force. That force is the beginning of fascism seems clear. The only possible alternative would be straight socialization. For the government to take over and operate for the benefit of the people the steel and coal and oil and other great industries would be almost as simple as to act as a combination of policeman and wet nurse. And we are convinced that it would provide the only road to an effective economic plan.

WHAT'S KNOWN ABOUT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Warm weather is the time when the much-dreaded infantile paralysis is most prevalient, according to Dr. J. P. Leake, senior surgeon, U. S. Public Health Service, although it is with us all the time. If there is to be an epidemic, it can usually be told by the first of August. Dr. Leake's statement is passed along to Minnesota parents by Mrs. Belle O. Fish, child development specialist of the home demonstration staff, University Farm, St. Paul.

"Infantile paralysis" is not the real name, because paralysis does not always result and adults as well as children may have it. Correctly, it is called poliomyelitis or "polio" with a short "n". This word is derived from two Greek words and means inflammation in the gray part of the marrow or spinal cord. Thus muscular paralysis, a result of the disease and not the disease itself.

Dr. Leake says that most of the infections of this disease do not show "infantile paralysis" at all, but a much milder illness which protects against the dreaded paralytic forms of the disease. A child who has passed through one of these mild attacks, is immune from crippling from this cause. Even a doctor cannot tell these mild cases without a laboratory test. However, with one or two exceptions, there is no infection disease which kills so quickly, or whose after-effects are so much feared.

Dr. Leake says it is almost useless to give a list of symptoms because of great variation. Fever is the most common, so any child with a fever at this time of year should be kept quiet in bed. Headache, vomiting, drowsiness, and irritability are also often noticed. A physician should be summoned.

How is the disease spread? By people, not things. There have been a few instances of transmissio by milk, but not as many as diphtheria or scarlet fever. It usually takes 7 to 14 days after exposure for "polio" to show itself. Keeping children out of crowds in hot weather and from too strenuous exercise and fatigue are good precautionary methods.

WHEAT FARMERS NEED NOT PAY FOR "PAPERS"

Farmers who want to apply for allottment benifits under the Government's new wheat adjustment program, do not need to pay anyone for making out the papers. Dr. Andrew Boss, University Farm, St. Paul, who is in charge of the educotional work of the wheat adjustment program for Minnesota, has received word from the Agricultural Adjustment Administraton in Washington that unauthorized promoters in the wheat belt are affering to help farmers apply for benefits and are asking 10 per cent commission for the work.

Dr. Boss says no farmer should pay anything for having his application made out. County agents, or special agents appointed temporarily, will organize the farmers in each county giving them full information about the wheat plan, notifying them when it is time to apply for contracts and helping them fix up their applications without charge.

The racket referred to has been disrovered in Kansas, but may spread into this state and Dr. Boss urges farmers to report any persons who come to them with propositions asking pay for assisting in signing up for the wheat payments.

CLEAN GRAIN BINS AID IN CHECKING WEEVILS

Thorough cleaning of grain bins before putting in the newly-threshed crop, is advocated by Dr. H. H. Shepard, division of entomosogy, Un-Farm, St. Paul, as a means of avoiding infestation of the grain by weevils.

Before threshing time, empty grain bins should be thoroughly swept and sprayed with kerosene. All cracks should be thoroughly treated. Ordinary kerosene is not recommended, but instead an extra refined deodorized kerosene should be used. This may be obtained by oil stations from any wholesale oil company. The fire hazard in using kerosene is not nearly so great as with gasoline, which is sometimes used.

Leaving grain or feed lying around the storage bins is one way to invite trouble from weevils, says Dr. Shepard. Careful cleaning up of grain around the thresher and also around the outside of the bins or loading platforms is important.

Adult weevils present in grain bins can be seen among the kernals, being small, dark colored beetles about one-eighth inch long. The adult weevil bores into the kernal and then deposits an egg in the hole. The grub, which soon hatches, eats away the inside of the kernal, emerging as a fully-developed weevil in about a month in warm weather. Because the damage is done inside the kernal, grain that apears normal may be badly infested.

Grain found to be infested should be shipped immediately to a terminal market where facilities are provided for fumigating in the car. Infested grain even small quantities of it, should not be mixed with clean grain, for if this is done the whole amount will soon bespoiled. Farmers whose grain becomes infested, but who wish to kep it for feeding, may write Dr. Shepard for instructions on how to fumigate in small bins.

Correction

On June 29th, 1933, there appeared in the Thief River Falls Forum, an advertisement by the Model Creamery, O. C Peterson, proprietor, wherein a statement was made as follows: "Our prices average for the month of May about 22½c."

Upon a re-check of our records, we find that the above statement was erroneous and mis-leading, and I wish at this time to correct this after a thorough check-over.

The correct figures are 21.41c per pound average paid for all butter fat purchased during the month of May.

BJORNARAA SETS LOCAL NRS GOING

The first step in the organization of s National Reemployment service for Northwestern Minnesota, was completed last night when a newly oppointed committee of five local people met with Dreng Bjorneraa, formerly of this city, who is the field supervisor, to make arrangements for the establishment of a local unemployment office.

A local employment director to be appointed today will be in charge, supervising the registration of the unemployed from which an eligible list will be selected by the committee which iocludes B. O. Norby, chairman Ward Long, secretary, Mrs. E. J. Richards, C. E. Hellquist, and J. A. Erickson, county engineer.

The eight northwestern counties to he served by the local unemployment office include Norman, Mahnomen, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshlal, Kittson, and Roseau.

Appesring before the Workmens' Protective association Tuesday night, Mr. Bjorneraa explained that the local unemployment office will serve not only projects coming under federal and state public works, but will also furnish information to private employers.

He explained that in all hiring on public works, preference must be given, first to properly qualified veterans with dependents, and then in the following order, to local unemployed citizens, and to residents of the state. The list of the qualified unemployed will be submitted to the contractors on public works who will do the final hiring. The first contracts on the federal road program in this state will be let the latter part of the month.

The porpose of the organization, explained Mr. Bjornaraa, is to distribute equitably, among the qualified workers who are unemployed, the jobs tbat become available under these projects. "We want to do as much good as possible with the money available," he stated.

AREA T. B. TEST NOW UNDERWAY

With the injections for the tuberculosis test completed, the twelve teams, each composed of a veterinarian and an assistant, will begin the readings today of the 1073 herds in Pennington county, it was announced this week by Dr. Fred C. Driver fo the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry, and representative of the Minnesota Livestock Board, who is in charge of the test in this county. Dr. Driver stated that excellent progress is being msde, but that no results will be available until next week.

When the veterinarians have completed their work, the county will be designated as a modified accredited tuberculosis-free area.

The veterinarians will return here after four months to retest all animals that react in the present check-up.

The twelve teams, each working in a specified area of the county, are as follows, each veterinarian having one assistant:

Dr. R. R. Donaldson and Norman Voldsness; Dr. Henry Roone and Dick Hornseth; Dr. S. H. Burgess and Fred Urdahl; Dr. R. G. Lovesee and Gust Iverson; Dr. F. A. Haney and Einar Jenson; Dr. A. L. Walsn and Anton Jenson; Dr. L. R. Twete and Floyd Canfield; Dr. Thos. W. Scott and E. A. Yonke; Dr. Alfred Peterson and Victor Johnson; Dr. J. V. Ramler and Nels Pearson; Dr. E. T. Tennis Crown Of City To Be Contested In Final Game On School Court Monday Night

(by Art Johnson)

With the first rounds of the mens' singles tennis tournament over, favorites are polishing their big guns and no doubt prepared to pull some new tricks out of the bag as they enter the finals to decide the 1933 city championship.

Only one upset has appeared so far, Junior Prichard being defeated by John Biedermann, 6-1 8-6, 6-3. In the finals however, there is a prospect of some close matches, there being very little difference in the power of some of the contestants.

From the beginning the matches have been keenly contested with good sportsmanship prevailing, and many youngsters have showed up favorably. It seems that only the seasoning of competition is needed to develop some exceptionally strong local talent.

Contestants playing to represent their respective brackets are: Bracket 1,— Jim Korstad vs Art Myrom; Bracket 2,— L. Aanstad vs G. Aanstad; Bracket 3,— Marvin Benson vs John Biedermann; and Bracket 4,— Harry Crowder vs the winner of the Pope-Overland match.

These matches will be played Friday and the four winners will meet in the semi-finals on Saturday. Monday evening the two winners in the semi-finals will play at 6:30 o'clock to decide the City Championship for 1933.

The public is invited to attend the matches especially the final Mondey evening. There is no admission charge

Attorney General Peterson Will be One of Speakers at Farmer-Labor Picnic Aug. 27

Several other prominent speakers are also expected to appear, and a large crowd from all parts of the Ninth District is expected to be here. Coffee will be served free as was done last year, and picnickers are invited to come early and eat their lunch on the grounds.

H. Halland is general chairman in charge of arrangements.

No Grain Taken by Local Buyers Until Market Rises; Government Pegging Off

Local grain buyers ceased huying grain last week when the government discontinued pegging wheat, and tha price fell the maximum of five cents allowed daily. There were no buyers at the central markets because of the daily decline, and consequently local buyers have been merely storing until the market strengthens.

It is expected that wheat prices will have reached bottom in a few days. Some action is contemplated by Secretary Wallace if the market does not strengthen soon.

Unemployed Youth Who Want More Education May Obtain Questionnaires from Supt. Bye

To assist Gov. Floyd B. Olson in solving the problem of providing facilities for the unemployed youth of this state, a chairman has been designated in each county, with Supt. Morris Bye receiving the Pennington county appointment.

A special commission has been created by the governor, consisting of 31 educational, business, labor, and civic leaders, beaded by E. M. Phillips, state commissioner of education, to tackle the problem of education for the unemployed youth of Minnesota.

The exact plan will not be formulated until the commission has discovered the number of unemployed between the ages of 17 and 24, who want further education. For this purpose, the county chairmen have been furnished with qnestionaires which are to be filled out by the nnemployed young people of the counties.

Mr. Bye stated yesterday tbat the questionaires may be obtained at his office in the Lincoln high school or hy writing to him this week. The questionaire asks what type of training the youth would like to take, whether he would be supported by psrents or relatives while studying, and whether he would like to attend institutes or learn a trade in a shop. The completed questionaires will be analyzed to determine what aid the public schools can give.

Present plans call for an expenditure of $50,000 of federal funds, to finance the project, but educators are of the opinion thst a much larger sum will be needed.

60 Men From Red Lake Reservation Called To Fight Advancing Fires

Sirty men from the Red Lake reservation were called out last Monday to fight the advancing peat fires that have been smouldering east of Neptuoe and north of the Red Lake river for the past month. With no rain in that territory since July 6, the fire has run unchecked, consuming hay fields and meadow land.

The dry weather has enabled the fire to spread north and east, getting into some of the farming country and causing heavy losses, with many of the settlers moving their newly stacked hay to higher ground.

Reports have come from the territory near Grygla, to the effect that the existing conditions are as serious as the peat fires in that section two years ago.

Dick Willems, district forest ranger at Warroad, accompanied by Edwin Olson, forest ranger at Grygla, investigated the fire situation in tnat vicinity last week and issued a warning against the setting of fires with the intention of land clearing. Because of lack of funds, the forestry department is unable to hire sufficient patrolmen and Mr. Willems asks for the cooperation of each farmer in handling the fire situation.

Honors are Won by Girl Scouts at Maple Lake on Happy Outing Last Week

A troop of girls ranging in age from 12 to 14, accompanied by Mrs. Leonard Hanson, Mrs. O. G. Lynde, and Mrs. A. C. Matheson, enjoyed a weeks outing at Maple Lake, returning Sunday. During their stay, the girls participated in all the phases of scouting activity. Mrs. John Richardson of Crookston taught them handicraft and woodwork, and Mr. Phillip West also of Crookston, gave lessons in swimming and rowing, praising the troop highly for their aptness and efficiency.

Under the direction of Mrs. Richardson, they made plaques, canes, corner shelves and spatter print work, which they brought home with them.

Begioners' and swimmers' badges were awarded by Mr. West to Dorothy Noper and Margaret Munt and Frances Stenberg, Nona Nelson, Ardith Gulseth, and Ruby Reisberg won Beginners' badges.

Mayor Vetoes Diesel Purchase and Sponsors Plant Survey. Engineer's Report Criticized

Plant Engineer A. G. Anderson Makes Close Check of Data Submitted in Survey

The figures and data of the summary report prepared by W. W. Viebahn, electrical engineer summoned by Mayor E. L. Tungseth to analyza the municipal power plant situation was checked by Engineer A. G. Anderson of the local electric light and power plant, to ascertain the anthenticity and exactness of the data submitted.

Altho much of the information was found to be correct, Mr. Anderson disagreed on many points that have a direct bearing on the question of purchasing a new Diesel engine.

In reference to Mr. Viebshn's statement that "no public utility guarantees 100% reliability of service etc.", Mr. Anderson states that tbe well equipped power plants have additional equipment running idle, ready to take up tbe losd instantly in case anythiog goes wrong with the units running under load..

The summary gnve tbe continuous rating of the 750 H. P. McIntosh-Seymour unit at 530 k. w. The city engineer states thst the most the engine has ever pulled is 520 k. w. It can pull its rated capacity only under idesl conditions when all its parts are in excellent running order, which it seldom is hecause of the incessant strain of continued operation. Every engine should be shut down, anyway at between each 700 to 1000 working hours to have the valves ground. In one instance the engineer was called down during the night when the Diesl was unable to pull more thsn 360 k. w., because of leaky valves. It would probably be able to carry 600 k. w. during short peak periods, as Mr. Viebahn maintains, if tbe crew had the opportunity to grind the valves and keep it in tip-top shape.

The Busch-Sulzer engines, the summary states, could produce 250 k. w. of A. C. power for a short peak load period utilizing their present D. C. generators and tbe motor generating set. Mr. Anderson states that it has produced only 150 k. w. due to the loss in the conversion of the current from D. C. to A. C,. and that when the engine has more than 150 k. w., to pull the voltage can not be beld up.

Mr. Viebahn's figures give a total of 850 k. w., of Diesel power available. In regard to this, Mr. Anderson states that the plants could carry a possible load of 750 k. w., under ideal conditions, with the valves ground and engines running in the best of shope, but that 630 k. w. would be closer to the average producing power of the three engines.

He maintains that the Diesel generating equipment cannot possibly carry the 740 k. w., continuous load estimated by Mr. Viebahn.

The summary figures giving the average loads duriog the years 1924 to 1932 are misleading, Mr. Anderson believes, saying that it is not the average load that the plant has to be prepared for, but that it is the peak load.

"The peak load for 1932, according to the station wattmeter was 700 k. w." the summary states. The local engineer states that there is no wattmeter at the station that gives the total load carried, and that to get that figure, both the meter at the new station and the meter at tbe old plant have to be read.

Mr. Viebahn, "has reasons to believe that the station wattmeter is reading 14 per cent in excesss of the current value". He stated today that the deduction of 14 per cent gave the figure for the peak load not to be in excess of 395 k. w., since Feh. 1. This accounts for the conflict with the figures of the power plant which show readings of peak loads at 480 k. w. during the month of August, a light month as far as load is concerned.

Mr. Anderson disagrees with Mr. Viebahn's following statement that during this period there was not one

Two Factions Go Into Clinch After Veto In Deisel Battle

The two factions in the power plant battle hava now gona into a clinch following the veto by Mayor Tungseth, of the council's resolution to purchase a 1050 H. P. diesel unit. Neither side hss made a move to throw in the sponge, with some predicting that tbe fight will continue until the fall election.

Betting odds switched slightly in the mayor's favor this week when he imported a second, W. W. Viebahn, an electrical engineer to keep his side of the ring supplied with arnica in the form of a complete survey on the power situation.

Engineer Viebahn hails from Hibbing, is a 1930 graduate in electrical engineering from the University of Minnesota, and has spent two and one-half years with Westinghouse Electric at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Bus Drivers, Janitors Are Selected by School Board; Educational Plan Discussed

Bus drivers and janitors were appointed by tbe board of education at the meeting last Monday night, it was announced yesterday by Supt. Morris Bye.

The three hus drivers for the coming school year will be Randsll Noper, route 1; Geo. M. Gunderson, route 2 and 3; and Morris Eriskson, route 4.

The janitors for the city schools will be Anton Carlson, Central; Otto Geske, Knox; Peter Satre, Northrop; and Obert Lindland and Aug. Sortland Washington and Lincoln schools.

The board members also discussed Gov. Floyd B. Olson's plan for the education of the unemployed youth of the state between the ages of 17 and 24 years. It was decided to postpone local action until a definite plan is formulsted by the state commission headed by E. M. Phillips, who is also at the head of the state department of educatioo.

SITE FOR BRIDGE BEING SURVEYED

A survey of the proposed site for a new bridge across the Red Lake river in this city, is beiog made this week by a group of surveyors sent here under the direction of C. Aaslond fo St. Paul, by the state highway department.

The survey is being made from the east end of Third street across to the east side of the river at Johnson street, whre it meets an extension of the Angle road near the city limits. If this site is selected, one or two houses north of the Elks Memorial Park will have to be removed.

Total of $5,100 Taken In On Settlements of Delinquent Property

The tax-delinquent sale that went into effect last Monday brought out a horde of buyers anxious to acquire the most select pieces of property. A total of $5,100 has been taken in, most of the sales being made Monday, it was announced today by County Auditor Harry Fowler, who stated that the sale was comparatively successful for this time of the year. It will continue until Dec. 31.

Some of the settlements extend back as far as 1920, with all of the bnyers, except one from Marshall, shall, Kittson and Roseau.

The schedule of percentages of the principal required to make settlement during the period is as follows: Taxes for 1922 and prior years 20 per cent; 1923-24, 33 1|3 per cent; 1925-26, 50 per cent; 1927-28, 60 per cent; 1929-30 80 per cent. Penalties and interest are waived for 1931.

Veto Message Asks for Delay In Hopes of Obtaining Federal Aid

BRINGS IN ENGINEER TO MAKE SURVEY OF PLANT

Recommends No More Diesel Power Until Increase In Total Load

Mayor E. L. Tungseth mada two important moves this week in regard to the municipal power and light plant. After issuing his veto statement, Wednesday, on the resolution of the city council to purchase a 1050 H. P. diesel nnit from tha Fairbanks-Morse company, he had a summary report prepared that night by W. W. Viebahn, electrical engineer, that included a survey of the local power situation.

Mayor Tuogseth's statement to tha couocil points out the impossibility of obtaining federal aid in the purchsse of a diesel which "is encumbered by provisional contracts, or under way."

"Without federal aid," the statement reads, "the cost of this investment, which admittedly is for standby power only, will load our municipal plant down with overhead expenses wbich will be very difficnlt, if not impossible, to carry, and which will absorb revenues which the city's current accounts have benefited by and which again will necessarily increass our taxes."

Stating thst there is no emergency which calls for immediate action, tha mayor promises a supplement to his veto after the work of Mr. Viebahn has been completed.

The following report is a hrief ontline of the complete snrvey given by engineer W. W. Viebahn whom Mayor E. L. Tungseth has called into analize our Municipal Power Plant situation and to make any recommendation which from an engineering standpoint would be advisable.

Snmmary Report

"The object of this investigation is to determine the needs of the Thief River Falls Power Plant. I am treating the problems entirely from an engineering standpoint and I have gathered considerable data and made detailed calculations in connection with the data I bave obtained. All this is given in my complete report. In this summary I bava aimed to explain tha meaniog of curve sheets which are a part of the complete report, and the results I have obtained from the data involved so that the average non-technical person can understand the conculsions drawn.

To begin with the ohject of any utility compsoy is to create profit for its stockholders. In order to obtain this profiet, they find it necessary to give their customers service at tha lowest possible cost to the company and still maintain a fair degree of reliability. While the object of a mnnicipal power plant is not profit primarliy, a well managed plant shonld strive to produce power at the lowest possible cost with a reasonable amount of reliahility. I am treating your problem with this ohject in view.

Before going directly into your problem, I am going to present soma figures of other diesel plants ranging from 500 to 2,000 H. P. I find that the total operating cost of these plants vary from ½c per k. w. h., to 2½c per k. w. h., depending on tha way in which the plant is operated and to a very lsrge extent upon the load factor. Curve sheet No. 1 shows how the operating costs of a 500 H. P. diesel plant are effected by the load factor, or the per cent load of the plant. The curve sbeets indicate that at a 100 per cent load tha total operating cost is 95c per k. w. h., while at a 25 per cent load the operating cost is 2.74c per k. w. h., an increasa of 288 per cent. The curve illnstratea tha operating cost between thesa extremes. Of conrse it is impossihle to have a load factor of a 100 per cent on a plant supplying a varying load, but tha operating engineer should keep the load factor as high as possible. Diesel generating equipment is expensive and the management can not afford to have mnch equipment for which there is no load.

This leads up to tha question of installing additional generating equipment in a plant which is already ample to handls its peak load. If the generating capacity is douhled, tha relisbility will bs practically 100 per cent, but the load factor will be cnt in half with a great increase in operating costa as illustrated by curva sheet No. 1. No public ntility guarantees 100 per cent raliahility of service for the simple reacon that such service is far too expensiva and most of their customera will not pay the price.

With this generalized picture in mind, I am going to consider the spacific problems of ths Thief River Falls power plant. To begin with, I will sum np tha genarating capacity now on hand. The 750 H. P. McIntosh-Seymour unit has a continnons rating of 530 k. w. It is permissabla to overload a unit somewhat for a short peak period. I estimate that this unit could prodnce 600 k. w., during short peak load periods. The old Busch-Sulzer units could produce 250 k. w., of

"It's Just Like Home", Writes Gay Haugen to Ray Pope, From Forestry Camp on North Shore

News from the conservation "front" is always interesting, especially when it comes from a local young man wh was included in this county's quota of twenty-six. Not long ago, Ray Pope's heart was warmed considerably by a letter from Gay Haugen of this city, who is stationed at the forestry cooservation camp near Finland, on a fork of the Baptism river which flows ioto Lake Superior about forty miles from Two Harbors.

Gay,s highly informative letter states, "We are hard at work every day out in tha woods. We have been getting out logs and sawing them for the huildings in camp here. We have our mess hall built now and they are building the barracks and orderly room.

On the opening night of the new mess hall the army of young men banqueted on chicken. No wonder Gay writes, "I sure like it out here, for it's just like home."

"Wa have Saturdays and Sundays off," the letter continues, "and our working hours are from 7:30 s.m. to 3:30 p.m., and one hour off at noon."

He wished that County Overseer Pope could visit the camp, snd writes, "They all say that this is the nicest camp in the conservation corps. Our captain's name is Mr. Linden, and tha boys in our camp sure like him."

They must like Gay too, for the boys elected him minister, to carry on the Sunday morning services, and also made him president of the campfire program, held every Wednesday night.

Up on the North Shore of the lake the climste is cold, even in tha summer, and tha letter states, "We have four blankets on to sleep at night. Wa sleep in tents so it isn't so very warm."

And then every night after the hard day's work tha boys all go swimming in the Baptism river.

In concluding, Gay writes, "It's ten 'clock and the last hell is ringing, so I will have to call it off." And so to hed.

Minnesota Cow Champ Producer

A Minnesota cow has become the "first lady" of her own world, the world of milk producers.

Femco Johanna Bess Fayne, a Holstein cow seven years old, has just completed a year's production of 33,649.8 pounds of milk containing 1,208.5 pounds of butterfat which made 1,510.62 pounds of butter.

The average cow in the state produces only 175 pounds of butterfat a year. This cow produced more butterfat than seven average cows. Her record is the third highest ever made in this country, only five having reached the 1,500 pound production mark in one year.

Femco Johanna Bess Fayne is owned by F. E. Murphy and the record was made at Femco Farms, Breckenridge, Minn.

Funeral Services Held For Mrs. Aspelund, 75

Funeral services were conducted yesterday for Mrs. Gina Aspelund, at the Zion Lutheran church, the Rev. E. L. Tungseth officiating. For thirty-six years a resident of this city, Mrs. Aspelund passed away at her home 412 Knight avenue at the age of 75 years.

She was born in Kragero, Telemarken, Norway, July 12, 1858, coming to this country in 1874, where she settled at Lime Springs, Fillmore county. In 1884, she moved to Grand Forks, N. D., where she was married to Erick Aspelund that year. They then moved to a farm in Marshall county, and in 1897 they moved to this city where Mrs. Aspelund has since made her home.

Surviving her are, her husband Erick Aspelund of this city, four daughters, Mrs. L. W. Nordhus of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. T. J. Reiersson, Mrs. C. S. Simouson, and Mrs. L. D. Hendry, all of this city, and one son, Geo. Aspelund of Enderlin, N. D., and eleven grandchildren. One daughter has preceeded her in death.

PATROL IS ENFORCING LAW REQUIRING TRUCK FLARES

Motor trucks operating as contract carriers in Minnesota must now be equipped with flares to be used as night warnings in case the vehicle stops on a highway.

The state highway patrol has been given orders to tag truckers not having the flares, it was announced by Chief John P. Arnoldy. Several makes of kerosene torches have been approved as standard flares by the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse Commission and the Highway department. Truckers must have torches of a type officially approved.

Last Rites Held for Nels Samuelson, 76

Last rites were conducted for Nels Samuelson, 76, at the Erickson and Lund Funeral Home, the Rev. J. O. Jacobson officiating, last Saturday at 2 p. m. Mr. Samuelson passed away at a local hospital, Aug. 9, as a result of injuries sustained while walking along highway 33 west of the city, having either been hit by a hit and run driver or attacked by thugs.

Mr. Samuelson was born in Norway, in June, 1857. He came to this country and settled in Norden township, Pennington county, where he homesteaded and lived until last fall when he moved to this city. He was a resident of the county for 49 years.

Surviving him are one daughter, Miss Mabel Samuslson of this city, and three sons, Olaf and Theodore, both of this city and Sigurd of Chicago, Ill., and nine grandchildren. His wife and one daughter has preceeded him in death.

Minnesota Safety Campaign Lauded

St. Paul, (Special to the Forum)--Reports that the "Drive Carefully" campaign in Minnesota has received nationwide attention and that the "OK" windshield stickers are recognized by police in other states have reached C. H. Zealand, executive secretary of the Minnesota Safety Council.

Last week Mr. Zealand received a letter from Mr. John R. Swanson, of Winona, who stated that when police conducting a "safety lane" in Chicago noticed his "OK" sticker, they not only passed his machine without a test, but commended hm upon having it certified. Mr. Swanson was in Chicago attending the World's Fair.

Minnesotans touring through states that have compulsory inspections need not fear delay in safety tests if their machines bear the "OK" stickers of recent date, Mr. Zealand said. As a result of a story of the Minnesota "Drive Carefully" campaign appearing in the official bulletin of their organzation, police throughout the country have been informed that the stickers can be secured only after all the mechanical safety features of a vehicle have passed inspection.

GRAPHS SHOW VALUES OF VARIOUS DAIRY FEEDSTUFFS

Something very helpful for dairymen who purchase feeds is an ingenious new graph, devised by Dr. Wm. E. Petersen of the dairy division, University Farm. Knowing the price per ton of corn and of cottonseed meal a dairyman with this graph may find instantly, without bothering to do any figuring, the exact value for feeding purposes of a ton of any of the common dairy feeds, including roughages, grains, root crops, silage and concentrates. The value shown for any feed will be based on both the protein and the non-protein nutrients contained in it.

Dr. Petersen's graph is based on carefully worked out formulas that have been used for years by students in feeding at the University of Minnesota. Cottonseed meal and corn are used as base feeds because, normally, cottonseed meal is the cheapest source of protein and corn the cheapest source of total digestible nutrients.

Any dairyman or farmer wanting a copy of this graph may have it without cost by addressing the Dairy Division, Universty Farm, St. Paul. Thousands of copies of the graph have been sent out all over the country, creating a great deal of favorable comment. Several wholesale feed companies are now using it as a daily guide in their business transactions. It is believed Minnesota dairymen will find something of this sort especially useful this year, inasmuch as many will have to buy feed, and the additional fact that feeds are higher priced, with a considerable variation in cost per unit of feeding value.

Stewart Backed In Fighting Claim

The Minnesota conservation commission is backing up W. D. Stewart director of game and fish, in his fight to resist payment of a $1,500 claim against the state received by Alfred C. Brown of Long Lake, Hennepin county, from the last legislature for alleged damage to his tomato crop by pheasants. The claim is the first to be granted by a legislature for such a purpose, although hundreds of like claims have been submitted the last few years.

Leading sportsmen's organizations of Hennepin county and other sections of the state have protested payment of the claim, asserting it would be "unfair to taxpayers and sportsmen."

The commission directed Mr. Stewart to fight the case through the courts in a resolution submitted by Judge William Ericson of Red Wing and Ernest R. Reiff, members of the commission.

State to Urge 'Black Top' on Aid Highways

Proposes Surfacing on All County Roads If U. S. Will Approve

"Black-top" or bituminous-surface roads will be constructed in every county in Minnesota out of the $10,000,000 federal aid highway money, if federal authorities approve the plans of the state highway department.

The fact that only 35 miles of concrete paving is provided for in the program, and 900 miles of bituminous treatment, does not mean that Minnesota is turning its back on concrete but only that the federal aid money is being spread out to cover as much mileage as possible. The federal rules require that work be done in 75 per cent of the counties. The department plans to make it 100 per cent.

Different "Black-tops"

There is serious question whether the 900 mile "black-top" program will win the required federal approval, so it is subject to some change, highway officials said.

As to the kick from localities where "black-top" is named as the road surface, Commissioner N. W. Elsberg says it depends much on the type of contruction.

"Black-top" cover a multitude of sins," he said, "it is a term that has been used for a mere oil treatment of gravel roads. It is used for all bituminous surface, including much of the city paving. On Minneapolis parkways there are three different kinds of base and two kinds of surface process, all of them called "blacktop."

Costs Will Vary

"While the average for the bituminous treatment we have planned will be less than $3,000 a mile, some of it will run as high as $12,000 or $15,000 a mile, where a heavy concrete base is called for, and a two-inch or thicker tar mix on top. This heavy type is good permanent road, and compares favorably with cement paving at $25,000 a mile."

It is a question among engineers as to just where the line should be drawn between construction and maintainance of these roads. It is admitted that an oil or tar surface on gravel does not make a permanent road.

Objectors say the maintainance cost on such a road is heavier than on plain gravel. The engineers answer that every time there is re-surfacing of such a road it builds up the road, though the work is called maintainance.

Hand Labor Favored For Highway work

Minnesota's emergency state highway program is being so planned as to provide jobs for men and teams instead of machinery, within reasonable limits, according to N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner.

Both Federal and state regulations governing the work to be done with the $10,000,000 allotted this state from Federal funds for highway purposes provide for a maximum amount of hand labor where this will not mean too great an increase in cost of operations.

In addition to the general regulations favoring manual labor, Commissioner Elsberg said the highway department is giving special attention to planning rural jobs on which horses can be used to advantage.

Particularly in counties where crops have been destroyed or seriously damaged by drouth, the highway department will endeavor to let contracts of such a character as to give work for teams and drivers. This policy is expected to be of material aid to farmers in drouth stricken districts, Mr. Elsberg said.

It is estimated that approximately one-third more men will be given jobs on the highway work by reason of hand labor requirements than would get work if unrestricted use of machinery were permitted.

"Naturally the cost of highway jobs done under these regulations will run higher than otherwise," Mr. Elsberg said. "However, the Federal government desires the money to be spent in this manner in order to give more aid to those in need."

In general, the following types of work will be done by hand or team labor, except in special cases: Clearing and grubbing, finishing slopes in cuts and fills; digging trenches; trimming ditches, unloading small pipe, backfilling of excavated material, unloading cement and reinforcing steel, carpenter and form work, subgrading for curbs and gutters, digging post holes, cutting posts, painting, sweeping roadways, earth stripping of raodside gravel pits. This is only a partial list of work where hand labor will be required.

The Highway Department has called for bids on the first projects approved by the Federal government in the state's road program. Bids will be opened August 29. The projects consist of four paving and four grading jobs, of a total estimated cost of approximately $859,000. They are expected to provide work for about 700 men. Included in this work is six miles of paving beginning three miles north of Mahnomen and running south.

Teeth Properly Fed Resist Decay

"Recent research has proven that there apparently is a steady circulation of nutritional fluids through the surface. Of all the elements, calcium seems to be the most important to the teeth . . . the foods supplying calcium and other needed materials as well as vitamins are milk and other dairy products, raw leafy vegetables and fruits. Fortunately these foods, while correct for the teeth, are precisely those most important to the general health of the body thruout the entire life."---Dr. Alfred Oare, Dean of the School of Dental and Oral Surgery, Columbia U.

They Must Also Help Themselves

The rapid drop in farm commodity prices of the past two weeks is another warning that the farmers themselves must take action if they ever hope to bring themselves out of the mire. At a time when every other industry but farming has stopped worrying about production and is concentrating on marketing, trade agreements and cooperation, the farming industry is continuing along the same old paths of individual action. The bulk of the farmers' products is still sold to marketing agencies that have no interest whatever in price as long as there is a margin of profit, when practically all other industries are entering into price agreements that assure them a reasonable profit. They are setting their own prices while the farmer is glad to take what he can get.

It is, of course, infinitely easier to talk about these things than to do them, and in no industry is it so difficult to act collectively as in farming. But there is an effective method of price control if a majority of the farmers can only be brought to use it. That method is cooperative marketing for every product the farmer sells, coupled with intelligent political action. The two go hand in hand and the one is ineffective without the other.

The important thing in such a program is for the farmers themselves to take an active part. Almost anyone can draw up a plan on paper that will help the farmer, but until the farmers themselves organize from the ground up and put their plans into effect they can't hope for any lasting benefits. We are living in a new age when the old ways of doing things simply will not work Twenty years ago the government was busily breaking up trusts; today the law of the land makes every industry a trust -- except agriculture. Labor is putting forth its best efforts to organize unions and industry is adopting its codes, but the farmer is still going along in the same old way, spending all his time and thought on production

Meanwhile, dairy and poultry products are sliding downward with the farmer absolutely powerless to prevent it. In spite of government pegging and the smallest crop in forty years, wheat is hitting the skids, taking other grains with it. Everything the farmer produces is going down, and everything he buys, because it is sold in an organized market, is going up.

Yet how many farmers are spending as much as ten minutes a week actually doing anything to further cooperative marketing?

I have just come from the Lyceum theatre where I saw the picture "The Last Mile." The plot is not very complicated, in fact it only tells of a young man convicted of a murder of which he is innocent and sentenced to die in the electric chair. The fact that he is innocent and is in the end given a reprieve is beside the point, he was just lucky enough to be innocent and being able to prove it.

The thing that really matters, is the fact that the picture drives home with almost brutal force the truth that heaping murder upon murder as a deterrent for crime is inhuman, and falls short of accomplishing its avowed purpose.

At every session of the legislature a bill is introduced to establish capital punishment in this state, and each time we hear a lot of well meaning people argue its alleged merits as a crime deterrent. This in spite of the fact that every state that has capital punishment has a larger manslaughter ratio than Minnesota.

Let it be said to the credit of our lawmakers, that for all their shortcomings they have not been beastly enough to enact such a law. In that respect they rank far ahead of the legislators of a great many states of the Union.

Furthermore, I hope that anyone who thinks they believe in capital punishment will make it a point to see this picture before they advance any further arguments in favor of this relic of barbarism.

A Rift in the Clouds

Whatever a great many may think of the NRA and its possibilities for bringing the country back to prosperity, it has certainly bolstered up the hopes and the courage of a great many people.

I ate quite regularly at a little cafe on Wabasha avenue in St. Paul, last winter during the session of the legislature, and came to have a nodding acquaintance with a woman who also patronized the place. (For the benefit of my wife who might take a notion to read this column, I hasten to add that the woman is fair, fat, and away over forty) Last week when I was at St. Paul I again stepped into this cafe for dinner. This woman came in and upon seeing me hastened to my table. "You were here at the legislature last winter, weren't you?" she asked, "Yes" I replied, "I was an employee of the legislature."

"Well," she continued, "I just wanted to tell you, I am working in a corset shop and we used to have to work ten hours a day and sometimes overtime in the evening that we only got our supper money for, and we made only from seven to nine dollars a week. And now since this code came in they have had to put on a lot more seamstresses and we work only forty hours a week and get $13.50 a week. So I say, Thank God for Roosevelt."

I don't know what connection, if any she thinks there may be between the Minnesota legislature and the NRA and did not pursue the conversation further.

The waitress in the place also told me confidentially that they have had their pay raised and their hours cut to forty per week. "Now I go to work at eleven and work until seven with an hour off in the afternoon," she said, "so I get a chance to take care of the kids and clean up the house before I leave in the morning. The other girl works from six until one and they have put on one more waitress, another cook and another dishwasher."

"How many children have you," I asked.

"Two." she realied.

"What does your husband do?" I querried further.

"Oh, he's a carpenter when he is working at his trade, but he hasn't had any work now for over a year. He thinks maybe he'll get work again soon now tho, since they started this "new deal".

Not a Road to Bigger Exploitation

And so it goes all down the line, a ray of hope seems to have broken thru the clouds of depression. Let those who signed the NRA code with their fingers crossed, thinking it will be an avenue to bigger and better exploitation of the people consider the matter very carefully before they set out to make a sham of the administration's efforts to make it possible, as Governor Olson so aptly put it, when he addressed the B. E. F., for the common people to exist under this so-called capitalistic system. If the people are to have their hopes blasted just once more ——.

Losing Standards

America is losing its standards 'frightfully' and 'going back 50 years' due to conditions made possible by the depression, Dr. Alice Hamilton, associate professor of medicine at Harvard Medical school, declares, after an extensive investigation.

Health standards are being ruined, she declared, by the return of the sweatshops, the breakdown in wage scales, and the general disregard for the protection of women and children in industry. Employers are neglecting safeguards in order to "economize," and the workers, afraid of losing their jobs, are taking chances they would not take in normal times, Dr. Hamilton says. She cited a recent instance of a group of girls who were forced to work in the midst of "most dangerous" chemical fumes, the employer considering it "too expensive to operate the ventilating system," which would have carried away the poisonous vapors. As a result, one girl died. —Cleveland Citizen.

Big Business Cheats the Code

As Labor has feared, industry in general has taken advantage of the approved codes to lower wages and further depress the workers. Labor has looked with suspicion at the enthusiasm the bosses have displayed over the blanket code originated by President Roosevelt Some of the most notorious exploiters of labor were the first to display the NRA emblem; Chambers of Commerce have flooded the nation with the songs of praise for the new deal, and in some quarters enthusiasm has almost reached the hysterical scale.

Now the cat is out of the bag. Many employers had discharged skilled workers a few days prior to the adoption of the blanket code. These discharged workers, all of them unorganized, are now being rehired as "beginners, learners and apprentices" to escape the minimum wage scale set up in the blanket code. This is notoriously true of the cotton textile industry, which did not adopt the blanket code but secured approval of its own. The elimination of child labor was the only bright spot in the whole set-up.

Labor has a right to be suspicious. Big Business cannot be made moral or sanctimonious by the mere adoption of an emergency law. A leopard cannot change its spots; if it could, it would still remain a leopard. The National Industrial Recovery Act cannot change the mental processes of Big Business which will pervert the law now as it always has done in the past.

If ever there was a time in the history of the nation when complete unionization of labor is imperative that time is now. Labor must unionize or be reduced to peonage within two years. — The Union Advocate.

Public Opinion

After living in this community for several years, I feel that a definite program should be outlined for the future expansion towards a goal of having a population of 10,000 people in our city in the next ten years, by forming a Boosters' Club of the progressive people not only of Thief River Falls but all of the progressive people that live in Pennington county and the eastern part of Marshall county who are willing to help in building up this City and it's trade territory as well.

A few of our leading citizens have already shown that they have faith in the future growth of Thief River Falls by investing their money in substantial homes and business buildings and the citizens as a whole are gradually wakening up to the realization that we have the best trade center in Northern Minnesota by starting to plan and build a new auditorium before the ashes and walls were cooled off from fire that destroyed the other one.

Now are we going to stop or even hesitate? Why not go on get together and BOOST for the building of a Federal Court Building along with the post office, put a bridge across the river at the east end of Third street, dredge out the two rivers for canal boat service so that the farmers living in the eastern part of Marshall and Pennington counties can market their surplus at a minimum expense, put in docks on the west bank, have the G. N., come in over the Soo tracks so that the passenger and freight will be centralized, have an up-to-date sewerage system, also a motorized fire equipment, the expense of the last two improvements would have to be paid by the tax payers.

By carrying out the above building program and especially having a Federal Court building with the post office built here that in itself will call for the building of a large hotel, also several more fine homes and besides it would bring in from $50,000 to $100,000 of new wealth.

With the above program in operation (or a better one) we could look forward to having a daily paper. A central marketing place for the gardeners and farmers, and a large movement of people coming here to make this their future home not only in the city, but in the surrounding country as well.

What did you say, SHALL WE GO? or just sit back and let George do it?

Peterson Puts Limit on Cox's Successor

The new commissioner of conservation, when selected and placed in office, will not have the power to appoint or dismiss his subordinates, according to an opinon given by Attorney General Harry H. Peterson, who says the conservation commission has final authority over personnel. Chairman John R. Foley of the commission asked for the opinion to avoid such conflicts as the commission had with W. T. Cox.

Candidates for commissioner appeared before the commission late Friday afternoon, but election of a new commissioner was postponed until September. It is reported E. V. Willard, director of drainage and waters and acting commissioner, is the choice of the majorty for the permanent post.

George W. McCullough of Minneapolis, former game and fish commissioner, told the commission that, if placed in charge, he would put policies in effect that within two years would be returning $2,000,000 to the state from its wild life. Questioned by the commission, he declned to give the details of his plan unless elected as commissoner, when he would submit it for commission approval, he said.

Others listed as candidates are Parker O. Anderson, St. Paul; Forrest Wheeler, Minneapolis; and John Claffy and John Wilson of Duluth.

FARM LEASES SHOULD BE MADE TO FIT CHANGING TIMES

Farm leases that automatically adjust themselves to either up-turns or down-turns of prices are best for both landlords and tenants, states Circular 42, just issued by the Agricultural Extension Division of the University of Minnesota.

As a guide to such contracts, the following suggestions are offered: 1, Pay rents in terms of the leading products. 2, In those cases where the custom has been to give a share of the grain and to pay cash for hay and pasture, give a larger share of the grain and pay no cash rent.

The advantages of these suggestions are discussed in the circular, which also outlines the proper wording of these clauses in the leasing contracts.

The title of Circular 42 is "Adjusting Farm Rentals to Fluctuating Values," and its author is W. L. Cavert extension economist, known to farmers all over Minnesota. Another publication by Mr. Cavert is Special Bulletin 153, 'Suggestions on Farm Leases.' A copy of either or both of these publications may be had without charge from county agents, or from the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul.

TRACTORS DO SERIOUS DAMAGE TO STATE HIGHWAYS

Serious damage is being done bituminous highways in some parts of the state by operation of tractors with sharp lugs on the wheels, according to a bulletin from the State Highway department. Several threshing outfits have injured road surfaces to auch an extent that expensive repairs will be necessary, the bulletin states.

"When a tractor operator cuts up the surface of a bituminoua road," says the bulletin, "it jnst means tbat much more expense for the public to pay in maintaining the highways. To avoid doing this damage may inconvenience the tractor operator, but it saves the taxpayers' money.

day wben the Busch-Sulzer engines could not have carried the entire load for a psrlod of at least 6 hours, and on Sundays for 24 hours. The local engineer emphatically states that they could not carry tha load for six hours and that the investigating engineer has over-estimated the production of the Busch-Sulzer engines, which Mr. Anderson maintaias, could not carry the entire load on Suaday, not to mention at nlght.

Mr. Viebahn's estimate of not more than $8,000 for installation of new AC generators at the old plant, was rather conservative according to Mr. Anderson, who states that new flywheels would have to be installed to synchronize the old eaglnes with the new.

The summary recommends that no Diesel be installed until the load is increased about 25 per cent. When that increase is reached it advocates the addition of a 500 H. P. engine, giviag 350 k. w., of geaerating capacity. This added to the increased generatiag power of the Busch-Sulzer engines with new AC generators, would give a total of 570 k. w. produced. Mr. Anderson contends that, during a period when the McIntosh-Seymour unit is shut down for repaira, this arrangement would not carry the present load plus a 25% increase. The peak load during the fall nights is approximately 700 k. w. Add to this a 25% increase and it would give a ttoal peak load of 875 k. w., which exceeds tbe carrylng power of the two units by 188 k. w.

Mayor Vetos Plan to Purchase Diesel

AC power for a short peak load period utilizing their present DC generators and the motor generating set now installer in the plant. This gives a total of 850 k. w., of diesel power available for short peak load periods. The present diesel generating equipment is well able to supply a continuoua load of 740 k. w. The average load for the years 1924 to 1933 was as follows:

1924	113	k.w.	1925	119.5	k.w.
1926	128.3	k.w.	1927	135.2	k.w.
1928	177.5	k.w.	1929	177	k.w.

From the records to date of 1933 it appears that the average load for this year will be a little under that of 1932. The peak load for 1932, according to the atation wattmeter was 700 k. w. However, according to my calculations, this peak was not over 515 k. w. As explained in the complete report I have reason to believe that the station wattmeter is reading 14 per cent in excess of the correct value.

Due to the fact that all daily records were destroyed in the auditorium fire it is not possible to secure definite information on the daily load cycles before that time. But from February 1st to the present time the peak load never exceeded 395 k. w. This peak occured only once during the period mentioned. During this period there is not one day during which the Busch-Sulzer engines could not have carried the entire load for a period of at least 6 hours, and on Sundays they could have carried the load for the 24 hours. Therefore it is possible to shut down the big engine any day for minor repairs.

Up to this time I have not mentioned the 550 k. w., of water power generating equipment. It is possibla to use this equipment for a period of at least three weeks during the spring of the year during which time tbs 750 H. P. unit can be shut down for any major repairs.

Based on the informatioa that I have obtained, and which is covered more fully in the complete report, I make the following recommendations:

From the records of the total k. w. h., produced by the oldBusch-Sulzer eagines and their excellent fuel economy, I believe that there is at least 30 per cent of the life of the engines left. The fuel consumption of these engines is better than 9 k. w. h., per gallon as compared with a little over 10 k. w. h., per gallon for tbe 750 H. P. engine. Therefore these engines should be used, either as they are equipped with DC generators, or they should be equipped with AC generators at a cost of not more than $8,000. The production cost per k. w. h., will be about the same in either case. However, the use of AC generators would improve their efficiency by about 22 per cent, but this saving is practically all used up by the interest and depreciation on the $8,000 investment. The only advantage in AC generators would be that the peak load capacity of these old engines could be increased from 250 k. w., to about 320 k. w. In case the choice was madc in favor of AC generators, I recommend that the 35 k. w. motor generator exciter now installed in the plant be used for excitation for both the old and the new engines. I would prefer the AC generators as with these the old engines could operate more hours per day.

My second recommendation is that you do not add any more diesel power to your plant until your load increases about 25 per cent. If future conditions are favorable I presume that this will come inside of two or three years. If rates were reduced the increase would no doubt be obtained much sooner. When this 25 per cent increase is obtained I recommend that you add a 500 H. P. diesel unit to your plant which will give you an additional 350 k. w., of generating capacity, making the total capacity about 1,200 k. w. This recommendation to be modified in the event that water power comes back or as other conditions change.

My third recommendation is that the station meter be recalibrated immediately so that a closer check may be made on your load conditions and requirements.

My fourth recommendation is that the present DC current load be abolished as soon as possible. Replacing this load with AC will improve the efficiency and relieve the station of some load which is a total loss at the present time. I understand that this recommendation is already being carried out, but I want to stress the importance of it.

In conclusion I wish to state tbat in these recommendations I have endeavored to point out a proceedure which would keep overhead costs at a minimum and still give a reasonable reliable service. The power plant is equipped with a large amount of water power generating apparatus which is expensive and which gives rise to an already high overhead. I understand that there is considerable hope that the federal government will improve water channels and natural reservoirs to such an extent that the river will become a more constant source of power. An increase of water power can of course further postpone the need of a new diesel engine.

VOTE FOR DIESEL IN SPITE OF VETO

Mayor Fails to Turn in Report To Council as Promised

The resolution authorizing the mayor and the city clerk of Thief River Falls to enter into a contract with Fairbanks-Morse and Company, for the purchase of a 1,050 horsepower diesel, was passed by the city council over Mayor E. L. Tungseth's veto, last Tuesday night, at the regular meeting in the council chambers.

The mayor's veto message, which promised a supplementary report following the survey made by W. W. Viebahn, electrical engineer, was read to the councilmen by Miss Effie Hamre assistant clerk in the absence of P. G. Peterson.

After the message had been read, City Attorney H. O. Berve, inquired, "By the way, Miss Hamre, has the mayor left any supplement to his veto statement with you?"

Miss Hamre said that no supplement had been left in the city clerk's office.

The same query was put to Chris. Porter, president of the council, who also replied in the negative.

"So far as that goes," volunteered Mr. Berve, "the council has not authorized or instructed Mr. Viebahn to make the report, have you?"

"No! No!" replied President Porter.

B. Dan Bjorkman, a former councilman who was among the spectators present said, "It appears that there is no authentic report which the council was promised. Therefore it seems only right that the council should go ahead and repass the resolution."

Following this opinion, H. A. Brumund, also a former councilman, addressed the council, saying, "As far as the engineer's report is concerned I heard it at the meeting of the Civic and Commerce association. He made several statements which I did not think there were any grounds for. He said that the old engines could carry 90 per cent of the load. I checked that up and found that the load today is all the way from 250 k. w. to 420 k. w. The old engines would not be able to carry one half of that load."

Continuing, Mr. Brumund stated that Mr. Viebahn recommended the purchase of new generating equipment for the old Busch-Sulzer engines.

"I asked him if he really meant that," Mr. Brumund said, "It looked to me like buying a new top for an old Model T Ford. To put new generators on, it would cost approximately ten thousand dollars. He didn't say anything."

In conclusion, he stated that all the information that the engineer gave, could have been obtained from the local engineers at the power plant.

Picking up the mayor's veto message, Alderman Paul Harris said, "I want to show why his veto message is unfair. I think, for one thing that he should be here to defend it."

Reading from the statement, he continued,"Here it says, "By entering into contract for this equipment we cancel all chances of obtaining federal aid". Now if he wanted to be absolutely fair he would say we havn't as good a chance. If he wanted to be absolutely fair, he would not say 'all'."

With that Mr. Harris made the motion that the resolution be adopted, and it was passed with a unanimous vote.

A building application submitted by Russell Anderson for the erection of a combination garage and office on Main avenue near the Great Northern tracks was referred to the building committee.

An application for an off-sale beer license by Carl Pfeffer of the Northern Beverage company, was granted immediately.

The cooperation of the council was sought by Ward Long, secretary of the Pennington county re-employment committee, to obtain office space in the city for the district unit, the federal government to furnish the personnel. The councilmen suggested that space might be obtainable in the basement of the Carnegie Public library. Forward to the completion of the auditorium was evidenced when Roy Ericson of the local Legion post, requested that they be allowed to sponsor the opening dance in the new structure.

The Misses Katherine Mellby and Altha Gabrielson left Sunday for a weeks visit at the Chicago Exposition. Miss Mellby will continue on to Joyce, Iowa where her school will open the following Monday.

Final arrangements for the picnic and other matters of interest will be discussed.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Satre of Rocksbury Celebrate Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

In 1883, Frank Satre took the marriage vows with Iageborg Quande, at St. Hilaire. Yesterday afternoon, he again slipped the wedding ring on his bride's finger, at their farm home in observance of their golden wedding anniversary when friends and relatives gathered at their farm home three miles south of the city.

Many guests gathered for the program during the late afternoon and evening with Rev. J. O. Jacobson presiding. Dr. P. M. Dale of Granite City, Ill., a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Satre, read an appropriate poem which he had written for the occasion and Mrs. Tobias Reep sang several songs during the program. Short talks were made by Mrs. Blanche Korstad, W. E. Dahlquist and Mr. Turnwall. The whole program was concluded with the entire group singing "The End of a Perfect Day."

Mr. Satre is especially well known for his active service on the board of the Thief River Falls cooperative creamery, of which he is secretary at the present time.

Of the ten living children, all were present at the event except two, Frank I. Satre, with the U. S. army in the Philippines and Mrs. Helen Linson of Detroit, Mich., who is recovering from an operation.

The eight children present included Elmer, Emma, and Myrtle, at home, Mrs. Clara Benson, city; Mrs. P. M. Dale, Granite City, Ill.; Lloyd, St. Paul; Mrs. Ruth McIntyre, Grand Forks; and Mrs. Mabel Holkesvig, Crookston.

All parents and children should read carefully the entrance requirements to the different grades and departments. The high school course of study is listed as is also the high school graduation requirements.

In the bulletin is listed the complete faculty staff for all the local schools and also the board, and the board committees.

Included in the bulletin is a detailed report of receipts and disbursements for the year ending July 1, 1933.

$16,000 FEDERAL AID REQUESTED

Application was made last week by members of the City Council to the Public Works Committee in this state for a grant of about $16,000 from federal funds to aid in the purchase of the new diesel engine.

The matter was presented to the Public Works Committee at St. Paul, Wednesday. It is still pending and no definite information has been received up to this time. City officials have good hopes of securing this grant and ask the united support of the people of the city in securing it.

The members of the council upon being asked what effect if any the filing of an application for an injunction to restrain them from buying a new unit for the power plant may have upon the application, replied that there is great danger that suits and litigation may result in a refusal of federal funds.

No definite statement can be made at this time however, inasmuch as the matter will have to go to Washington for final approval, if approved by the state committee.

BANDITS GET $60 AT OIL STATION

County and city officers of the law were on the trail last night searching for bandits who escaped after holding up Jim Zavoral, attendant at the Carlton Economy service station on East Eighth St., shortly after 10 o'clock.

Two men with guns accosted Zavoral as he was closing up the station, took $56 in cash and ran for a car where one or two partners were waiting. They immediately left town proceeding west along Eighth St.

Police Chief A. B. Stenberg believes that the bandits were drivers of a pale green, Dodge sedan with yellow wire wheels, which had been driving around the city during the day, and which was serviced at the station they held up. It is also believed that they were the bandits who held up a Crookston gas station earlier in the week.

Construction of New Bridge this Fall and Winter, Bulletin Says

The new bridge over the Red Lake river here will in all probability be built this fall and coming winter according to a highway bulletin just received by the Forum.

Old Man Winter usually stops Minnesota road work in the late fall according to the bulletin, but this year special plans are being laid by the highway department to prolong the construction season well into the winter on all types of work where this is practical. Graveling, grading and bridge building which are not easily halted by bad weather, have been given a prominent place on the fall program for this reason.

Owing to the lateness of the season, one of the problems of handling the $10,000,000 federal allotment of funds for highway construction, is to plan work that will provide work as long as possible after the beginning of cold weather.

Bridge building can be carried on almost all winter, and present plans call for the construction of more than 30 bridges in various parts of the state. Graveling and grading to be done this fall are in many cases preliminary to bituminous treatment next spring.

TO BEGIN SIGNING OF WHEAT FORMS

The wheat allotment forms have arrived at the office of County Agent R. M. Douglass who announced yesterday that the first series of meetings will get under way beginning Sept. 5th when the farmers will fill out the applications, to come under the federal plan.

The first meeting will take place in Bray township at the Iver Johnson school, Tuesday, Sept. 5. Polk Center farmers will gather Sept. 6, at the Gust Naplin school, and a meeting will be held at the Severson school in Sanders township, Sept. 7. Norden and Numedal townships will have a joint meeting at the Dimmen school, Sept. 8.

Mr. Douglas stated that every farmer should be interested in the new allotment plan. Each farmer is instructed to bring the figures showing his wheat acreage and production for the years 1930, 31,and32, and the different acres he has in crop land this year. That includes pasture and all crop land, and each farmer will have to draw out a plot of the farm showing the acreage, etc.

The announcement of the second series of meetings will be published next week.

Injunction

George Aanstad and Marvin Benson Will Vie for Tennis Title on Local Court Sunday

(by Art Johnson)

Due to the absence from the city of George Aanstad, contending tennis finalist, with Marvin Benson, the date for the final and city championship match, has been postponed and will be held on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 27th. Both men have retired strong opponents; Benson handling his opposition with a steady placement game that has brought him to the final match as favored to win. George Aanstad has smashed his way thru the hardest brackets, taking Lloyd Aanstad with two out of three sets in the most thrilling match of the tournament.

Scores of the semi-final matches were: Geo. Aanstad, winner, vs. Jim Korstad, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1. Marvin Benson, winner vs. Gordon Overland, 6-0,6-1. Quarter finals: Korstad, winner, vs. Art Myrum, 8-6, 6-3; Geo. Aanstad, winner, vs. L. Aanstad, 4-6, 6-4, 6-0; M. Benson, winner, vs. John Biedermsn, 6-0, 6-0; and Overland, winner, vs. Harry Crowder, 5-4, 6-4.

INJUNCTION OUT AGAINST ENGINE

The Diesel controversy was further complicated yesterday afternoon by a restraining order issued by District Judge Julius J. Olson, calling on all city officials to refrain from entering into a contract with Fairbanks-Morse and Company for the purchase of a 1050 H.P. diesel engine for the municipal power plant.

Judge Olson has set the date of the hearing for Aug. 31, at Warren, when it will be decided whether or not a temporary injunction is to be issued. If an injunction is issued, the case will be decided in District Court at its regular term to decide whether or not it shall be made permanent.

The order was issued as a result of a complaint filed with Adolph Eklund, clerk of court, by five local men including M. T. McFarland, Clarence Knudsen, Peter Myrom, Chas. Evenson and Roy Lambert. The bondsmen for the plaintiffs are Harry Lund, L. S. Hess, Dr. A. W. Swedenburg, Walter Jung and Dr. O. F. Mellby. H. O. Chommie and Paul Lundgren are the attorneys representing the plaintiffs.

The order is made out to the city of Thief River Falls, the city council, Mayor E. L. Tungseth, City Treasnvold Jr. of the water and light department, and the Fairbanks-Morse company.

Over 30 typewritten pages in length, the complaint asks the court to hold the contract, illegal and void, and, if executed, to cancel it and restrain the city officials from carrying out its terms, as well as to restrain the city from accepting delivery of the engine.

In a summary of the financial condition of the city, the complaint states that the taxes levied in the city will have to be increased greatly over the present level if the current expense fund is to be deprived of the net earnings of the plant.

Contending that the purchase of a new engine is unnecessary and costly, the complaint alleges that the new unit will not augment the total output of the plant, merely furnishing stand-by power.

It is also maintained that the contract is for an amount in excess of funds on hand in the city treasury, plus any funds levied and applicable to the payment of the liability created and, according to the laws governing municipalities, therefore illegal.

Tom Quamme, Well Known Professional Comedian, To Entertain

SPEAKING PROGRAM WILL LAST ABOUT TWO HOURS

H. Halland is General Chairman In Charge of Arrangements For the Day

With a well balanced program of speaking and entertainment all lined up for the occasion, the Farmer-Labor picnic at Squaw Point next Sunday, Aug. 27, holds promise of a worthwhile and enjoyable day for all who attend. Altho the main speaking program will start about 1:30, it will be preceded by a snappy entertainment by a "Rube" band headed by Tom Quamme, wellknown professional comedian, who will also sing songs and do Scandinavian and Rube charcterizations.

Peterson — Egley to Speak

Heading the list of speakers is Attorney General Harry H. Peterson, one of the outstanding speakers of the Farmer-Labor party, next to Governor Olson, the most influential man in deciding matters of importance to the people of the state. Another speaker, C. D. Egley of St. Paul, has not appeared before in Thief River Falls, but is widely known thruout the Dakotas and Montana as the "little fighter from the Farmers' Union," and as a speaker who always draws a crowd of farmers from fifty to sixty miles away whenever he appears. His talk should be of special interest during the present slump in the livestock market, which is one of the worst in years.

State Senator George Lommen of Eveleth and Representative Gustaf Erickson of Spooner may also speak. Altho a young man, Senator Lommen is a forceful and eloquent speaker. Representative Erickson is serving his fifth term in the legislature and is one of the best informed men on the problems of Northern Minnesota.

There will also be a program of sports and stunts, with something of interest to everyone. Parking space will be provided on the grounds, and free coffee will be served.

Senator Regnier May Come

Senator Emil Regnier of Marshall, campaign manager for the Farmer-Labor party in the last campaign, also plans to attend, following a speaking engagement at Mahnomen the same day. Senator Regnier is a forceful and eloquent speaker who will have a very worthwhile message for all members of the party.

Tom Quamme Entertaining

Since this is not a campaign year, it was decided that entertainment would be given a more prominent place. The committee was fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr. Quamme, a widely known comedian of many years experience, to lead the funmaking. Mr. Quamme is exceptionally good at Scandinavian dialect comedy, and with the help of his "Rube band" will add spice to the program.

H. Halland, general chairman in charge of arrangements for the picnic, has appointed the following committees to assist him: Grounds: Ed. Odelin, chairman, J. Burrell, Sam Brandvold, S. Holm, and H. Halland. Music: R. M. Aalbn chairman, Lyman Fossum. Refreshments; H. Bergstrom, chairman, Arthur M. Johnson, Mrs. H. Bergstrom, Fred Lorentson, Mrs. C. E. Hellquist, and Mrs. H. Halland. Publicity and speakers; Arnie Solem, chairman, H. O. Berve, H. L. Fowler, Arthur Tanem, and C. E. Hellquist.

Many Essays Submitted in Contest at Itasca Park With Jubilee Pageant

With more than a score of essays already submitted in the Diamond Jubilee pageant essay contest, interest in the effort to collect additional historical data on the great Sioux outbreak of 1862 is expected to be spurred with showing of the pageant at Whitewater State Park Sunday.

The outbreak, which cost the lives of approximately 500 Minnesota whites is one of the chief episodes depicted among the pageant's score of scenes. The three Minnesotans who submit the most colorful authenticated stories in connection with the massacre which they themselves witnessed or had told them by persons who were present will be guests for three days during the final showing of the pageant September 4, at Itasca state park. They will be given gratis transportation from points near their homes served by Northland buses and be guests for the three days of Martin E. Dunn, lessee of Douglas lodge in the park.

Judges of the contest are Earle A. Barker, president of the Northwestern Minnesota Historical Society, which is cooperating with the forestry division of the conservation department in staging the pageant, George H. Bradley, director of the Minnesota Tourist Bureau and Willoughby M. Babcock curator of the Minnesota Historical Society.

LIGHT WEIGHT GRAIN SUITABLE FOR SEED

This year's grain in Minnesota is generally light in weight per measured bushel. Farmers are already thinking about seed for next spring and debating whether to use 1932 seed of good weight still on hand, or use light weight seed of the new crop, or to purchase seed of satisfacory weight.

A. C. Arny, a field crops specialist of the Minnesota Agricultiral Experiment Station, University Farm, says grain grown in 1932 that is of good quality and stored in dry bins should be as satisfactory for seed next spring as it was this spring. However, a germination test should be made.

"Light weight seed, providing it germinates satisfactorily, may be used with confidence for seeding next spring," according to Mr. Arny. Trials conducted at University Farm, with a medium-maturing and an early maturing variety of oats and with a medium maturing variety of wheat, provide data on which this conclusion is based. Trials at other stations bear this out.

"The seed of medium variety of oats varied from 39 pounds to 25.5 pounds per bushel. The weight per bushel of the crop varied from 32 to 30 pounds per bushel and the yields per acre were as high from the lightest seed as from the heaviest. The weight per bushel of the seed of the early variety of oats varied from 40 pounds per bushel for the heaviest to 24.9 pounds per bushel for the lightest. The bushel weight of the crops harvested varied only 1.5 pounds per bushel. Again the yield per acre from the lightest seed sown was about the same as from the heaviest.

"All of this seed was well cleaned to remove chaff, weed seed and very light grain. The seeding rate was 64 pounds per acre. Results with wheat were similar to the results with oats. When the weather in spring is very unfavorable for growth, the heavier seed would have some advantage. Purchase of new seed is advisable if that on hand does not germinete 90 per cent or better and produce vgorous sprouts.

U. FARM INTRODUCING BETTER EARLY POTATO

Minnesota will introduce to the world this fall a new, earlier, higher yielding potato the "Warba", developed at the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station at University Farm, St. Paul. The name "Warba" is an Indian word meaning earliness. The variety will be the first introduction resulting from the outstanding potato improvement work that has been carried on at the Minnesota station for nearly 10 years under Dr. F. A. Krantz of the division of horticulture.

The Warba originated as a seedling in 1926 from a cross of Bliss Triumph with another selected seedling, known as Minnesota 4-16. Tests have been carried on continuously since 1927 at Minnesota experiment stations, and since 1930 by practical potato growers, not only in Minnesota but also in various other early potato growing regions.

Higher yielding capecity and earlier maturity than any of the other early varieties are two advantages these tests have shown. In 1931 the average yield obtained from Warba by eight Minnesota growers was 278 bushels per acre as compared with the Irish Cobbler which yielded 260 bushels. In the various tests at the experiment stations, Warba has uniformly produced a larger crop in a shorter time than any other early variety.

The Warba is unusually quick maturing. Its season is 10 to 14 days shorter than the Irish Cobbler, and from 7 to 10 days shorter than the Early Ohio and Bliss Triumph.

Disease tests have shown that the Warba is resistant to the common forms of mosaic. The vines are upright and compact, making them easy to cultivate and spray and they are less injured by high temperatures than the Bliss Triumph. The tubers are white, round and blocky, having very crisp white flesh and excellent cooking quality. The skin is smooth and creamy white with the eyes pink and uniform in depth. The potatoes are of uniform size in the bill so that there are few culls.

Kjornes youthful companion escaped into the woods and was captured two days later. He was Clifford Anderson, 21, farm youth near Starbuck.

ATTITUDES THAT ENCOURAGE PROGRESS

There is no better proof of the muddla wa are living in tban tha fact that we find it necessary to curtail production in every line in order to keep prices at a satisfactory level. Just last week a prominent government official made the statement before a group of young Democrats that we must cut down on the usa of machinery and slow down production. Which is as much as to admit that the problems of distribution are too big for us, and that we must set the clock back to the "good old days."

During the past thousands of years mankind has been absorbed with the problems of producing enough to live on. With the beginnings of the industrial age there came a great wave of optimism. At last we had learned how to produce enough for the masses, and everyone would have a high standard of living. But tha Golden Aga of Prosperity for all failed to come. Wa could produce at top speed for short periods, then surpluses would accumulate and factories shut down, not becausa we couldn't consume these goods, but because we couldn't exchanga them.

Not many years ago the orange growers of California were unable to sell their fruit at a satisfactory price, and were forced to cut down one-fourth of their orange trees. Yet how many people ate even half of the oranges they wanted? Today we are plowing down cotton, curtailing factory production and depriving ourselves of most of the things we have learned to make, while one out of six receive charity, and waits beside a closed factory door or piles of raw materials. Such a way of doing things just doesn't make sense.

In the Industrial Recovery Act the United States has embarked on a program that will seek to correct some of the more ridiculous aspects of this situation. The steps that have so far been taken are mild compared to what will be necessary in the near future if we are to realize to the full the benefits of th industrial age. We should welcome these changes, irksome as they may sometimes be to our ingrained sense of individual liberty, as an effort to bring a fuller and more satisfactory life to every one of us. Evary time we fly at a person tooth and claw because he has a new idea for bettering the system we live under, we nre letting our jungle nature get the better of us. Inventions come when people are receptive to them, and we cannot expect many social inventions for bettering our condition if we reward the inventor with hate and ridicule. An instance comes to mind in the case of Charles Lindbergh Sr., father of the "Lone Eagle." Twenty years ago he wrote books on the financial situation that told us where we were heading and what the remedy should be. Put into practice, his ideas would have saved us untold grief. Yet his reward was ridicule and a three-cornered rail out of town. He was probably the highest type of individual we have: a man with a keen mind, deeply interested in our welfare, and with the courage to voice his opinions. And we treated him worse than a criminal.

Some day, we hope at least, we shall have solved the problem of distributing the goods made by our wonderful system of production. It will probably be tba work of many men, and require many years of time, but it is inconceivable that we haven't the intelligence to do it. Every time that arrogant ignoranca triumphs and our Lindberghs are beaten down, by just so much time will we retard that happy day, and deprive ourselves of the things we have learned to make, but not to distribute in a satisfactory way.

A NEW FIELD OF EDUCATION

Many plans are now being advanced in regard to the best method of spending the fifty thousand dollars appropriated by the Federal government for giving the unemployed youth an opportunity to carry on their education. Some favor adding Junior College subjects to the highschool curriculum, and others the outright payment of college tuitions for students who are too poor to continue their education.

The plan that strikes ns as the most satisfactory is the one outlined by Roman Becker in a recent letter to the Minneapolis Tribune. This calls for a aystem somewhat like the Danish folk schools, which have been so largely instrumental in making Denmark one of the most civilized and progressive countries in the world.

There ara many unemployed who are eager to develop themselves if they only had the opportunity. The enormous increase in the nse of libraries testify to that fact, altho in many places library funds are now unfortunately cut down to the point where it is impossible to supply more than a few of those who crave further education. Working thru the libraries, the University Extension division and local educators, a system could be set up with the Federal funds that have already been supplied, which would meet the needs of older people as well as thosa of high school and college age, thereby giving those who are unemployed an opportunity to develop themselves along any line they wish during a period that would otherwise be perhaps only an ugly gap in their lives.

Governor Olson'a plan for using some of the Federal Public Works funds for providing the unemployed with an opportunity to further their education has met with a hearty response from the press of the country. With the increased leasure brought about thru unemployment and the six hour day in industry, the time has come when facilities for education of one kind or another shonld be open to all who want to take advantage of them.

Getting Rid of Olson

Let's see! 'Way back yonder, months before election, Big Business newspapers carried stories that Governor Olson was to become ambassador to Norway. Remember? Next he was "reported" to be considering retirement for two years to go into "training" to defeat Senator Shipstead in 1934.

After election, when Olson returned with a vote greater than that of his combined opponents, Shipstead was "about to resign", become ambassador to Norway and Olson would be appointed to fill the Senator's nnexpired term. This "with the certainty that he could be elected for tha six year term in 1934." Remember that one?

Now we have another. Minnesota'a Farmer-Labor governor is "being considered" for the ambassadorship to Russia! And that, like the rest of it is blab.

Big Bnsiness in Minnesota is frantic to rid itself of Olson. No other governor in America is such a thorn in the side of predatory wealth. Here lia billions of dollars worth of yet unplundered natural riches and Special Privilege, halted by the Farmer-Labor regime, would move heaven and earth to transport Olson some place else. But the methods intended to accomplish that are so foolish, so childlike, so stupid. If ever mortal man was taken to the edge of a cliff, shown the kingdoms of the world and promised his choice of them if he only would leave the scene of suspended lootinb, that man is Floyd B. Olson, Farmer-Labor Governor of the State of Minnesota.

Well, this is official, authoritive and final: Floyd B. Olson is not roing to become ambassador to Russia nor anywhere else. He's going to continna in tha office of Governor of Minnesota. Let the Capitalist papers play aronnd witb that one for awhile.— Farmer-Labor Leader.

Soma of tba Repnblican papers are predicting tbat Governor Olson will run against Senator Shlpstead.— That isn't a prediction, it's n prayer.

God give us men; a time like this demands
Stout hearts, clear minds, true faith and ready hands.

Men whom the lust of office will not kill,
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy,
Men who possess opinions and a will,
Men who have honor; men who will not lie.
Men who will stand before a demagogue
And damn his traitorous flattery without winking.
Strong men, sun crowned, who live above the fog,
In public duty and private thinking.
For while the rabble with their thumbworn creeds;
Their loud professions and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife; lo! freedom weeps;
Wrong rules the land and waiting justice sleeps.

HOW FAR BACK TO THE LAND?

by Willard Tilden Davis

(Condensed by Don Snyder from the Aug. 9, issue of the New Republic.)

Among the divers proposals for remedying our economic ills none bobs up more persistently than the back-to-the-land theory. For the last three years in particular our magazines have pictured the utopian results of settling idle men on the fat, fair and abundant lands of our country. Millions of our restless and disillusioned men feel almost instinctively that if they could only have tha opportunity to wiggle their toes into the good brown earth they could thumb their noses at an unkind, artifical and mechanical culture.

But we can no more return to these past conditions than we can return to our childhood. Even the Indian, the South Sea Islander, the African Bushman, inevitably feel the resistless pull of this great world economy and are torn, sad and protesting but ruthlessly, from the springs of their simple and ancient cultures. It is still physically possible for men to live like the peasants of the thirteenth century. They would not starve to death and they would be clothed. But the resistless pull of the current of money, automobiles, radios, Greta Garbo, will sweep away and dissolve in the great common whirlpool any group that seek in nny degree to approximate the older economy.

The truth is we now have too many men on the land, not too few. Anybody curious to see what happens of cities and almost of civilization has only to visit the Ozark regions of Arkansas, or the black and the white small farmers of Georgia, or the mountain men of western North Carolina, or the marginal farmers of Michigan and Wisconsin. I think those who cry out for a back-to-the-land movement are advocating a defeatist program and a lost cause. Why propose as a remedy a thing that is being tried with such ill success already by literally millions of our peopla?

I myself live on an acreage, five good, fat, Nebraska acres. I love it. For thirteen years I have made it my home. I do not farm it part of the year and help Mr. Ford make automobiles the balance of the time, as he suggests farmers might do, but I approximate this by dividing my time between my farm and my office. Unless the account books at both ends prevaricate, the plan is not a financial success. My apple trees are a disgrace. At an earlier and enthusiastic period of my acreage experience I used to spray from three to five times per season. My activities cost me more than the apples were worth. A hundred miles southeast of me are great orchards of thousands of acres. Here these things are taken care of with scientific accuracy and mechanical efficiency. My little orchard can't compete.

I finally raised chickens with reasonable success. But what a costly victory! Some of this experience was a joke, some a nightmare and some a cause for honest pride.

It is a aignificant fact that none of our agricultural collegea seems to be advocating any back-to-the-land movement. Specialization is just as essential in agriculture as it is in any other line of endeavor. Tbe small farmer with little capital and many lines of agricultural effort is doomed either to extinction or a life of grinding toil for a bare subsistance under conditions far from health, wealth and contentment.

As I said, I live on an acreage. I also have a 320 acre farm in the wheat belt of western Nebraska. The latter in reality is not a proper farm unit, altho it is all in cultivation. It is not a profitable unit even under normal conditions. The poor devil who farms it is constantly bankrupt and continues on sufferance of the local Shylock and stingy loans from Uncle Sam. Each decade the census shows our Nebraska farmers growing fewer in number, the farms greater in extent. Alexander Campbell tells us that wbeat farming is most economically done on units of about three thousand acres. Russian communism is simply carrying on a worldwide process when it sweeps up the small farmer wholesale and organizes farm units.

For many years I myself lived on a farm in western Nebraska and saw a whole community of farmers fail simply because their farm unit was to small. We were all in a devil of a fix and told it to the world. In perspective, however, it seems to me our trouble was mostly in trying to make four farms grow where only one sbould have been planted.

There is a vast deal of difference between making a living on a standardd of decent American life and eking out a mere existence. The small farmer is generally doomed to the latter condition and understanding men will seek to decrease rather than increase his numbers. Does he not need to have good schools for his children? Must he not have dentistry and medical care and hospitalization?

Agriculture like everything else rushes forward to specialization, scientific management and mechanization. The small-farm unit is going to the scrap-heap as certainly as the Model T. We need fewer farmers not more, if agriculture is to be saved from bankruptcy. We need larger units and fewer farms. Shall we seek to answer the preposterous dilemma by a defeatist program aeeking to bring back to life a rural society that is rapidly passing and that never was so good as advertised? Would it not be better to go forward and seek new remedies for new conditions?

by

R. A. Trovatten,

MinnesotaCommissinner of Agriculture, Dairy and Food, St. Paul, Minn.

Farmers in certain counties in the northern part of the state are in danger of losing their seed bnsiness, it was pointed ont by C. P. Bull, director of the seed and weed division of tbe state department of agriculture. The territory referred to consist of a ribbon of land from Roseau to Warroad, Baudette, International Falls, littlefork, Northome, Bemidji, Park Rapids, Bagley, Thief River Falls, and back to Roseau.

According to Mr. Bull, tests of seeds from this area have disclosed considerable weed content, which is attributed to carelessness and indifference on tbe part of farmers to the state seed and weed program. He said that seed and weed meetings in this district have not been well attended and that a lack of enthusiasm has been shown, even by district chairmen, who by virtue of their positions are required to be present.

Mr. Bull emphasized that there is no more favorable section of the state for growing clover and other seeds than this area, and if farmers would adhere to the state's program, excellent opportunities exist for the development of the seed business there. In this respect, he compared the interest displayed by farmers in central and southern Minnesota; where, he stated, meetings are well attended and results are being obtained.

"Analysis of samples of seed from these points," Mr. Bull said, "show unmistakable evidence of carelessness and indifference, or inability to meet the problem successfully in order to avert the dangers ahead. And just as surely as history repeats itself, this section of Minnesota will lose the seed business as did many another section where the matter of using and growing clean seed were neglected.

"Attandance at weed and seed meetings have been discouraging: At Northome on July 12, sixteen chairmen were called— three came, total present, eight; at Littlefork on July 17, twelve chairmen were called— seven came, total present 15; at Birchdale on July 17, seven chairmen were called— two came, total present eight; at International Falls on July 18, five chairmen were called— one came, total present two; at Roseau on July 14, 32 chairmen were called— 19 came, total present 35; at Warroad on July 15, 8 chairmen were called— one came, total present three.

"It is quite different in central and southern Minnesota. Meetings are well attended and is interest shown in weed and seed control. The Minnesota Department of Agriculture is ready to give every and all assistance within its power, but first local people must recognize the fact that the big effort is theirs to make. All advice, preventative nnd curative, will avail little or nothing without cooperation from those to whom such advice is intended to serve."

A MASTER OF STRATEGY

By this time it must be very apparent to every observer that the Mayor is a keen and resourceful politician. He naturally will deny this, and maintain that ha is just blundering along, doing the very best he knows how for the benefit of the citizens of our prospering community. But in thus discounting his own prowess, he is of course like all other masters, loath to admit his own superior ability. Which in itself is another proof of his extraordinary talent.

Having been elected on an opposition ticket to that from which the members of the council was elected, he had reasons to believe that he would have to deal with a recalcitrant and stubborn body of men. The manner in which ha has through co-operation and diplomacy gained their good-will and confidence in a short period of twenty months is therefore little short of genius.

It must have required tremendous self-control to sit in and see tha council approva the auditorium plans and send the architect away happy and afterwards take his objections to the newspapers and to the citizens, thus relieving the council of the burden of hearing his dissent at a tima when they wera already so sorely beset with innumerable other worries. We are inclined to doubt that the members of the City Council fully appreciate his unselfish self-sacrifice in this matter.

The manner in which ha has handled the diesel proposition however, must really be conceded to be his master stroke. When the council was besieged by "small-town politicians, high-pressure salesmen" and hectic engineers demanding that the city power plant be augmented by another diesel unit he very obligingly vetoed their resolution calling for bids, thus informing the "small-town politicians and the high-pressure salesmen" that the city really needs no naw diesel and that the council is really only some good-natured, doting old men who really are not to be bothered and imposed upon by that kind of "alickers."

To further prove his desire to be of assistance to the council in its hour of need, he stayed away from the public hearing held on the question of buying anotber diesel; he emphatically "knew nothing" about tbe figurea presented there in regard to tbe cost of production, cost of maintainance, cost of highline stand-by, as presented at that meeting; nor that at that meeting there were about fifty citizens present in favor of the purchasa while only two declared against it. To further clarify the situation he imported an engineer to go over tha plant and make a report of his findings to tha Civic and Commerce association at its Thursday noon luncheon, rather than to transgress on the time of the council to have his engineer make his report to them. In fact there was only one thing lacking to make it a perfect move, that was to have had his engineer appear befora the Workmens' Protective League, the Sons of Norway, the Tronderlag, the Rotarians and the Elka with his report also. All of these various organizations are of conrse mora vitally concerned with the signing of contracts for additional power tban the City Council.

After comparing his statesmanship with that of Disraeli, Bismarck, Gladstone, Sverdrup and Lincoln I find it hard to believe that he has had no previous experience as a public official.

"How to Win Men"

By CORONA REMINGTON

©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

ALMOST on the verge of tears Claire Newton sat curled up in the one big comfortable chair in her bedroom. Her chin cupped in her hand, she reread the paragraph in "How to Win Men," chapter 12, page 226.

"Men like girls to do as they wish them to do, they like to feel that they are ruling things. Any girl who foolishly dares to have opinions contrary to her lover's—or to refuse to do things he wants to do and think the way he thinks is imperiling her popularity."

Well, she had always done as Dick Barton had wanted. She had gone to the movies when she had wanted to dance. She had eaten in a restaurant when she had preferred preparing a picnic supper and driving out to the country to eat it in some green pasture, beside a brook. She had done everything according to the directions given in "How to Win Men" and—she had failed.

Here was the last day of the second week slipping into eternity since Dick had not so much as called her—and she had liked him, more than she would admit even to herself. She loved his sunny manner, his tall, wiry slimness. She had thought that he liked her—a little perhaps. For weeks he had been so attentive, calling her up nearly every day, taking her out, sending her flowers and candy; then suddenly it had all stopped. And last night when she was at a movie with her sister, didn't she run right into him with some girl hanging on his arm and looking up at him as only blue-eyed girls can look at men!

She brushed away the stinging tears with a gesture of impatience and flung the book she had been reading across the room.

"Darn you!" she said to the prostrate volume, to Dick, to the girl she had seen draped on his arm last night.

Then she got up, turned off the light and slid into bed.

The next morning there were dark circles beneath her big brown eyes that gave them a tragic expression and instead of the staccato little tap tappings her heels usually made as she hurried gaily along to work, she moved listlessly this morning without animation or joy.

"Miss Newton, what happened?" asked Mr. Dedron, her boss, pulling out his watch as she entered the office. "I've been waiting for you for twenty minutes."

"I—can't help it!" she was amazed to hear her voice say. "I know I'm awfully late and what can I do about it?"

Tears were standing in her eyes and her voice broke on the last words. It was just like old Dedron to come to the office on time the only morning she had been late in months.

"Let's take dictation first," he said more kindly a moment later, making a mental note to see that she didn't work overtime quite so much.

She had scarcely begun the first letter when the telephone at her elbow jangled in its important, persistent way. With a jerk she removed the receiver from its hook.

"That you, Claire?" Dick's voice asked.

"Yes," replied the girl, too taken back to think what manner she should use toward him after his cool neglect.

"Is Mr. Dedron there yet?"

"Yes."

"Hang! I'm sorry. Well, anyhow, let's go out to the beach tonight."

"Darned if I will!" said Claire with unmistakable vehemence as she slammed the receiver on its hook.

When she reached home late that afternoon she found Dick seated in his car waiting for her.

"Jump in, Claire," he called cheerfully, but she only flushed angrily and started up the stairs to the house. With a bound Dick had left the car and was at her side.

"Come on, Madcap," he teased, gently but firmly leading her toward the car.

She knew if she attempted to argue with him she would begin to cry so she permitted him to help her into the car. Quickly jumping in beside her, Dick threw in the clutch and they sped away. For the first few miles he said nothing, then placing a hand over hers he slowed down and began to talk:

"You know Claire I always thought you were a cute kid and I was goofy about you, but you seemed sort of wishy-washy. Fact is I got tired of hanging around a girl who never had any opinions of her own; when you ripped out that 'Darned if I will' this morning, I could have hugged you. You have independence of your own after all."

"Dick, is that really—why you—quit?" she asked breathlessly.

"Sure. Why not?"

"Oh, oh, oh, and I thought—" she checked herself suddenly.

"Come on, what did you think?" he said coaxingly.

He stopped the car and took both her hands in his. "Thought I liked that sort of girl?"

Claire flushed and nodded.

"Thunderation, no! No man cares for a namby pamby. But, say, did you really want me to—like you?"

Without waiting for her answer he boldly took her in his arms. "You imp," he laughed—and kissed her.

U. S. Has Had Only Nine Generals, Three Admirals

There have been nine generals, fifteen lieutenant generals and but three admirals.

Those holding the rank of general: George Washington (June 5, 1776); Ulysses S. Grant (July 25, 1866); William T. Sherman (March 4, 1869); Philip H. Sheridan (June 1, 1888); John J. Pershing (October 6, 1017); Tasker H. Bliss (October 6, 1917); Peyton C. March (May 20, 1918); Charles P. Summerall (February 23, 1929); Douglas MacArthur (November 21, 1930).

The lieutenant generals have been: George Washington, Winfield Scott, Ulysses S. Grant, William T. Sherman, Philip H. Sheridan, John M. Schofield, Nelson A. Miles, Samuel B. M. Young, Adna R. Chafee, Arthur MacArthur, John C. Bates, Henry C. Corbin, Hunter Liggett, Robert L. Bullard and Edgar Jadwin.

The first admiral was David G. Farragut, who held that rank from 1866 until his death in 1870. David D. Porter was an admiral from 1870 until he died in 1891. The rank was recreated for George Dewey in 1899 and lapsed with his death in 1917.

Preserving Books With Air

The life of books can be greatly lengthened in libraries by proper air conditioning. Air washed with water, to which is added sufficient sodium compounds, will completely remove acids from the air, according to the bureau of standards. Acids, and especially sulphur dioxide—nearly always present in the air of industrial cities—destroy paper, turning it yellow and brittle, and causing it to crack and tear easily. The alkaline treatment of the air also prevents corrosion of metal furniture and equipment.

End of Captain Kidd

William (Captain) Kidd was born in Scotland and came to America when young; in 1695 the governor of Massachusetts placed him in command of a ship to suppress piracy, but he turned pirate and terrorized the coast. He was finally arrested, sent to England for trial and convicted of murder and hanged May 23, 1701. An English biographer says: "Whatever may have been Kidd's crime, it was clear that he had not had a fair trial, and was found guilty on insufficient evidence."

Treed Girls of Papua

The marriage customs of the Kolari tribes inhabiting the coast regions of New Guinea, near Port Moresby, are peculiar in that young girls from the age of six are confined in cages which they cannot leave until the day they are married. They are guarded by old women and leave their cages only once a day to make their ablutions. The cages are placed within the houses perched up in tall trees for safety. The houses are called "dobos," and contain a goodly supply of rocks for defensive purposes.

Jerusalem Artichokes

Jerusalem artichoke is a tuber rougher than a potato and smaller. They are grown much as potatoes, and need good soil to produce a good crop. The tubers are usually planted whole about a foot apart, three or four inches deep, in rows 2½ to 3 feet apart. They are kept cultivated as potatoes. They are very hardy, and will stay in the ground all winter in good condition if necessary.

Up in the Air

One of the famous Piccard twins will attempt a record flight into the stratosphere at A Century of Progress—the Chicago World's Fair. Here is Twin Jean inspecting the gondola in which the flight will be made, in the presence of thousands assembled in Soldier Field.

BIG BREEDING STOCK BEST FOR BABY BEEF

That those in charge of Minnesota's annual Carlot Baby Beef contest are on the right track in encouraging beef cattle men to use good, big, breeding stock, is indicated in a statement made by Roscoe R. Snapp, associate professor of animal husbandry, University of Illinois, to W. E. Morris, extension livestock specialist University Farm, who conducts the baby beef contests.

After reading the report of the 1932 contest, Prof. Snapp wrote Mr. Morris as follows: "I thoroughly agree with your comments regarding the importance of size in breeding herds kept for the production of baby beef calves. Personally, I believe that many breeders are going too far in emphasizing extremely early maturity.

"Our own experimental herd (the Illinois Agricultural Experimental Station herd) is a good example. This herd consists of 20 pure-bred Hereford heifers bought from a large breeder near Kansas City, 3 years ago, when they were one year old. Last year, these heifers produced their first calves by a bull bred by another noted western breeder. This bull was a very low-down, blocky individual, but weighed only about 1,400 pounds in ordinary breeding condition. We weaned these calves the middle of October and fed them in dry lot through the winter. By the end of March, they were nice, fat, plump little "fellows" many almost ready for slaughter—but their average weight was a little short of 700 pounds. If the sire and dams had been larger, I believe that these calves would easily have weighed 150 pounds more at the same age."

Federal Grant of $16,000 Imperiled by Diesel Litigation, City Officials State

"The most deplorable thing about the whole diesel controversy is the stubborn refusal on the part of some of those who opposed the purchase to cooperate with the council in the matter," said H. O. Berve, City Attorney when interviewed and questioned about the matter today. "There is no excuse for the turn events have taken," he continued, "the litigation pending may mean the loss of the Federal grant and if so, it will cost the taxpayers of this city over $16,000 and if it does let there be no mistake about where the responsibility rests. It will rest squarely on the shoulders of those that filed the request for a restraining order and those who have encouraged the fight from the beginning.

"The diesel question arose over six months ago and during the intervening time the council has at all times invited the citizens to voice their opinion on the matter, at the council meetings when the question has been under discussion. The public was invited to attend the public hearing, and that hearing was well advertised, so that there is no excuse for the absence of those who "would like to see the council squirm" or the other opponents of the purchase who were then so conspicious by their absence. I know that I can speak for the council, when I say that they have always desired, and desire at this time to serve the people, and to carry out the wishes of the voters."

"The council made application some time ago for a federal grant towards this project," Paul A. Harris, member of the council said when asked whether he thought that the grant would be forthcoming, "and at that time when we filled out the questionaire given us, we stated that there is no litigation pending. That was the truth at that time. Now when legal proceedings have been started, it may be a grave question about getting this money, and it should be remembered that this is an outright gift which the city will not have to pay back nor pay interest on." he continued.

It was recalled that the administration publicly stated when this aid act was passed that municipal electric light and power projects would be considered as most favored for aid, this being in line with Roosevelt's power trust. The question of the request for a grant for a diesel purchase for this city is still pending, according to advises received by Mr. Berve this morning, the final decision being up to the federal administration, but prospects for getting it are believed to be excellent.

The hearing on the application for a temporary injunction has been postponed until Wednesday, September 13, at which time attorneys for the council and attorneys for the plaintiffs will appear before Judge Julius Olson at Warren and present the case. If a temporary injunction is grated at that time it will throw the entire question into the District Court at its next term here.

A representative of the engine company said when interviewed by the Forum reporter, that they have no fear of the outcome of the hearing. "We are not in the habit of borrowing trouble nor inviting lawsuits," he said, "and our attorneys gave thorough consideration to the legal aspects of the case before we submitted a bid. They are satisfied that the council is acting well within the powers vested in them by the voters who elected them when they let this contract. We are not worrying."

N. R. S. OFFICE IS INSTALLED IN CITY

A district office of the National Reemployment Service was established at Thief River Falls Monday in room 210 of the Citizens Bank building with Arnie Solem, up until this week editor of the Forum in charge. Arrangements for setting up the office were made by Dreng Bjornaraa, fieldman from the state office, who has charge of about one-third of the state.

The work of the local office will consist mainly of registering the unemployed with dependents in Pennington county for jobs under the Public Works program, Mr. Solem says, and in selecting men from the registered lists of seven other counties for employment on their public works projects. The eight counties to be serviced from the local office are Kittson, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Rosean. The law specifically provides in which order the men shall be selected, with qualified ex-servicemen who have dependents first on the list. Registration of local unemployed will start as soon as there is a public works project ready to be let.

In addition to registering unemployed for public works projects, the local staff will attempt to do all they can to find employment in other lines, acting as a clearing house for both employers and employed, and urging all those who are looking for workers in any line to make use of the service.

The local committee, consisting of B. O. Norby, chairman, Ward Long, secretary, C. E. Hellquist, J. A. Erickson, county engineer, and Mrs. E. J. Richords, will assist the manager in making selections for local projects. Working in conjunction with the manager, they have also made recommendations for an assistant, the final decision to be made by O. D. Hollenbeck, state director.

Mr. Solem resigned his position as editor of the Forum upon receiving word of his appointment, R. M. Aalbu taking over the editorship. Arthur A. Johnson, son of Alderman Algot Johnson, will be the news editor.

Mr. Bjornaraa, who has also set up local offices in Fergus Falls and Bemidji, is now making similar arrangements in Pope and Grant counties.

PROCLAMATION!

Since the automobile accident problem is among the serious situations confronting each city and community, and since it is common knowledge that last year 29,000 persons were killed and more than 900,000 injured by traffic accidents in our country, and since no day passes without many drivers and pedestrians by carelessness invite such accidents, I join the country-wide effort and proclaim September as safety-month in our city.

In keeping with the motives of this movement, I urge upon all drivers and pedestrians alike to get the habit of exercising care, using our streets and highways in such a manner as to insure the safety of all concerned. Avoid darting out into the streets from behind parked cars or crossing in the middle of the block. Avoid passing cars improperly and at excessive speed. Respect traffic signals and co-operate with the officials who are in charge of the enforcement of laws and ordinances designed for the protection of all.

COUNTY RANKS HIGH IN T.B. TEST

Pennington county cattle herds passed the tuberculin test for tuberculosis with a minimum of infection to become an accredited county on the first official test. Veterinarian Dr. L. R. Twete announced yesterday that out of twenty-three thousand cattle tested on seventeen hundred farms only twenty-two developed tubercular reactions. This is the lowest disease test for this number of cattle ever to be taken in the state of Minnesota.

No big brakes were detected in any one herd due to the large amount of private work carried on by local veterinarians and county cattle producers. Cattle have been constantly tested before auction sales to prevent spread of the disease. In 1922 Pennington county had the largest number of accredited herds and the lowest percentage county in the United States.

Pennington county is one of the last to become accredited in Minnesota, there being some twenty counties at the present not accredited. However Pennington has some of the highest grade accredited herds in this section of the country and is recognized as an outstanding dairy county.

Thief River Falls Seed House Installs New Machinery For Making 'Hardy North' Feed

Individual Motors Have a Total of Over 110 Horsepower

Remodeling of the building and installation of new machinery has just been completed at the Thief River Falls Seed House plant near the Soo tracks. The new equipment will facilitate the manufacture of "Hardy North" feeds and foods which has enjoyed such wide-spread popularity

Mr. Hoel, who became manager of the institution two years ago, believed that there should be a local market established for farm products grown in this community. He therefore decided to install feed mills and a mixer, and manufacture a line of poultry and dairy feeds under the brand name "Hardy North". This product was first marketed about a year ago, a poultry mash only being attempted to begin with. The product met with instant favor in the community and the line was expanded to include chick starter, turkey mashes, farina and rolled oats. The last two items being select products shipped in and put up under the "Hardy North" brand.

This summer the building has been remodeled, the roof of a part of it being raised 12 feet and a "nigger heaven" constructed to accomodate additional machinery. This week the installation was completed and the plant now is in position to manufacture on a larger scale. A new mash mixer has been installed, the old one now being used for a sacker, an oat huller, a corn cracking mill which also can be used for oat rolling, a cyclone elevator and feed cooler, cracked corn grader and new bins and spouts are only a part of the new equipment. All machines are equipped with individual motors and the total of the motors in the plant are in excess of 110 horsepower.

"We believe that locally grown farm products can be and should be locally processed" Mr. Hoel said, "and the response our introduction of "Hardy North" brand products received has justified our contention. There is no reason for paying handling charges and freight on our raw products to other cities and another set of charges to ship the manufactured products back here."

SCHOOLS TO OPEN TUESDAY, SEPT. 5

With only four days of vacation left, school activities are scheduled to start with a general teachers' meeting on Labor Day. Students will report Tuesday morning, Sept. 5, to their respective schools where the morning will be given to organization of classes. Regular class work will begin in the afternoon.

Principal W. G. Claffy announced this morning that the enrollment has reached six hundred and fifteen, and that he expects more registrations before school opens. Of this number fifty-four are students from outside the district, thirty-one being seniors in high school. Non-rehident students are admitted free on the same basis as resident students, Tuition for non-residents being paid by the state.

Preparing to handle a record enrollment, the high school library has been moved upstairs where it will occupy what was formerly two rooms, the partition having been removed to enlarge its capacity. Mr. Bye states that one hundred new books will be added this year.

Two changes appear in the faculty, Miss Hattie F. Diebel being transferred from the Northrop to the high school where she will assume the teaching of history. Chester Myrom has been added as part time instructor in mathematics. He is a graduate of Luther college of Decorah, Iowa, and last year was substitute teacher here.

Farmer-Labor Club Holds Successful Picnic at Squaw Point Sunday Afternoon

Approximately 2,000 people attended the Farmer-Labor picnic held at Squaw Point last Sunday. The weather was ideal and apparently everyone there enjoyed the outing to the fullest.

A splendid program of entertainment and speeches featured the afternoon, with Tom Quamme, professional comedion and the speakers holding the interest of the audience thruout.

C. D. Egley, manager of the Farmers Union Livestock Commission agency at St. Paul was the first speaker and brought his arguments over with a story about bees in a privately owned beehive. A demonstration with miniature bags of wheat and miniature pairs of shoes showed the audience how the international bankers control the currency system and thru it all avenues of trade. The demonstration brought laughter and applause from the audience.

Attorney General Peterson had been delayed thru car trouble and did not arrive until 4 o'clock, while in the intermission the crowd had been entertained with short talks by Magnus Wefald, son of Knud Wefald, former congressman from this district and several specialities by Quamme.

Mr. Peterson spoke on the problems with which the administration has had to dea since he took office and explained at some length the efforts of the chain bankers to stop the re-financing of rural credit department bonds recently. These bonds were to be sold to relieve the state investment board and release its funds for use in assisting in local relief. Mr. Peterson said, and the litigation started by the chain bankers for which Senator A. J. Rockne appeared as council means that a lot of very necessary relief work is being delayed.

Interesting Discussions Are Heard by Farmer-Labor Club

Federal Seed Loan Debtors May Pay Harvest Cost from Crop Proceeds, Chief Holds

"Borrowers from the Government Seed Loan Office, who are without funds or other means of credit, may use the proceeds of a portion of their 1933 crop to defray actual harvest and threshing expenses providing an equal amount is applied on the Government loan, according to a statement issued this week by L. J. Paulson, Regional Manager of the Crop Production Loan Office at Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Without requiring the filing of liens the Government has authorized buyers to permit harvesting and threshing allowances in amounts not to exceed a total of $2.00 per acre upon presentation of receipted statements for such expenditures, providing remittances are made on a parity. When other lien holders are involved, their rights must be given the consideration their secured position requires.

The plan will work as follows: Where a farmer is otherwise unable to pay harvesting expenses of, for example, $50.00, he must market $100 worth of grain. In this case the buyer would be authorized to allow necessary expenses up to $50 and to remit the other $50 to the Government Seed Loan Office towards the payment of the government loan.

It is anticipated by Mr. Paulson that all grain buyers will follow the procedure adopted by the buyers last year in making a check for the harvesting and threshing expenses directly to those who furnished the harvesting and threshing equipment, supplies, or labor, thus insuring payment of the bill for the protection of the buyer.

The crop buyer will hold the receipts or statements of harvesting and threshing expense for verification by government field inspectors, and must show that a remittance to the Seed Loan Office was made in an amount equal to that allowed for expense."

NEW YORK HOME OWNERS DEMAND A MORATORIUM

Albany, N. Y.— More than 1,000 small home owners came to the state capitol to present a petition to Gov. Lehman urging mortgage relief and next day Lehman asked the state legislature to declare a moratorium until May 1, 1934, on fortclosures against small home owners and farmers who have met their interest and taxes but have been unable to reduce the principal of their debt.

The foreclosure moratorium is designed to tide over home owners and farmers until they can take advantage of the 4 per cent bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corp.

SIX WEEKS' CREAMERY COURSE OPENS JAN. 3

Minnesota's Six Weeks' Creamery Course, conducted by the Dairy Division of the University Department of Agriculture will be offered next winter, starting January 3, and running through to February 14, announces Prof. W. B. Combs.

The Six Weeks' course was introduced at University Farm nearly 40 years ago and up to now has given instruction to nearly 4,000 creamery men from many states. It will be the only dairy short course offered at Minnesota this year.

The course again will be very intensive, including such subjects as creamery buttermaking, dairy bacteriology, milk and cream testing, creamery accounting, creamery arithmetic and creamery mechanics. This year the course can accomodate no more than 24 men. Persons wishing detailed information should write the Dairy Division, University Farm, St. Paul.

Officials Continue Car Light Check-up

With approximately 40,000 cars already found with defective lights, police in more than 100 Minnesota towns and cities are continuing their efforts until faulty lights are eliminated as a traffic menace, Captain D. C. Broderick, president of the Minnesota Police association, stated this week.

The effectiveness of the unified police movement against improper lights, which is being conducted in connection with the Minnesota Safety Council's "Drive Carefully" campaign, was commented upon by Chief J. P. Arnoldy of the state highway patrol, who said that patrolmen found only two cars with improper lights in a city of 10,000 while assisting police one night during the latter part of the week.

Chief Arnoldy stated that while 40 000 cars have been found with defective lights, he believed that more than 400,000 drivers have had their lights checked and put in condition after be- free inspection stations to have their lights checked before they encountered police testers, as it was learned during the brake check-ups that the tests were no idle gestures.

Wherever motorists are being stopped for bad lights, Captain Broderick said, the police are urging them to have complete safety tests at authorized stations and receive "OK" windshield stickers which certify their machines are mechanically safe in all respects.

LITTLE MERCHANT IS DOOMED UNDER CODE, SAYS C. OF C. SEC'Y.

"I can perceive no alternative to the National Recovery Administration's forcing out of the retail business thousands of little merchants," says Harvey Campell, secretary of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce.

"Our first impulse is to feel profoundly sorry for them," he declares. "But I am not sure that we ought not congratulate them. There should be little difficulty in absorbing the present small storekeeper into larger units.

Fine Prospects for Bankrupts

"It may be said, perhaps, that he thus sacrifices freedom of action. But, I dare say, thousands of such emrchants would most willingly have given up that freedom, during the last three years, for a snug berth at steady pay and with no share in the headaches that always afflict the owner of a retail enterprise in time of great stress."

Thousands of small business enterprises have already been forced to the wall during the depression, as blocks of vacant stores attest. But there is no evidence that small merchants found snug berths or that they are in a mood to receive congratulations.

Moratorium Law is Is up to U. S. Court

Brief on Legality of the State Holiday Law Submitted to U. S. Justices

The issue of constitutionality of the state's mortgage moratorium act was presented to the United States Supreme Court this week in a brief presented by attorneys for the Home Building and Loan Association.

The brief declares the 1933 mortgage act, recently upheld by the state Supreme Court deprives the building and loan organization of its contract rights under the mortgage, not by mutual consent, but by legislative act; that the federal constitution is violated by this claimed impairment of the contract; that it involevs taking property without due process of law in violation of the fourteenth amendment, and that the provision for "equal protection of the law" is violated.

The law in question permits a two-year suspension of mortgage obligations on homes and farms. Karl H. Covell and Alfred W. Bowen, acting for the building and loan association, has obtained transfer of all records in the case to Washington, and followed that this week with submission of a brief. They said they would ask the court to advance hearing on the issue.

Time Not Ripe For Third Party

Executive Committee of Continental Congress Advises Delay

Some organizations in the Continental Congress are eager to launch Farmer-Labor parties within the states as early as possible, and have indicated their belief that the time is already ripe. The National Executive Committee of the Congress urges upon the states very careful consideration of the timeliness of such a move before it is attempted. Until broad support is assured, not simply from individuals but from a substantial base of mass organizations, an attempt to form a farmer-labor party is sure to prove unsuccessful, and its failure will make future action far more difficult. The National Executive Committee of the Congress is continually exploring the possibilities of independent political action but it feels that the time is not yet ripe and the mass sentiment not sufficient for such action.

Seven southeastern states, including Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and North and South Carolina were authorized to hold a Southern district Congress on Labor Day at High Point, North Carolina.

MILLIONS DAIRY AID IS PLEDGED

Butter and Cheese Surplus to Be Bought and Held to Restore Fair Price.

Washington—Secretary Wallace and and officials of the agricultural adjustment administration announced the far reaching decision of providing $30,000,000 to hold up the prices of butter, cheese and other dairy products. The plan is in line with the old equalization fee proposal. The dairy industry undertakes to reimburse the government for any loss that may be entailed by assessing a small tax to cover the deficiency. The government is to purchase such amounts of butter and cheese as may be necessary to sustain the market and will dispose of it as it can. The plan is declared by the dairymen themselves as not being a reversion to the stabilization program of the farm board, but more in line with the equalization fee idea. The decision is understood to have been especially urged by Secretary Wallace, following a meeting with representatives of dairymen from all over the United States. The delegation of dairymen included representatives of producers from coast to coast—also the governor's commission from Wisconsin and a committee named by Governor Olson consisting of John Brandt of Lake O'Lakes and W. S. Moscrip of the Twin City Milk Producers' association.

Poultry Must Be Meaty

Trying to raise poultry meat with insufficient feed has been a great disappointment to some beginners, says the Indiana Farmer's Guide. Wholesale buyers quickly run their fingers down the breast bones of the birds they buy. Roasters with razor breasts are quickly classed as No. 2 birds and buyers do not want them. At least the price per pound to the producer is too low to show anything but a loss. Thus there is proof that it pays to raise No. 1 birds.

Washington — President Roosevelt has announced that the Civilian Conservation Corps of 300,000 men will be kept at full strength through the winter. Some question had been raised as to whether, in view of the approach of snow, the enrolment might not be curtailed until spring but the President said much work could be done in some of the northern states all winter long and that new camps would be established in the south.

To Kill 5 Million Hogs to Raise Price

Chicago—Secretary Harry A. Wallace outlined the government's emergency hog program for buying 6,000,000 swine, employing meat packers to process them, and distributing the meat to the needy. In an address at the Century of Progress exposition, he said the program will be ready to go into effect in a few days and he expects it to boost purchasing power in the corn belt substantially.

When Education of Deaf Started

The first attempt to teach a deaf-mute recorded in the United States was Philip Nelson's in Rowley, Mass., 1679. From 1773 to 1776 there was a deaf boy in John Horrower's school, Fredericksburg, Va., but not until the early Nineteenth century was concerted action taken to educate deaf children. Francis Green of Boston, whose deaf son was sent to Edinburgh to be educated at Thomas Braidwood's institution, became much interested in the problem. With some ministers, he attempted a census of Massachusetts, 1803, when 75 deaf was found. They then estimated 500 deaf in the United States and urged the creation of a special school.

AN EXCELLENT CHOICE

This week Mr. Solem, editor of the Forum since January first assumes new duties, having been appointed local manager of the National Re-employment Administration,

We are going to miss Mr. Solem, he is an excellent writer and as editor of the Forum we believe that he has set a mark for us to shoot at. We believe too, that the re-employment committee has made a very wise choice in appointing him to his present position,-we feel that he is well fitted by education and temperament for what we believe will be a difficult and thankless task. However, knowing him as we do, we are confident that he will be a credit to the administration and to the community in his new duties.

ENDING WANT BY DESTROYING SURPLUSES

In calling atention to the fact that no act passed by the last session of the Congress can be a permanent solution of our economic ills, C. D. Egley, addressing the Farmer-Labor picnic last Sunday, put his finger on the most vulnerable spot in President Roosevelt's program. It must be apparent to everyone without requiring a deep study that destroying a coton crop will not put shirts on anyone's back; that curtailing the production of wheat and pork will not feed hungry stomachs. The best that can be hoped for from the agricultural program is that it will somehow enable the farmers to tide themselves over a period of readjustment, even tho the brunt of the load will fall on the consumers in general thru allotment taxes and higher prices. Nothing more fundamental can be hoped for at this time. However, because of the relief it will afford the hardpressed agrarian population, the farmers should cooperate to the best of their ability in the administration's efforts, backhanded tho they may be, and sign up the acreage limitation pledges. They should also give their patronage to those firms who are pledged under the blue eagle emblem. It is three years yet until an election and in the meantime we should certainly give the administration an opportunity to redeem itself. Regardless of what we may think of the methods being employed to effect an improvement, opposition to the program can only still further retard the long-hoped for recovery.

In the same manner, the NIRA program, admitting as it does the rights of the manufacturers to pass the increased costs of larger and longer payrolls on to the consumers in higher prices for merchandise can only be classed as temporory relief. For while it is with one hand putting an increased buying power into the hands of the people it is with the other taking it back in higher prices. The best that can be said of this part of the program then, is that it will so stagger employment that it will be possible for the people to exist. But for a real solution of our problems we will need to look to another administration, unless there should be some very revolutionary changes in the policies of the present one. This is not at all an impossibility, for the president has time and again admitted that he is not sure of where he is heading. It is conceivable that he will see the futility of the present course and decide on a program more likely to be successful in improving conditions.

Nevertheless, the program as it is today can at the best be made a somewhat less painful method of transition from this period of depression, to another era, the nature of which it will be for the voters to determine at the next election, than some one of a number of other methods that are proposed would be.

We can continue along this line of "reconstruction" and possibly patch up this insane system of distribution so that we may again enjoy some measure of prosperity, but if we will stop to analyze the situation, we will probably come to the conclusion that it is not prosperity we want, but security. And there is a vast difference between the two. An era of prosperity means inflation, booming stock markets, high-pressure salesmanship, top-speed production, frenzied finance and eventually,— another depression. But if it is security we want; security from want and destitution; security from foreclosures and evictions; security to bring up and educate our children into noble and desirable citizens, then we must look further than the NIRA or the government's agricultural program.

To our mind, there is only one way we can attain security, and that is thru the establishment of the co-operative commonwealth; a nation where we create wealth and plenty for use and enjoyment for the entire population, and not primarily to enrich anyone at the expense of his fellowmen.

To the end that such a state can be brought into existence, the farmers should organize and patronize his co-operative enterprises, and to that end the city workers should organize to the fullest extent, that they may use their collective power to the best advantage.

And to that end, they should both affiliate themselves with that political organization that embraces in its economic philosophy the ideals of the co-operative commonwealth.

In virtue trained, enlightened youth will love each fellow creature,
And future years shall prove the truth that man is good by nature.

Farm and Market

by
R. A Trovatten
Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture, Dairy and Food

Heat has been turned on the boys in tba agriculture department in Washington. A wava of protest was received by Secretary Wallace from the farm belt that agricultural recovery was not keeping step with indnstrial recovery.

Your Governor bad a lot to do with turning on this heat. Last week a delegation from Minnesota paid tba boys in Washington a visit. They wanted to know when aomthing was going to be done about elevating prices on diversified products of the farms.

This tirado must have hit the bull's eye as things began to happen immediately after the delegation paid their respects. A plan was launched for removing surplus butter from the market. Thirty million dollars has been set aside for this job. At this writing the details have not been worked out.

The hog reduction program has already started with great alacrity. Uncle Sam is purchasisg hogs on a grand scale. Four million little piga, 25 to 100 pounds apiece and one million piggy sows will be slaughtered on the alter of the National Recovery Act. It is estimated that this move will cut down pork production 25 per cent.

The little pigs 25 to 80 pounds apiece, are being tosaed into the kettle and melted into grease and fertilizer. The edible portions of the 80 pounders and over will be given by the government to charitable organizations.

At the present time Uncla Sam is paying for the pigs out of his own pocket book, the fertilizer, grease and whatever becomes of the bigger ones belong to him. He also pays the packers for the processing. Latter it is planned that a processing tax on hogs will take care of the bill.

Uncle Sam has set the price. The scale runs from $5.60 per hundred for the 96 to 100 pounders to $9.10 per hundred for the light weights of 25 to 30 pounds.

The little pigs and aows are coming into S. St. Paul too fast, more then can be handled. There is little pigs all over the place; 3500 the first day the order was in effect; 3500 the aecond day, and 4000 tbe third day. All total, 75,000 were recieved at this point last week. If you plan on shipping under this plan, you had better check with your commissino house. However, do not be concerned about being left out. Uncle Sam nas decided to clean up the hog surplus and if you have any that qualify, get your shipping date and send them on. You will assist in making roast pork and appla sause as scarce a delicacy as turkey breast nnd cranberries.

WHY HITLER?

(By Benjamin C. Marsh, in tha People's Lobby Bulletin, August, 1933.

About a year before the World Wer the late Lord Roberts, military idol of Great Britain, said:

"How was this Empire of Britain founded? War founded this Empire—war and conquest! When we, therefore masters by war of one-third of tbe habitable globe, when we propose to Germany to disarm, to curtail her navy or diminish her army, Germany naturally refuses; and pointing not without justice to the road by which England, sword in hand, has climbed to her unmatched eminence, declares openly or in the veiled language of diplomacy, that by the same path, if by no other, Germany is determained also to ascend! Who amongst us, knowing the past of this nation, and the past of all nations and cities that have ever added the lustre if their name to human annals, can accuse Germany for the utterance of her grentest a year and a half ago with any feelings except those of respect?

John Strachey in his recent book on Germany and Hitler, asaerts that Hitler suppressed the Socialists, Communists, Jews and Pacifists not because of their economic views chiefly, but because they were internationalists, and he was determined to create a nationalist state for the Junker large landed estate holders, and the large industrialists, whose interests he is primarily furthering.

Leaders of the Socialist and Communist Parties who had fled Germany, whom I recently interviewed in Geneva and Paris, corroborated this conclusion, as did professors and journalists who bad just come from Germany.

Recollections of the causes of the World War and the treatment accorded Germany by America and the nations with which we wera associated in that war which we entered against the Imperial German Government can explain, though not justify, the revolution which Hitler says is now ended.

The French translation of Hitler's memoirs, and the official declarations of the Socialist National Party by O. Schied, reveal a brutal imperiousness, no less and no more revolting than the betrayal of the American people by Woodrow Wilson at the behest of Morgan and Company, fiscal agents of Great Britian, who would have been bankrupt if we had not saved England and her allies.

A report of the British Board of Trade after the war, admitted that England fought Germany because she threatened England's commercial and maritime supremacy.

Ellen Wilkinson's book on the recent atrocities in Germany, the compilations of the organization in America financed by wealthy Jews—who have skinned their fellow Jews, and others in America—the carefully documented and illustrated book prepared by the International Committee for the Victums of Hitler Fascism, of which I recently saw advance sheets in Paris, establisb beyond doubt the horrors of Hilterism.

They remind me of the tortures inflicted with the connivance of Woodrow Wilson upon conscientious objectors during our effort to save Morgan's loans to England, and after the Armistice, which I personally and futilely begged President Wilson and stop.

This is the same saintly and patriotic Morgan and Company which was recently shown before the Sanate Committee on Banking, to have a preferred list of highly placed government officials.

Having failed in physical combat to defeat Germany— who belately saught a place in tha ann usurped by older nations— and her allies, we and the nations with which we were associated, not allied in the world war hecame allies in the holy cause of exterminating Germany by reparations keeping her disarmed while we kept on increasing onr armaments in violation of Wilson's Fonrteen Points and the Versailles Agreement, took away her colonies and attempted to control her finances and her industry.

Wa drove the German people insane and now wonder that they have submitted to the terrorism of a charlatan of special privelege, who uses the term national Socialist instead of 'new deal'. He was brutal beyond words, in his suppression of every force which would or should, make for real industrial democracy on the pretext that he mnst have a free hand to create a brand new variety of new deal, but has turned Germany over to the old time exploiters.

It is significant that since Hitler's terroristic practices, Russia has signed a trade pact with Germany.

Trade unionists, Socialists and Communists now regret that they did not block Hitler in his early usurpations of power which were very similar to those of Roosevelt.

Now they realize it is to late—as we shall find shortly in America, unless we act soon.

Hitler and the industrialists and landed proprietors who made him, realize that every great nation, England, America, France, Italy and Japan have been headed for tha past two years toward nationalitic self-sufficiency.

They have followed the course of events.

To the Editor:—

Tha matter of the purchase of an additional generating unit for our Municipal Light Plant is causing considerable discussion. The Civic and Commerce Association has gone on record as being opposed to tha purchase of this unit at this time, it seems that they would have tha pnblic believe that some other time might be allright. The facts of the matter as I see them are this, the local Civic and Commerce association is merely a branch of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, that has always been opposed to public ownership of any kind. Therefore it would be strange for them to approve of any plan to strengthen a Municipal project. I wisb the public would consider this phase of the situation before passing judgment upon the proposition.

Another important matter is the building of a new bridge across the Red Lake river by the State Highway department with Federal aid. I understand that there is a report being circulated that I am opposed to the building of this bridge. I was at the highway engineer's office in St. Paul and asked that this bridge be built and called the attention of that office to the importance of getting this project under way as soon as possible to relieve unemployment this fall and winter. Other members of the delegation called the attention of the department to the need for a bridge, but I think I was the only one who stressed the need of employment.

I did however mention that it was my opinion that trunk highways should not be routed thru the heart of the city on account of the traffic hazard, and suggested that a route along the east side of the Soo tracks be considered, Which I thought proper as it was the first time that the City Council had been given an opportunity to voice an opinion in tha matter.

Paul A. Harris.

Dear Editor:—

I would like to write about aoma things at the F-L picnic Sunday if you will be good enough to give me space in your paper. It was a good enough picnic bnt why F-L? Roosevelt is doing ten times more than the whole bunch of office jumpers from Governor Olson right down the line to the little fellows that run around like dogs after bones and can smell a job a mile and then maybe can't handle the job when they get it.

What bave Olson done to fix our Republican hard times and F-L job harvest, Absolutely the best thing for F-Labors to do is change to F. D., which all of ns that reads the newspapers, including the Forum, knows very well means Franklin Delano Roosevelt men.

Now why don't you get together after harvest and silo filling for a real picnic that you can call a Roosevelt picnic, and no more speakers criticising what is trying to be done to help us ont but something real constructive instead like we need. Think it over.

Roosevelt Democrat.

THIEF RIVER FALLS FORUM

Volume 2 THIEF RIVER FALLS, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1933 Number 23

SCHOOL YEAR IS STARTED TUES.

Tuesday morning one thousand four hundred and eleven students began regular class work in the Thief River Falls public schools. Supt. Bye states that last years enrollment on the first day was one thousand four hundred and thirty-six, twenty-five more than the first day this year. The small drop-off is accounted for by the numerous cases of whooping-cough that are effecting the grade students, however, Mr. Bye says, "instances where the disease is known or suspected are being carefully checked to prevent further outbreak."

A number of students from rural homes will begin classwork within two weeks, when harvesting and threshing is completed, Mr. Bys says. Kindergarten has an enrollment of sixty-seven, five more than last year. Registration for little folks in first grade and kindergarten closes September 18th. Judging from the number of registrations, it is expected that this years gross enrollment will exceed last years.

High school activities started with a general assembly. Mr. Bye spoke briefly and introduced the new teachers to the students. Registrations and class regulations were discussed and explained by Principal W. G. Claffy. Following the assembly class schedules were given to the students. In the afternoon regular class work began running, all regular classes on shortened periods. Mr. Claffy stated Wednesday that all the classes were large and that the commercial classes in particular are well filled.

Carl Syverrud Badly Injured as Truck and Coupe Collide Sunday

Hurled from the cab and into the ditch, Carl Syverrud of Goodridge, sustained a fractured skull and other injuries when the truck he was driving collided with a Chevrolet coupe driven by R. I. Fisher of this city Sunday afternoon at about 4:30. Mr. Fisher and his companion, Miss Elseth escaped injury except for a severe shaking up.

The accident occurred on State Aid road No. 2, two miles south of Goodridge. Both car and truck were wrecked, the coupe being beyond repair.

Mr. Syverrud was removed to a hospitol in this city and is reported to be resting fairly easy at the time of going to press. He has a good chance of recovery according to the doctors attending him.

Interior Finish of Auditorium Altered by Council Last Week

The city council met with Architect Ray Gauger in a special meeting last Thursday evening, when a general check-up of the plans and specifications of the new auditorium was made.

One change in the specifications was made when art stone, manufactured by the American Art Stone Co., of New Ulm was substituted for hard stone brick for interior finish. It is claimed that there is less expense in installation and that its construction is immune to cracking. This finish will be in three shades, a dark base, a lighter colored wainscoting, and a shade still lighter for the walls. While this finish will entail a somewhat higher cost, it is said to be more durable and will be easier cleaned. The change was decided upon after considerable discussion, and only after the contractor, Mr. Norby and Nels Olson had recommended it.

Acoustical treatment will be given the rear walls of the building and the facia of the balcony, by the installation of panels of special construction.

"After inspecting the progress made I am convinced that we will have a very fine building," Mr. Gauger said.

Mattson, Co. Superintendent Makes School Report to State

County Supertendent of Schools A. C. Mattson, in his annual state report, states that last year the total enrollment in Pennington county including rural and city schools was 2844 students. The county employed 125 teachers, 21 m and 105 women, to instruct this army of students.

Sixty-four teachers were employed in rural districts to instruct 1808 students. The average rural salary for teaching was $63 per month. Rural schools had from five to thirty-three students per school and the average number of days each student attended school was 118. Mr. Mattson stated that last year the rural schools were stronger financially then the preceeding year and that this year there are only three closed schools as compared to four last year Although he did not yet have a record of the enrollment for this term Mr. Mattson stated he had reason to believe that this years attendance would be greater than last years and that improved financial conditions will make it possible for all schools to open next year.

Following is a list of the schools and the teachers for the current term, Thief River Falls excepted: Dist. 1J, Clara Bendel; Dist. 2, Goldie Rem-

Captain Berling Appeals for Donations for Poor Relief

Captain Berling, of the Salvation Army, stated Tuesday that he is appealing to citizens for donations of household furniture, stoves, bedding, clothes and shoes to help out a great number of poor people in this vicinity. "One family lost everything they had when fire destroyed their home. The need is great," says Captain Berling. People wishing to give can call 246 and their donation will be picked up by the Salvation Army.

Jung's Build New Roof

A new roof is being put on Jungs Bakery this week. Constructed with a one inch insulator Mr. Jung states that it will tend to exclude the summer heat and hold out the winter cold. The insulating will help to keep the fire proof asphalt roofing from working loose with the change of temperature.

Football Prospects are Good, Eligibility Checked Close

Coach Roger Dooley announced yesterday that he has better material this year for football than he has had since he came here in the fall of 1931. He stated that he intends to build up a passing attack and expects to concentrate on place kicks because of the talent his recruits display in that line. Taking his candiates as a whole, he will have a team averaging 155 pounds. and with this weight expects to have a considerably stronger defense than in former years.

Backfield men who will shoulder the passing will be Paul Dahl and John Langseth, with Ernie Hellqnist, Robert Chommie; George Battleson and Frank Krause doing the plunging and running. Langseth and Battleson will take care of the kicking. Promising line material looms in the form of Ends like; Thomas Fuller, John Ward, Clarence Nickelson. Tackles; Martin Jorde, Gilbert Granum, Ciff Helland and David Belcher. Guards; Roy Swanson, Arvis Peterson, Lloyd Bradley and Berg. Center; Art Wold, Bob Frissell and Gunderson.

Superintendent Morris Bye states that in addition to complying with all the rules of the Minnesota State High-school League, an athlete must present his birth certificate before he will be eligible for schedule competition at Lincoln high school. This precaution is being taken to prevent a recurrence of any such misunderstanding as occurred last spring.

The Prowlers will start their season's play against Red Lake Falls next Friday, Sept. 15.

CO. BOARD HEARS RAY POPE'S PLAN

Proposing a plan whereby Pennington county would offer work-aid instead of poor relief, county overseer of the poor, Ray Pope, asked the county board Wednesday to give him the authority to wreck the old foundry building and erect a combination kitchen, warehouse and store-room. Mr. Pope stated that the building as it now stands, is of no practical use or value to the county. He proposes a kitchen with modest canning equipment, a large sink for cleaning and preparing produce to be canned, a large stove and boilers for cooking and a canning machine that can be bought for about ten dollars. Tin cans would be used, the original cost being about one cent per can and these cans can be used for four or five seasons.

The total investment, says Mr. Pope, will be very small, as wrecking of the old building and erecting the new one will be done by people who are indebted to the county for relief. "With community backing," says Mr. Pope, "the organization can easily become self-supporting. Canning for local housewives can be done for a small sum and give people a chance to work for what they get, rather than receive poor aid.

"This year we experimented in gardening," Mr. Pope said, "and altho we have not yet harvested the full fourteen acres, prospects are that there will be a good yield in spite of the dry season."

The board discussed the proposition and will act on it at a later meeting. If the plans are carried out, the building will be completed this fall or built as the first project next spring.

An old building on Fourth street, between Arnold and Duluth avennes, belonging to the county, and which has been condemned will be wrecked and removed this week under the supervision of Mr. Pope.

Arnie Solem, local manager of the National Reemployment Service appeared before the board and asked that it appropriate a ten dollars per month allowance to take care of part of the expenses of his office. Because of a legal question involved the matter was laid over until a later meeting.

Judges Chosen for Drum Corps Canning Contest

Judges chosen for the Drum Corps Canning contest were announced this week and will include Mrs. G. W. Booren, Mrs. H. Fuller, Mrs. Abbie Wassgren. The contest will close on September 21, and judging will begin on September 22. Prizes are being donated by the Olson Coffee company and the entries will be sold at the Drum Corps rummage sale on Sept. 22, and 23.

Corner-Stone of New Auditorium to be Laid With Appropriate Ceremonies in Short Time

City Clerk P. G. Pederson is gathering data this week which will be placed in the corner stone of the new auditorium with appropriate ceremonies to be held in the very near future. Among the papers to be enclosed in the stone will be copies of official papers of the city government and copies of the Forum carrying the stories of the destruction of the old auditorium, letting of the contract for the new structure and beginning of work on the new building as well as other papers containing valuable data relative to the occasion.

Work on the new building is progressing very satisfactorily according to the architect, Mr. Gauger who inspected the work this week. The concrete has been poured for the floor of that part of the building which will be devoted to the city offices, the boiler has been placed and bricked in and large quantities of brick, tile for the interior walls and stone for the trim are on the grounds.

Miss Bjolond, Home From India Tells of Missionary Work and Trip Through Europe

After three and one half years of Missionary work in India Miss Clara Bjoland arrived here Friday morning, September 1. After leaving here in 1926 she was first stationed at a girls boarding school at Kaira, India. "This is a place of interest," she says, "being a political hot bed near the home of Mahatma Gandi and is strongly in favor of home rule." The last two years she spent at the Rambai and Makti Missions. "Here," she states, "farming, sewing and printing are carried on by women; the blind are engaged in rope making from banana leaves."

Miss Bjolond states, "The population of India has increased ten per cent since 1921. That the masses are Hindus and Mohammedans and that clashes between the two factions are common because one worships a God and the other idols." "The work is interesting," she goes on, "we have reason to believe progress is being made, the people are good listeners but very hard to change. It is considered a sin to change religions by the multitudes."

"Suttee, the practice of a widow throwing herself on her husbands funeral pile where she burns to death, is now prohibited by British decree, but happens in some instances though quite rarely," says Miss Bjolond. Continuing she says, "child marriages are prohibited under the age of fourteen but it is a common practice to marry off youngsters and even infants."

Leaving Bombay on May 11 Miss Bjoland went by water to Genoa in eleven days and then by land to Switzerland where she spent some time waiting for the vigerous northern weather to abate. She says, "I was impressed by the beautiful hearty singing of the Swiss people. They are church people and seem settled, are satisfied and are thrifty and prosperous." Going thru Basil Manitz and Hamberg, Germany, Miss Bjoland says she was struck by the huge beautiful cathederals and the recovery Germany had made since the great war. The German people were extremly coureous she observed. Stopping in Copenhagen, Denmark, she states that she met many people who spoke good English.

After a trip to Sweden and Norway, Miss Bjorlond said, she sailed for America with the steamer Bergensfjord on July 21.

Miss Bjorlond has been ill since her arrival home and is now confined to her bed.

FOREST AND PEAT FIRES RAGE ON WIDE FRONT IN WARROAD AREA

Settlers Fleeing Their Homes as Advancing Flames Burns Houses and Stock

Forest and peat fires are raging over a wide front in the Warroad vicinity and threatens to envelop the entire Roseau Ridge country, according to reports received here this week. Sunday and Monday a fire-break was cleared and plowed around the village of Warroad and settlers in the surrounding territory are seeking refuge there to escape the flames.

A large corps of men from the C. C. camps and forest rangers are on the job fighting desperately to check the onward march of the conflagration. Another fire is burning on an 8 mile front in the Grygla country, according to the report, and a third is on a rampage in the vicinity of Pelan.

Harrowing experiences are related by refugees coming in to Warroad. Ed. Carrier a settler near the Cedar Bend swamps, was trapped in a well when he had fought the fire which was destroying his home until escape was cut off. He was rescued by Dick Willem, forest ranger of Warroad, so weakened that he was unable to crawl out of his place of refuge.

Willems reports that the fire victims have lost most of their belongings and that their livestock has perished. Two hundred tons of hay belonging to one, Phillippe was burned.

Grover Conzet, state director of forestry, who has been in active charge of the fire-fighters has issued a warning to the settlers to plow fire-breaks around their homes and to dam small streams whereever possible that they may be used as a refuge in case of extreme need. The weather has been cool the last 24 hours and small showers have aided the rangers in their work.

Montana Moves to Bar Bad Products

The flood of inferior farm and orchard products that was being trucked into Montana at this time last year has been elimated, as the result of the activities of the division of horticulture, state department of agriculture, under authority of laws enacted by the last legislature. Practically all of the produce moving into the state is being inspected, graded, branded and hauled by licensed operators.

According to G. L. Knight, chief of the horticulture division, the quantity of produce being trucked into the state will not exceed 25 per cent of that brought in during 1932. Elimination of this undesireable competition has benefited Montana growers who are now finding local markets for their products at fairly reasonable prices.

The division's inspectors are cooperating with the highway commission and checking gasoline supplies to prevent trucks from carrying extra gasoline without paying the Montana tax. Out-of-state trucks also are required to take out a Montana license, and their loads are being weighed and excessive weights prohibited in order to protect highways.

Government Will Keep a Check on Retail Food Prices

Consumers of farm products are to be furnished, in the near future, with weekly reports from the government on the reasons for any commodity price increases, and with information on who is getting the additional money, according to information received at University Farm, St. Paul. Field workers of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Department of Labor are to gather and report price figures, while the main office will go thru them and analyze them, Dr. Frederic C. Howe's consumer's council for the Agricultural Administration has announced. Dr. Howe intends to release the information on prices through the press, radio and special reports to groups and individuals.

The field staffs of the two departments will gather retail prices on bread, milk, meat, and other foods, in 50 cities and from more than 1,000 stores. In the department offices at Washington the prices will be checked and the portion that the farmer is receiving for the raw materials will be determined.

The reports will also cover any payment of higher wages and new employment, and will include any changes in price of manufactured or other commodities that farmers buy. The latter item will provide an index of the buying power of the farmer.

JOHNSON PLANS NRA SHAKEUP

Drastic Shift In Prospect As His Aide Quits—To Reshape Plans.

Washington—A general reorganization of the national recovery administration was indicated by Hugh S. Johnson after the resignation of Dudley Cates, the assistant administrator representing industry. The departure of the official, who has long been at odds with his chief, and the reshaping of personnel were said by Johnson not to be related but his disclosure of plans to alter the administration drastically within a few weeks was made in discussing the Cates resignation. Other developments in the drive toward industrial stability included: A move in the direction of price fixing under the NRA code for the oil industry, with the first meeting of the board of governors for the petroleum world and Secretary Ickes reputedly fixing an objective of $1 a barrel for crude, with a wholesale base price of between 5 and 6 cents a gallon for gasoline at the refinery. A new attack by the administration's labor advisory board upon the automobile code's provision for hiring and discharging of employes on a merit basis without regard to their union affiliation. A continuation of negotiations designed to bring the retail and bituminous coal industries under codes next week. The resignation of Cates after months of dispute with Johnson was the second internal controversy of the administration, Professor W. F. Ogburn of Chicago university having resigned several weeks ago from the consumers' advisory board after differences with the administrator and Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, chairman of the board.

The Stampede; An American Institution.

The stampede is a typical American institution. Originating with the countless buffalo herds that roamed the great North American continent in past centuries, it was handed on down thru the cattle, sheep and horse ranchers of the past generation, every day in every way getting better and better, as Dr. Coue would say, until today it stands unparalelled and unequalled, far in advance, time honored and venerable; as the great American method of "going places and doing things," providing we are not too particular about where we are going, nor how we get there.

In 1917 Woodrow Wilson, waved the flag and shouted in generalities about making the "world safe for democracy" and the stampede was on. America rushed into the jaws of death, into the mouths of roaring cannon; into destruction;

In 1920, Harding, a small-bore, fourth-rate politician, chosen standard bearer because of his subservience to Big Business, muttered something about "back to normalcy" and again the herd responded, sweeping back into power all the vile, grafting scum that had been relegated to the scrap-heap in the election of 1912.

Came 1928 and Hoover, the "Great Engineer" with a claim of "perpetual prosperity" and again we rushed headlong, pellmell, over the precipice; down to destruction.

1932 and Roosevelt's "New Deal" came, we veered somewhat to the left and tore across the prairies again at top speed. Where will it bring us? What will it bring us? That, only time can tell.

And now even before we have caught our breath from the last run, we're off again. Someone has shouted "Beer, let's repeal the 18th amendment." The hills re-echo with the lowing and bellowing of a million throats, the prairies quake and reverbrate to the quickening beats of ten million hoofs. Irresistable as the tides of the sea, the great stampede is on again. On September 12, Minnesota will join it and go two to one for repeal. It is inevitable. The pendulum is swinging to the other extreme. Of course we may ask:

"But we have beer now, then why repeal?"

"29,000 killed. 900,000 injured in motor accidents last year. Will legal liquor mix better with gasoline than illegal liquor?"

Enough! Enough! Doubting Thomas. Stand aside! It is easier to run than to think.

Who Are The Kickers?

One of the big advantages of an income tax is that you don't have to pay the tax unless you have an income. And you don't have to hunt around very much to discover that the kickers against a state income tax are those whom an income tax would compel to pay their share of taxes, but which they could evade under the old taxing system. And speaking of kickers on the income tax Will Rogers, the humorist, told it all in a nutshell when he spoke of the proposed state income tax in California as follows:

"The kicks would carry more weight if we could get someone who didn't have to pay it. You can't legitimately kick on taxes when the money has been made; it's taxes on farms, ranches and business property that has lost money for years. Those folks have the holler coming."

Regarding people who are threatening to leave California on account of the income tax, same as the threats in Minnesota, Rogers said a word in their behalf as follows: "So if you see a drove of Rolls-Royces, Lincolns and Cadillacs going east through your town, feed 'em and take care of 'em. They're awful nice folks. They ain't got a thing in the world the matter with 'em, only they're millionaires."—Mille Lacs Times.

GIVING wheat the same buying power that it had in the period before the World War is the goal of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. This chart shows how big the problem is. In 1914 8 sacks of wheat would buy a pair of shoes, a barrel of flour, a chair, and a plow. In 1925 it took 9 sacks of wheat to buy the same set of articles. In 1930 it took 19 sacks of wheat and early in 1933 it took 22 sacks of wheat. The cause of the low buying power is too great a supply. To remedy the situation, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has begun a campaign asking farmers to reduce their acreage for the 1934 and 1935 crops so that the return from a bushel of wheat will be once more what it was in the pre-war period, in its power to buy the goods which farmers need. The goal of the wheat administration is the 1914 basis, on which 3 sacks of wheat would buy the bill of goods pictured here.

The Liberal Digest

These articles were written especially for the Forum by local men, who are leaders in the present campaign for repeal of the 18th amendment.

FOR REPEAL

(Submitted by the Local Committee for the Repeal of the 18th Amendment; H. A. Brumund, chairman.)

An unbiased report on prohibition and the 18th amendment by Ben James, reporter for the Country Home, to check up on the results of the 18th amendment and prohibition and this is his report after visiting 21 states:

"My judgment, based entirely on what I saw and heard on this trip, is that public sentiment is going against the continuation of the 18th amendment. I am a Mother, a motherly woman told Ben James in Crawford county, Kansas, my sons, one of them in high school, told me that liquor is easy to get. I want to protect them. I want the business of booze controlled and in the hands of the government. For my childrens sake I shall vote for Repeal, though I have always been an advocate of prohibition.

A southwestern Iowa farmer told Ben James, so many people say that only the Cities have to put up with the manufacture of bootleg liquor on a large scale. Of course he said, I can see how that is, because newspapers always tell about gang wars of the liquor business in the Cities. But right here in Iowa we have our illicit liquor industry openly flaunted in our face and running untaxed and I am for the repeal of the 18th amendment. In the whole land, and especially in the country districts, the supply of intoxicating liquors has increased in great measure during the time the prohibition law has been in force and people have begun to use such drinks in a stronger and cruder state than formerly. Among the people in the country districts and especially among its younger generation, this abuse of alcohol has gained ground to such an extent that it constitutes a menace to the moral and physical future of our people.

John D. Rockefeller Jr., a life long total abstainer, a former financial supporter of the Anti-Saloon League for years an ardent advocate of the 18th amendment, published a declaration for repeal, in a letter to Dr Nicholas Murray Butler, he stated that the whole question of liquor control should be returned to the States

In his letter to Dr. Butler, Mr. Rockefeller said:

"It is not to be expected that the repeal of the 18th amendment will in itself cure all the evils of prohibition and restore public respect for law. I believe however, that the repeal of the 18th amendment is a prerequisite to the attainment of that goal. I am informed that should repeal become effective, all the machinery for controlling the liquor traffic built up in the respective states and in the nation thruout the many years prior to the enactment of the 18th amendment would with few exceptions be in force strengthened by various federal laws and court decisions having to do with regulation of interstate commerce. There are many who, feeling as I do that the 18th amendment has not accomplished the object which its enactment ought to attain."

Vote for the repeal of the 18th Amendment, not because you believe less in temperance, but because temperance can be achieved by a new deal, wherein education, not law, directs the appetites of men.

The result of the elections on the Repeal of the 18th Amendment in 25 states bear out the statement of both Ben James and Mr. Rockefeller.

AGAINST REPEAL

(By E. A. Cooke)

I am opposed to the Repeal of the 18th amendment for the following reasons:

1. Because Prohibition came after 60 years of trial of every kind of control, restriction and regulation of the liquor traffic and failed to regulate, restrict or control. And the liquor traffic stood as a terrible blighting curse on the American nation. Prohibition at its worst has been better than any kind of license system at its best.

2. Prohibition is correct in principle—it is the business of government to prevent the traffic in anything that is destructive of the welfare of its people; we apply this principle to narcotic drugs, opium, morphine, heroin and intoxicating liquors.

3. The 18th Amendment holds sacred the American home and defends our personal liberty. Home brew, drunk in one's own home is lawful under this amendment. But it defends the home against the trafficker in liquors. It also defends the personal liberty of the one who does not drink. A thing which is always overlooked by the wet advocates.

4. Every proposed plan of regulation has in it a scheme for making money out of the traffic. Nation, state, city, village, taxpayer, all are to receive money or be relieved of burdens out of this business.

If the traffic is right it ought not to be taxed any more than bread. If it is wrong no amount of money will make it right. We are reminded of the words of an ancient prophet, Woe unto him that buildeth a town in blood and establisheth a city in iniquity." The strange thing is that people think that as a whole we will be profited by a thing that does not produce one useful thing. According to general estimates people must spend 7 dollars to get one in revenue. That looks like poor business to me.

5. Advertising. For 15 years we have not seen a whiskey advertisement. Immediately the 18th Amendment is replaced the country will be covered, the newspapers and magazines filled with liquor advertisements. WHY? Because advertising increases business. Every conceivable method of modern advertising will be used to persuade our men and women, our boys and girls to drink. Liquor men would not advertise if it did not increase business.

6. Prohibition has not produced bootleggers, criminals nor graft. It has only revealed them. They have always been with us and will be with us after repeal.

7. The people who have been most furious for repeal because they claim prohibition a failure are the ones who never cooperated to make it a success.

8. Every restriction placed on the sale of liquor will be an opportunity for graft and bootlegging, which will be the more easily covered up by the flow of legalized liquor.

9. To repeal is to play into the hands of the rich. First the big brewers and distillers. Second the big corporations who expect their income taxes on their corporations to be lessened by the tax on liquors and thus passed on to the common people.

10. It is said you cannot make men sober by law. But we ceased to make men drunk by law. Why start it again. 25,000,000 automobiles is that many more reasons why I am opposed to the repeal of the 18th Amendment.

The Child in the Garden

• • • • • • • •

When to the garden of untroubled thought
I came of late and saw the open door,
And wished again to enter, and explore
The sweet, wild ways with stainless bloom inwrought
And bowers of innocence with beauty frought,
It seemed some purer voice must speak before
I dared to thread that garden loved of yore,
That Eden lost unknown and found unsought.

Then just within the gate I saw a child,—
A stranger-child, yet to my heart most dear;
He held his hands to me, and softly smiled
With eyes that knew no shade of sin or fear:
"Come in," he said, "and play with me;
I am the little child you used to be."

Words of Caesar

"I came, I saw, I conquered," or its Latin equivalent, "Veni, vidi, vici," was first used by Julius Caesar after his victory over Pharnaces, king of the Bosporus, at Zela in the year 47 B. C A similar but more modest phrase was used by the great Polish leader and king, John Sobieski, after his defeat of the Turks at Vienna in 1683. His message to the Pope was "I came, I saw, God conquered."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

BEER GARDEN RESORTS

Investigators report that summer resorts which are selling beer for the first time since the Eighteenth Amendment was enacted, have been having the most unprofitable season known. The hotels which flung their insults and jeers and sneers at Presbyterian and Baptist and Methodist drys, are missing some of their best trade. As these hotels preferred the millionaire brewers to the millions of church people, they should not complain.

In addition ,these hotels are finding that a great many very fine people who drink things stronger than beer, do not want to take their wives and children to beer hotels, and among the usual class of trade which beer draws— just as dead fish draws flies. The drys are using "personal liberty" to go where they please and to whatsoever summer resort they like. Perhaps the season of 1934 will see a number of summer and seashore resorts operated exclusively for church folks, so that women and children will not have to be mixed up with the class which seeks beer saloons.

Gorilla Has Big Brain

The highest mental development in the animal kingdom is reported to have been the property of a baby mountain gorilla which recently died. A university professor analyzing the brain of the animal for the Smithsonian institution, was startled to find that it weighed 466.6 grams—a little over a pound. Hitherto the greatest growth found was 379.3 grams in adult female coast gorillas. The average weight was 818.8 grams. While the average weight of the human brain is 1,100 grams, the human infant is born with about 36 per cent of this. The baby gorilla, on the other hand, is born with 70 per cent of its brain weight.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WHEAT MEETING HELD IN TWO TOWNSHIPS

wheat allotment contracts must do so this fall, according to County Agent R. M. Douglass. Even farmers who grew no wheat this year and who therefore are not eligible for 1933 adjustment payments, should be sure to sign applications now if they hope to take advantage of the wheat plan during the coming two years.

It should be clearly understood, says Mr. Douglass, that failure to seed wheat this year does not prevent anyone from obtaining an allotment contract, provided his land did grow wheat in any or all of the three preceeding years; namely, 1930, 1931, and 1932. It should be equally clear, however, that farmers who did not seed wheat this year will get no 1933 adjustment payment, but may receive payments on their allotments the next two years provided they seed the required acreage and otherwise fulfill their contracts. The adjustment payments offered under allotment contracts can be made only on wheat actually seeded.

Any wheat grower or land owner needing further information should arrange to see the county agent or write him. Above all, he should remember that after the allotments have been set this fall, no further contracts can be made and any grower not in then will have to stay out of the wheat plan at least until after 1935.

CARD OF THANKS

The undersigned, chairman of the general committee on arrangements wish to give their hearty thanks to all those who gave so freely of their time and labor to make the Farmer-Labor picnic held at Squaw Point Sunday, Aug. 27 such an unqualified success.

New Speed Record Set By Ford Stock Cars At Elgin

The first seven winning positions in the National Stock car races held in Elgin, Ill., August 26th, under the official auspices of the AAA, was taken by Ford V8 cars, according to a news release issued this week by Lund and Tunberg, local Ford dealers. Only one other car finished the race the balance of fourteen entries being flagged out, unable to stand the gruelling pace.

The race was attended by 35,000 people, the report states and first position was won by Fred Frame, winner of the 500 mile classic at Indianapolis in 1932. Mr. Frame's time was 80.2 miles per hour for the 203 miles, setting a new record for the course and beating the mark set by DePalma in 1920. On the strsihtaway a speed of 100.3 miles per hour was attained.

Warning to Hunters

Game Warden Walter Quist issues a warning to all hunters and to others, to be careful of fire when out in "the wide open spaces" as well as when in the woods. He says that he has been over most of the teritory in Northwestern Minnesota during the past few days and every thing is "dry as tinder" and will ignite from a carelessly thrown match or cigerrette.

The country is the dryest that he has known it, Mr. Quist says and the fire-hazard is so great that some of the adjoining states have closed their hunting season entirely for this year rather than take the added risk that hundreds of hunters roaming the country naturally brings.

"Be sure your matches are ont when you throw them; put the fire out on your cigarrette, don't just throw it and stamp it into the ground, a fire may result hours leter. Clear awsy leaves and bark for a good distance before making your camp-fires, and pour water on it, making sure it is out before you leave it."

Support to Farmers, Workers is Pledged

Continental Congress Assures Cooperatives and Unions Of Its Support

The National Executive Committee of the Continental Congress of farmers and Workers at a meeting in Philadelphia just after the July 4th holiday, took a very significant step in issuing a statement expressing the willingness and serious intention of the Congress to throw the whole weight of the movement behind the efforts of the trades unions to organize the masses of unorganized workers under the Industrial Recovery Act.

The first part of the Continental Congress Committee's declaration is a pledge of assistance and support to International Unions, state and city federated bodies and to local unions as well. The Executive also called upon the Local Committees of Action, formed to promote local cooperation between organizations of workers and farmers, "to contact and to aid unions in their communities," "to carry on among workers of all kinds, education as to the possibilities and needs of genuine union organization," "to show up 'company union' plans and to spur workers and farmers on to forming genuine unions even where no union orgaizers are active."

The provisional Executive Secretary of the Congress reported that since May 7th, when the Continental Congress was established as a permanent alliance of workers' and farmers' organizations at a meeting of over four thousand delegates in Washington, D. C., seventeen states have set dates for holding conventions to set up machinery for state organidation of the Congress. Minnesota held her convention on the 5th and 5th of August, at Minneapolis, at which time a permanent organization was perfected and a state executive committee elected.

Other states that have already held their conventions are: New Jersey, Michigan, Missouri, and Massachusetts. Official recognition, as the Pennsylvania section of the Continental Congress, was given the United Workers' Federation of Pennsylvania headed by James H. Maurer, veteran labor leader in that state, whose Federation of Labor he headed for seventeen years.

Profit From Pigs Kept Likely to be Very Slight

Some figures that may assist Minnesota farmers in deciding whether or not to sell their pigs under the Government emergency premium buying plan, have been offered by Dr. A. G. Black, corn-hog production chief of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Washington. Dr. Black was formerly an economist on the staff at University Farm, St. Paul.

Dr. Black says that pigs average between 66 and 70 pounds would qualify for a price of seven and a half cents a pound, delivered to the slaughter house (Chicago). This means $5.25 a pig. He says that if the pigs were fed until they averaged 225 pounds, and if they were sold for 6 cents a pound, the fattened pigs would return a gross of $13.50.

Fourteen bushels of corn would be needed to put the extra 155 pounds on each 70-pound pig. Figuring corn at 50 cents a bushel the feed would cost $7. This would leave $16.50, or only $1.25 more than would have been received for the 70-pound pig. But out of the dollar and a quarter has to be subtracted additional labor costs and the extra disease and market risks. If hogs should not sell for $5 next winter, or if corn should go higher than 50 cents a bushel, the farmer might lose even this slight advantage of the finished hog over the pig.

Livestock Big Source Gopher Farm Income

The extent to which Minnesota farmers now depend upon livestock for their income, is indicated by figures showing that during the years 1926 to 1930, 70 per cent of the gross cash income of Minnesota farmers came from the sale of livestock products. In the years 1910 to 1914 only 40 per cent was derived from the livestock sources.

The forgoing figures are cited by G. A. Sallee and G. A. Pond of the agriculture economics division staff at University Farm, St. Paul, in an article, "The Influence of Livestock on Farm Earnings" published in Minnesota Farm Business Notes.

"There has been a market shift from cash sale crops to feeding crops," this article points out. "The acreage of wheat was decreased 66 per cent from 1910 to 1930, whereas the acreage of feeding crops was increased. The corn acreage was increased 122 per cent from 1910 to 1930 and the oat acreage 49 per cent during the same period.

"This shift to feed crops and livestock farming indicates that farmers are finding the production of livestock more profitable than the production of crops for sale. Some of the ways in which livestock served to increase the farmers' earnings are as follows: 1. by increasing the size of business, 2. by concentrating feed crops into products less expensive to ship, 3. by providing for a more complete utilization of the supply of labor, power and equipment than can be made with crops alone, 4. by converting into usable form products that otherwise would be wasted, and 5. by aiding in maintaing the productivity of the soil."

Field Bindweed Is Bad Enemy of the Farmer

Many farmers still do not recognize one of their worst enemies, although it has lurked around in southwestern Minnesota for a long time, says A. C. Arny, a weed authority at the Minnesota agriculture experiment station. This enemy is field bindweed, commonly called Creping Jenny.

Field bindweed is a considerably worse weed than Canada thistle or quack grass, Mr. Arny says, because it is more difficult to control and eradicate. It has flowers the same shape as those of ordinary morning glory, but they are smaller and have pink stripes on the outside, instead of being clear white.

Special Bulletin 140, "Eradicating Perennial Weeds in Minnesota," issued by the Agricultural Extension Division, University of Minnesota, shows how to distinguish field bindweed from common morning glory by the buds. The leaves of field bindweed are smaller in all dimensions than those of common morning glory. The seeds are about the size of wheat kernels, dark brown to black in color, pea-shaped, with rough surfaces. This weed spreads from field to field and from farm to farm by the seeds which are produced in abundance. When once established it spreads rapidly by shallow-growing, underground stems.

Anyone wanting Special Bulletin 140 may have a copy without cost from a county agent or the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul.

Ford Leads Again

in Endurance, Stamina and Performance

All previous records for the Famous Elgin National Road Race were shattered when a Ford V-8 won the Joseph Weidenhoff Trophy Race for stock cars of American manufacture in the 203-mile grind at Elgin, Ill., Saturday, August 26th. The race was conducted under the rules of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association and was sanctioned by that organization.

The winning Ford V-8, piloted by Fred Frame, Indianapolis Speedway champion last year, lowered the mark set in 1920, in the last previous running of the race, by Ralph DePalma, famous race driver, in a high-powered racing car. Frame's average speed was 80.22 miles per hour. DePalma's record was 79.5 miles per hour. The Ford V-8 negotiated the 203-mile course in 2 hours, 32 minutes, 6.1 seconds.

Fifteen cars were entered, including Fords, Chevrolets, a Plymouth and a Dodge. Fords took the first seven places in the event. The Plymouth finished in eighth place. The other cars either were forced out of the race by mechanical failures or were flagged when the race was declared finished.

This race afforded the opportunity for the Ford V-8 to meet its opposition on the open road, under the vigilant eyes of the country's highest automobile authority, and there it proved its all-around superiority beyond any question of doubt.

Like Having a Bear by the Tail

In spite of the fact that dairy prices are at the bottom and that the purchasing power of this community as a consequence is about at its lowest mark, our business men have signed up with the NRA and are doing their "durndest" to live upto its requirements. Having taken on an extra overhead in the form of more hired help, they find themselves up against sharp price advances when they come to re-stock their shelves as well. Still they are gritting their teeth and hanging on.

That much talked of and long awaited public works program would be a real lift at this time. Construction of the new postoffice,which seems to be hung up somewhere between the high heaven and the deep blue sea would probably put about 50 to 75 men to work and a federal grant for the auditorium would increase the number of men employed there probably by fifty per cent and increase their wages considerably. A federal grant towards another diesel unit would put more men to work here as well as at the engine works.

Until these things get under way, our business people are very much in the position that the man was who had the bear by the tail—— but if the tail breaks,——

Where Does the Corn-Belt End?

We've heard the corn line (the line to the north of which good ear-corn cannot be successfully raised) placed by various experts as being on a line with Little Falls, Detroit Lakes or Crookston, but after seeing the splendid ears brought into the office the other day by Gordon Olson, we would say that the "corn line" is a long way to the north of here. The samples are Minnesota No. 13, and Mr. Olson tells us that he has raised it every year for fifteen years and never failed to get mature corn for seed. The ears are an average of nine inches in length, and, believe it or not, they measure 7½ inches in circumference.

Buying Wind Wheat

For the first nine trading days of July, reports show that frenzied speculators eager to buy wheat and get rich quick, purchased 1,058,000,000 bushels of wind wheat. When the crash came, they tried to sell several times one billion. It could not be done, and hence the closing of the exchanges. It is reported that one floor salesman for a Minneapolis grain firm tossed his sales cards in the air, began yelling at the top of his voice and was taken out stark raving crazy. The president of the firm died from the effects of the market shock.

We have outlawed slot machines, but we permit a gambling game to run in our grain exchanges which takes millions from suckers where slot machines takes cents.—— Farmers' Union Herald.

Those Cheap Five and Dime Stores

Last week the "five and dime" stores agreed on a code under the NRA. They agreed to pay a minimum of $10.00 per week to clerks. But that isn't all. They admitted that such a wage scale represented an increase of 78 per cent in their overhead costs.

Many people have wondered how the five-and-ten stores could earn such huge dividends selling merchandise at such low prices. There should be no further speculation as to how dime and jitney prices are maintained hereafter. And no one should wonder why some articles which formerly sold at a nickel will hereafter be sold for a dime.

The five-and-tens raised their wage scales at the eleventh hour because they were virtually forced to do so. But the public will pay the difference many times over to the full glory of the Kresge and Woolworth heirs.— —Union Advocate.

The Eagle Gets a Rest

The revolution is on. The other evening the president of the United States broadcasted an address in which he didn't mention "founding fathers," "best government on earth," "eternal priciples of Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln," "Old Glory," and the "eagle whose majestic pinions," etc.— but had a lot to say about the desirability of shorter hours, longer wages, and more eats. And just think, it's only a few short years ago when American citizens were hoosegowed for advocating these very things.— American Guardian.

The Third Reich

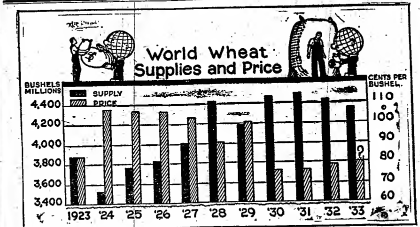
Hitlerism is marching from victory to victory.

German exports, June 1932	454 million marks
German exports, May, 1933	422 million marks
German exports, June, 1933	385 million marks

Assets of Reichsbank in gold and foreign currency:

March, 1931	2,500 million marks
January, 1933	1,000 million marks
July, 1933	280 million marks

If this keeps up it will not be long before Germany has the best of all excuses why it can't pay its bills—no money and no way of getting money.— American Guardian.



THIS representation of what the world will offer the wheat farmer for his wheat shows clearly the relationship between supply and price. Since 1928, when the world supplies of wheat first became burdensome the price has been low for the most part. The pictures at the top of the chart show that when the supply is low, the world will pay a good price for wheat, but when supplies are too big, the world won't pay as much. As the supplies (shown by the black bars) have climbed, the price (represented by the shaded parts) has sunk lower. The wheat administration seeks to bring the wheat supply of the United States into line with demand by reducing acreage, and thus to make the price nearer parity, that is, the point at which the return from a bushel of wheat will buy as much as it did in the pre-war period, 1909-1914. The 1933 crop year is not far enough advanced to show definitely what prices will be.

The Liberal Digest

POWER POLICY LAID DOWN

The Tennessee Valley Authority has given out a final declaration that the generation and distribution of electric power "is a public business." This was done in laying down a broad policy for developing the big southern river and was announced in the daily press of the country.

The Associated Press goes on to report that the authority asserted its purpose to control power development in the valley with the public interest uppermost in mind.

It laid down the rule that the public interest is "superior" to any private interest and must prevail, though conceding that, where a conflict can be reconciled without injury to the public, it should be.

The board, created by congress to carry out President Roosevelt's plan for development of the Tennessee valley, served notice that the adverse effect of its actions on privately owned companies would be given serious consideration but would not be "the determining factor."

The authority laid out three "initial areas" for development of its program. They are:

"1. The region immediately proximate to the route of the transmission line to be constructed by the authority between Muscle Shoals and the site of the Norris Dam.

"2. The region in proximity to Muscle Shoals, including Alabama and northeastern Mississippi.

"3. The region in the proximity of Norris dam (the new source of power to be constructed by the authority on the Clinch river in northeast Tennessee.)"

Another significant policy enunciated by the authority was that a community has an "undeniable right" to own and operate its own electric plant to protect itself against unreasonable rates.

The board's policy was laid down after weeks of study by D. E. Lilienthal, director in charge of power development and distribution. Some of the more important points follow:

"1. The business of generating and distributing electric power is a public business.

"2. Private and public interests in the business of power are of a different kind and should not be confused.

"3. The interest of the public in the widest possible use of power is superior to any private interest. Where the private interest and this public interest conflict, the public interest must prevail.

"4. Where there is a conflict between public and private interest in power which can be reconciled without injury to the public interest, such as reconcilation should be made.

"5. The right of a community to own and operate its own electric plant is undeniable. This is one of the measures which people may properly take to protect themselves against unreasonable rates. Such a course of action may take the form on acquiring the existing plant, or setting up a competing plant, as circumstances may dictate.

"6. The fact that action by the authority may have an adverse economic effect upon a privately owned utility should be a matter for the serious consideration of the board in framing and executing its power program. But it is not the determining factor. The most important considerations are the furthering of the public interest in making power available at the lowest rate consistent with sound financial policy, and the accomplishment of the social objectives which low cost power makes possible, the authority cannot decline to take action solely upon the ground that to do so would injure a privately-owned utility."

To the Editor:

When I was a little lad I once got a book demonstrating the many feats performed by Baron Munchhausen. One of his greatest performances remain very vividly in my mind, viz: The Baron had reached the moon and all he had left of his balloon was a piece of rope. The grave question arouse in his mind as to how he could again reach the earth! But the Baron was, as usual, equal to the occasion. He had the rope left so he tied the rope to the lower horn of the moon and started the downward course by cutting off the rope from above and spliced it on below, until he reached the earth.

If our farmers, laborers and small business men were as resourceful as Baron Munchhausen, they would soon extricate themselves from the embarrassing difficulties they find themselves in. Yes, it might apply to our financial wizards too, who have risen to the extreme heights so they now find themselves hovering (Hoovering) between heaven and earth and do not know where to step off at, as through their folly they have "cut of the head of the goose that laid the golden egg." President Roosevelt has wisely instructed them to cut off above and splice on below until they will come down to earth again. But will they do it? Here is hoping they will come down to the level of the rest of us in the spirit of "live and let live" and we shall have no difficulty of overproduction as the underconsumption as is the case now, would take care of that. Real wealth under our present system is rendered worthless by the false manipulation of the dollar. "We can not serve two masters."

Cease worshipping Mammon (the dollar) and we will find an abundance of wealth for all of us.

Farm and Market

by
R. A. Trovatten
Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture, Dairy and Food

The consumption of fertilizer in Minnesota fell off in 1932 over 1931. It dropped again in 1933. In 1931 we used 17,698 tons; in 1932, 9,320 tons. While figures have not as yet been compiled for 1933, indications point to about one half of the 1931 purchases.

—O—

This can be attributed to economic conditions. Farm products will not purchase as much fertilizer these days.

—O—

It is only of recent years that we began to use fertilizer extensively in Minnesota. When land has been farmed for fifty to seventy-five years, the soil becomes worn out. We are reaching that point now.

—O—

Some of the old eastern states depend upon fertilizer entirely. States like Georgia and North Corolina use as much as a million tons a year.

—O—

It is the same old story; You have to put back what you take out. The planting of crops year after year removes the nitrogen, phosphorus and potash from the soil.

—O—

However, the shrinkage of fertilizer sales in Minnesota is only temporary. With the restoration of farm prices, farmers will be able to attend this and other important matters. Right now we are like the fellow with the busted harness, with-out funds for a new one----we have to get along with haywire.

Heavy stem-rust infection, appearing early on wild barley, redtop, or quack grass usually indicates the presence of the rust-spraeding in the vicinity.

TRUE FREEDOM

Men whose boast it is that ye
Come of fathers brave and free,
If there breathe on earth a slave—
Are ye truly free and brave?
If ye do not feel the chain
When it works a brother's pain,
Are ye not base slaves indeed—
Slaves unworthy to be freed?

Is true freedom but to break
Fetters for our own dear sake,
And with leathen hearts forget
That we owe mankind a debt?
No! true freedom is to share
All the chains our brothers wear,
And with heart and hand to be
Earnest to make others free!

They are slaves who fear to speak
For the fallen and the weak;
They are slaves who will not chose
Hatred, scoffing and abuse,
Rather than in silence shrink
From the truth they needs must think;
They are slaves who dare not be
In the right with two or three.

Warba, a new potato devepoled at University Farm, St. Paul, yields more and matures sooner than any other early varities.

NOAH DIDN'T WAIT UNTIL IT RAINED TO BUILD THE ARK

WITHOUT A TELEPHONE

Early Tuesday morning of last week the members of the family occupying one of the finest farm homes in Saunders County awakened to find their beautiful modern structure ablaze, sparks having set fire to the roof. News dispatches from Fremont and Wahoo state the owner and occupant of the farm had recently had his telephone removed, so he was obliged to drive to Colon to summon the Wahoo fire department and by the time help arrived the house, with all its contents was doomed. It was totally destroyed. .... The loss from this farm fire is said to have been from $12,500 to $17,000 partially covered by insurance.

NO TELEPHONE — BUILDINGS BURN

SARGENT, Neb., March 29 (P)—A horse kicked over a lantern on the farm of George Poland near here yesterday and set the barn on fire. A high wind carried the flames to the house and other buildings which were destroyed.

There was no telephone so help could not be summoned.

TODAY'S CHILD NEEDS TEMPERANCE TRAINING

(Lenadell Wiggins, General Secretary, Loyal Temperance Legion.)

"The education of the rising generation constitntes a first mortgage on the weaith of the community and the nation."

Today it is more necessary to carry on a program of temperance education than it has ever been in the his tory of the nation, for life has been speeded up to such a high point that the coming generation faces new reasons for total abstinence and, with the return of beer gardens and taverns and with the indifferent attitude of many perents toward all moral issues, we have real work before ns..

We must help to protect the children from the evil effects that result from the use of beer and stronger liquors, for beer opens on avenue for a traffic in hard liqoors.

The promoters of the traffic in beer will use every means at their command to reach our little citizens and create in them an appetite for alcohol. The future of trade depends upon their creating drinkers among the younger generation.

We should be alert, watching for every opportunity to place a plen of temperance teaching. The way is open to educate for total abstinence through organized Loyal Temperance Legions and to work within other organized groups.

Arouse, ye leaders, we have work to do! Hol dfast to what you have established. Go forth and open new contacts. You have a program of factual teaching. Give this program to the children of your community

We can, we mnst, we will, help to protect the children.

Prowlers Trim Red Lake Falls

A pass from Paul Dahl to Ernie Hellquist scored the only touchdown of the football game between Lincoln High School and Red Lake Falls last Friday afternoon. Recovering the kick-off the Prowlers were held for two downs and penalized five yards for off-side when Dahl faded back and threw the winning pass. In the second period John Battleson punted outside on the Red Lake Falls six yard line. On the next play the Red Lake punter fumbled and was tackled behind the goal line for a safety to finish the scoring for the afternoon, the Prowlers 8, Red Lake Falls 0. Both teams showed early season raggedness but as a whole put on a fine demonstration of high school football.

This week the Prowlers go to Grafton, N. D., where they play a strong team composed of lettermen from last year. Coach Dooley states that he is anxious to have his boys win this game because the Prowlers have never beaten Grafton on their home field.

GOVERNMENT PIG BUYING RESUMED AS QUOTA RISES

September 29 to be Last Day For Accepting Pigs Under Plan

The decision by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to buy two million more light pigs than were called for in its original emergency program will enable many farmers hit by drought or feed shortages to dispose of their pigs at premium prices. The original program contemplated purchasing 4,000,000 pigs and a million piggy sows. Now 2,000,000 more pigs are to be purchased, making the total 6,000,000.

Warning has been given, however, that Friday, September 29, will be the final day for accepting pigs under the emergency program.

Additional government buying permits have been granted to several in or near Minnesota. Word received at St. Paul indicates that the following points have had their quotas increased by the numbers given:

South St. Paul	150,000
Sioux City	95,000
Watertown, S. D.	15,000
Fargo, N. D.	30,000
Chicago	280,000

An additional quota also has been granted the plant at Austin, Minnesota, but the amount of the increase was not stated.

Dr. Andrew Boss, University Farm, St. Paul, in charge of the production control campaign in Minnesota, advises farmers who have been unable to get pig-selling permits from their regular markets to try one or more of the other points. The South St. Paul market particularly, has been glutted with pigs and had over half a million applications waiting when its new quota was granted. Therefore, it is doubtful whether South St. Paul can take care of the accumulated applications, without honoring any new ones. This will be true even though it should receive still more additions to its quota.

Piggy sows will still be accepted at any of the authorized markets without permits.

Students Better Physically This Year Says School Nurse

School children are in better physical condition this year than ever before. School Nurse Eunice Lindgren stated yesterday. She congratulates parents on the good care they have given their children. "To protect our students as much as possible from all form of contagious disease, such as, whooping cough now in the community we are asking the children who have colds to stay at home" she says. Further, Miss Lindgren states that children with cold will be sent home from school, not only to protect other children, but because the quickest way to cure a cold is to go to bed.

Miss Lindgren gives the following suggestions recommended by medical authorities to keep children well:

1,—Give the child cod-liver daily during the winter months to build up resistance against colds.

2,—Vaccinate against smallpox; inoculate against diphteria and whooping cough;

3,—Do not allow your child to play with children suffering with colds.

4,—Keep a sick child in bed.

Fasting Felon Filching Fancy Foods Feasts Fully

Someone who evidently possessed a rapacious appetite gained access to DeCremer's Meat Market last Sunday morning and seating himself on a box preceeded to feast on the fat of the land if residue and empty containers tell the story truthfully. A check-up of left-overs revealed the fact that the hungry burglar had consumed one quart of pig knuckles, one quart of milk, a carton of buttered cookies, one jar of olives, two packages of marshmellows, and a box of candy.

Finishing, the intruder appropriated $8.00 in cash from the till and proceeded on his felonious way.

Ninth District Farmer-Laborites Hold Lively Meeting at Erskine on Sunday, September 17

Farmer-Laborites from all parts of the ninth congressional district held a meeting at Erskine Sunday. The gathering was in the form of an informal get-together for the purpose of discussing party questions.

The matter of party dicipline came in for a lively discussion and culminated in the passing of a resolution against the retension of Republicans hold-overs in appointive positions in the state government. The wet question, which has been thought by many party members to contain dynamite and therefore to be avoided was projected into the meeting by H. O. Berve of this city, secretary of the Ninth District organization. The expected dynamite did not materialize, however a lively discussion of various regulatory systems took place. A resolution declaring against the sale and against the sale or taxing of hard liquor by the state or other subdivisions of government for the purpose of revenue was passed unanimously. The contention of most of the delegates present being that liquor should be made available and manuf ctured and sold by the government at cost.

It was decided that another conference should be held shortly before the session of legislature is called, the meeting to be held shortly before the Legislature convenes. About sixty delegates were present, from almost all counties in the district.

CLOSING OF BANK IS PROTESTED BY DEPOSITORS COM.

Committee Elected Monday Assert First National Is Solvent

A depositors' committee chosen by the depositors of the First National Bank of this city which was closed by order of the national banking department, last Thursday, Sept. 14, met on Wednesday evening and sent a communication to the Comptroller of the Currency at Washington declaring that the institution is not insolvent and should not be liquidated. This action was taken after the committee had made a preliminary check-up of the available records. The request was also made that the depositors be allowed to reorganize the institution.

Three hundred depositors representing syenty-five per cent of the bank's deposits, held a meeting Monday evening and voiced the opinion that the bank should be re-opened if possible. They elected Theo. Quale, chairman; Paul Lundgren, secretary; W. Prichard Sr., W. E. Dahlquist and P. B. Malberg to act as a depositors committee.

The bank has been operating on a restricted basis since the bank holiday last March, having been under the direction of Geo. Werstlein as Conservator. New accounts opened since that time are not affected by the closing, as in accordance with the ruling made at that time such deposits were kept on hand in the bank's vaults or on deposit in other banks. No loans were made. The institution will no longer be allowed to handle these accounts however, since no deposits can now be accepted.

"No stockholder or bank officials are indebted to the bank" Mr. Quale, chairman of the committee states, "and bond accounts have been improved. Substantial collections have been made since the bank holiday last March, and the committee feels that with the cooperation of the depositors, stockholders and the banking department that the bank can be satisfactorily reorganized."

Many to Attend Century of Progress During September

The railroads probably will carry more persons to the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago during September than during the earlier summer months, in the opinion of W. E. Baker, Great Northern agent here.

Many have postponed their trip to the fair until after the hot weatber, and the attendance from this state will be swelled by Minnesota Day, which is September 21st.

For Minnesota Day the railways have announced a cent-a-mile coach rate to go in effect September 19, with a 10-day return limit.

Another thing that is maintaining interest in the fair is the favorable report of everyone who has visited it. The exposition has been a success beyond all exceptions.

Local Lodge Hangs Well Known Marine Pictures

Sons of norway

Two well-known marine pictures ahve been hung in the local Sons of Norway Hall this week. One of them depicts the Norwegien America Line's passenger boat, "Stavangerford" nt "Svartisen," showing the liner in broadside view with the famous black glacier in the beckground. The other picture shows the same line's boat "Bergensfjord" at "Nordkap," another broadside view with the bleak northernmost cape of Norway in the background.

Both canvasses are the work of Wilse of the Ernest Eberh B. Oppe Art studies of Oslo, Norway.

Students Pay Their Cost With Produce

A number of Northwest School students have arranged to pay part of their regular school expenses this year by bringing canned fruits and vegetables and other home grown produce when they report for duty at the opening of the fall term. Much of the canning has been done as a pert of the regular home project work required of each student during the vacation months. This work is outlined by Miss Retta Bede and Miss Fanny Lippet of the Home Economics division and supervised by Home Project Leaders E. R. Clark and R. J. Christgau.

Potatoes, cabbage and other vegetables will also be purchased from needy students by T. M. McCall, Horticulist, and used in the school dining hall during the winter months. Nearby students will have an opportunity to sell surplus oats and barley to the station for use in the livestock department.

School officials report widespread interest in the plan, as indicated by many letters of inquiry from former as well as new students.. For additional information write the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston.

Trench Silo Will Aid In Feed Shortage Now

Through the use of trench silo, many a farmer in Minnesota, whose hay crop failed this year, may put away a good supply of corn for silage. Folder 47, just issued by the Agricultural Extension Division of the University of Minnesota, points out that the trench silo can be built at small cash outlay, can be filled with greater ease and lese expense then the upright silo and is frost-proof, fire-proof and wind- proof.

In brief form, the folder tells how to construct and use a trench silo, covering such points as location, size needed, method of digging, filling, covering, repairs and cost. A cross-section diagram makes the idea easy to grasp. For a copy, ask a county agent or high school agriculture teacher, or write the bulletin Office University Farm, St. Paul, for Folder 47.

Livestock Breeders Will Give Prizes At Swine Meet

Friday, the thirteenth of October, will be a lucky day for Minnesota hog producers who can arrange to attend the annual Swine Feeders' Day at University Farm, St. Paul for a program of very practical, timely information be presented.

The day will also be a lucky one for some 4-H pig club boy or girl in each of the two counties having the largest attendance, for the Minnesota Livestock Breeders' association is offering two pure-bred gilts, selected from the University Farm experimental herd, as attendance prizes. Mileage traveled will be considered along with the number present from each county, so that all counties will have an equal chance. Each of the two counties winning these awards will give the pig to an outstanding pig club member who may have a choice of three breeds—Poland China, Duroc Jersey of Chester White.

Feeding tests to be reported on will compare tankages made by the old and the new processes; will compare soybean meal, soybeans, tankage, and mixed soybeans and tankage; will show results of feeding pigs individually, and will throw light on the right amount of buttermilk to feed pigs.

Speakers will include W. C. Coffey, dean of the University Department of Agriculture; W. H. Peters, chief in animal hubandry, and one other who probably will discuss the proposals for corn-hog reduction under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

FARM HOUSES SHOULD NOT COPY CITY IDEAS

Some ideas on farm houses, brought out at a recent convention of agricultural engineers, should be of intrest to Minnesota farm folks, thinks H. B. White, farmbuilding specialist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Mr. White quotes Wallace Ashby, of the U. S. Burceu of agricultural Engineering, who said: "Farm houses will continue to be copies of city houses without proper regard for farm needs, until those engaged in building farm houses get clearly in mind the special features desirable and how to provide them.

Well-built farm houses usually last at least 60 years, during which time the composition of the families often changes several times. To meet this condition, houses should be planned for the requirements of average families rather than for those particular households which build them. They either should have at least three bedrooms or should be designed so that they can readily be enlarged. A family cannot meet needs in housing requirements by moving to another house as city folks can.

"An important difference between the farm and the city house centers around the kitchen where the housewife does much work and where she spends a great deal of her time. It should be planned and its equipment should be arranged so that the traffic through the back door will not interfere with the work. A large and handy storage space, either in or near the kitchen, should also be provided."

RFC ADVANCES 150 MILLIONS

Funds Will Be Offered Through Federal Land Banks on Mortgage Bonds.

Washington—Supplementing its recent offer to expand credit and help NRA industries through low interest bearing loans to banks for relending to merchants and manufacturers, the Reconstruction corporation announced a plan for furthering the flow of cash and credit by agreeing to lend $150,000,000 to help refinance farm mortgages. The $150,000,000 included $35,000,000 and $1,000,000 which the corporation previously agreed to advance for the same purpose to the Federal Land banks of St. Paul and Omaha, respectively. The farm credit administration program contemplates the refinancing of farm mortgages now held by either open or closed banks through the Federal Land banks and the refinancing of these farm mortgages will enable the farm credit administration to improve the position of open banks whose working capital has been restricted because of heavy holdings of this character and speed liquidation of closed banks which are unable to realize on slow assets. The program in either case will do much to restore the normal flow of cash and credit which has been handicapped through lack of normal banking facilities. The Reconstruction corporation announced a new liberal credit policy whereby it will make available approximately $1,000,000,000 for loans to banks and trust and mortgage companies for relending to NRA employers. In addition, as a further step to aid the emergency financial situation, the corporation said it would reduce its basic long term rate from 4½ to 4 per cent on October 1.

Indian Mounds

The Indian mounds found through much of the Mississippi region are believed by many to be caches of Indian treasures. This belief, Smithsonian archeologists point out, is entirely without foundation. Many mounds were used for burial of the dead. Excavation often reveals cherished personal objects interred with the bones of prominent Indians. But such objects have no material value and are of interest only as they throw light on the pre-Columbian culture pattern.

THE CAT IS COMING BACK

The deplorable part of the repeal of the 18th amendment is the fact that it throws the liquor question back into the state politics. And the states will not be in position to solve the question because of the lack of constitutional power. Liquor control is fundamentally a national issue and will never be adaquately handled by the various states. However, the baby has been left on our door-step and it will be up to us to take care of it to the best of our ability.

To our mind, the Farmer-Laborites is the only group that has voiced any sensible solution to the problem. At the Ninth District Farmer-Labor conference at Erskine last Sunday a resolution was passed which if its provisions could be carried out would solve the difficulties so far as they can be solved by legislation or government control. The resolution reads as follows:

"Resolved that we oppose any method of liquor regulation which allows individuals to reap a profit from the sale of liquor or allows any subdivision of government to use it as a source of revenue."

And that strikes right at the root of the evil, just as the removal of the profit motive would eliminate most of our other social evils. But while it would aliviate the evil it would not entirely dispose of it, only iintensive education and elimination of sweat-shops and slums and abject poverty will eventually solve the whole problem.

Meanwhile the Farmer-Labor party holds the solution, but not the power to put the solution into practical use. Only a strong national third party such as was planned at Chicago by the League for Independent Politican Action last week ca do that. Therefore it behoves everyone who wishes to see our country free itself of this blighting curse to side-track their petty differences and devote their efforts towards the realization of the co-operetive state.

MONEY CHANGERS

The very lucrative business of banking has not come into the possession of society. The new banking laws make for more centralization in banking, but they do not interfere with the profits of the bankers. They may interfere with flagrant dishonesties in that profession, but they do not change one iota the generally accepted prectise of capitalism of making tremendous private profit out of the manipulation of social credit. —The World Tomorrow.

Some day a two-by-four bank in the United States will go broke and a federal government largely or wholly imbued with Farmer-Labor ideals will send soldiers, sailors, marines, and airplanes actually to protect the "American investments" of small depositors in that bank. Those responsible for the crash will make good to the depositors at once or a drumhead court-martial will show them the error of their ways. And that will be the last bank failure in America.—Farmer-Labor Leader.

Many a man thinks that it is his goodness that keeps him from crime when it is only his full stomach. On half allowance he would be as ugly and knavish as anybody.—Do not mistake potatoes for principles.
—Thomas Carlyle.

THIS COCK-EYED WORLD.

Its all in how you look at it evidently, and how far you carry your deductions. Adam Coa'digger seems to carry his deductions to the very last crazy extreme. The following, taken from the American Guardian of August 25, makes us wonder "who's looney now?" You read it and try to figure it out.

"The trouble with us proverty-stricken dubs is that this country is too dod-gasted rich. We've got too much of everything that makes life comfy. Our soil is too productive and we have too much of it. Rain and sunshine, in conspiracy with too good and too much soil, curse us with twice as much food as we can eat. The cotton fields stay awake at night thinking of how to grow more bales to the acre. Wheat and corn fields put their heads together scheming how to bump us off with bigger bumper crops. Pigs lay in ambush for us with bigger litters. Cows are only contented when they soak us in milk. Hens work overtime trying to drown us in eggs. No amount of shearing is discouraging sheep from growing more and more wool.

And if all that wasn't enough to break one's heart, along comes science with all sorts of contraptions that simply swamp us with all kinds of nice things to use, to wear and to enjoy. It's awful.

The worst thing, however, is the people who are littering up this country. There are decidedly too many of them. And what makes matters still worse is that most of them are born with two hands and legs, but only one mouth. If these popele had only one leg and one hand, but four mouths, there might be a chance of balancing production and consumption. But with all them feet and hands going about producing things and only one mouth per capita to swallow them, there ain't no chance. And yet there are still people who wonder why folks go hungry! It's awful.

The only way that I can se out of this uncalled-for superfluity is a great national reducing drive, reducing everything we've got too much of to the point where there is just enough going around to keep on reducing it.

Plowing under three million bales of cotton is a step in the right direction, but it don't go far enough. What we need is to reduce everything proportionately. Of course there will be less people needed to pick and gin cotton, less railroaders to transport it, less mill-hands to spin it, fewer clothing makers to work up in clothing and fewer clerks to sell it to folks who ain't got clothing. But the shacks of the cotton pickers are with us still. So are the cotton gins, railroads, textile mills, clothing factories and clothing stores, who at the first sign of returning prosperity are liable to come to life again. Better play safe and burn down those superfluous institutions. We've got the men, we've got the talent, and we've got the money for the matches too!

Killing off a million sows, soon to farrow, is another step in the right direction. But it don't go far enough. Who, for instance, will consume the 50,000,000 bushels of corn the five million prospective pigs of these million brood sows would have eaten? Tell me that.

So what's got to be done is to plow under 50,000,000 bushels of corn and see that it don't happen again.

This naturally will reduce the amount of plows, planters, cultivators and corn shellers used in corniculture, resulting in the satisfactory elimination of thousands of employes of the Harvester Trust. I haven't figured out yet what to do with the laid-off men. But maybe we could employ them in burning down the surplus Harvester Trust plants.

That done, a great deal less of coal and iron ore will be needed in the manufacture of agricultural implements, which will throw thousands more miners out of work. I haven't figured out yet what to do with them either, but perhaps they can be used burning down additional surplus of mine tipples, smelters and steel mills, or plow under the railroad tracks, gondolas, freight cars and engines that formerly were used in the transportation of iron ore, coal, steel and farm implements.

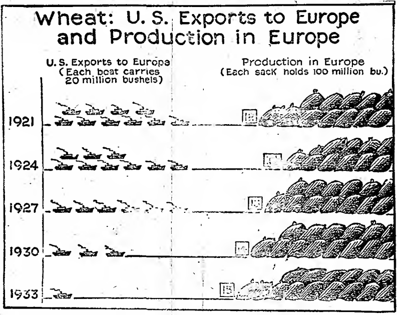
Of course all this doesn't go far enough yet, for in order that final victory over industry is achieved, every industry must be treated the same way. Doing that, we finally may create a "beneficial circle that will destroy more and more industries until there is nothing left except the people who used to make their living in them.

I haven't figured out yet what to do with them, but maybe they could be employed building insane asylums in which they take turns feeding each other. Or starting laundries taking in each other's washing. Needless to say, they must be hand laundries because if they were steam laundries, there wouldn't be enough dirty clothes to support them all.

The audience will now arise and sing:

My Country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of lunacy."

Wheat: U. S. Exports to Europe and Production in Europe



WHEN Europe produces more wheat for herself she buys less from the United States. That is the feature of the world wheat problem that this chart shows. For instance, in 1921, when many wheat ships were busy carrying the bread grain to Europe, that continent produced only 1,200,000,000 bushels. Since 1927, European countries have been producing more and more of their own wheat and the wheat traffic across the Atlantic has slowed up. In fact, efforts of European countries to supply their needs, and their buying wheat from other countries has just about cut off our wheat exports, as the lone boat for 1933 represented in the chart indicates. The United States doesn't want to withdraw from the export trade, but rather than have grain pile up in the United States or be sold at less than cost, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration has begun a wheat plan which will reduce acreage in the United States and bring production down to the point where it can all be marketed at a profit to the farmer.

The Liberal Digest

"A National Third Party"
(By Governor Floyd B. Olson)

(The following is a paper written by Governor Floyd B. Olson and was read at a recent political meeting in the city of Chicago when the governor was unable to attend in person.)

Suggest the idea of a National third party and at once you are confronted with an argument that runs about as follows: "American political soil is two-party soil. The third party plant canot feed on this soil; the sustenance is not there."

There is neither truth nor logic to that argument.

In the first place America has never had a genuine two-party movement. The last national campaign saw issues rather clearly defined between the two major parties, and it came closer to a clash of political ideas than had formerly been the case. But generally speaking, there has been little in the past to divide Republican and Democratic doctrines. The division on the tariff question was not a sufficiently fundamental difference in political philosophy—and sometimes even this difference was almost indistinguishable.

Precisely, what we have in this country has been a one-party system. True, there have been two major political parties, but their political concepts have been pretty much alike. Their shibboleths, generally speaking, were ingenious publicity phrases. Neither represented mass aspiration; neither represented revolutionary thought in any sense of the word. The citadel of capitalism was unshaken, regardless of which party was the victor at the polls.

Three Political Channels

I believe that in a mature, healthy, political atmosphere, political thought falls into three principle channels—conservative liberal and radical. In England we have three major political parties representative of each of these philosophies. When we in America dismiss the idea of a third major political party as something impossible, we confess that we have not progressed to the point of natural and logical political alignment. And it may be that in our opportunistic political atmosphere, this is in a measure correct. It is not correct, however, from the standpoint of future political strategy.

We have progressed politically to the point where the Republican party is fast becoming the party of the conservative, the party of the Tory. More and more, conservatives are beginning to feel a fast allegiance to that party, a peculiar attachment. Persons professing Republicanism and not subscribing wholeheartedly to the Tory view of life are being looked upon by party members as imposters, parading under false colors. Conservative Democrats also are commencing to feel that they have been away from home all these years—that they belong under the Republican roof.

And it is true that Progressive Republicans have, in a certain sense, been parading under false colors, albeit they may not have known it. They never had any claim whatever to the Republican label. But what they regarded as sound strategy proved otherwise; the false label caused their downfall. Witness the Progressive Republican debacle in Wisconsin in the last election! Would such a thing have occurred had the LaFollettes been Farmer-Laborites instead of Progressive Republicans? I hardly think so. The Progressive Republican is becoming a man without a party.

New National Party by 1936.

Democracy is in a state of flux just now. There are cross currents of radicalism and of liberalism, with some strains of conservation. The New Deal is a compromise between the first two and perhaps with the latter in a minor way. But liberalism itself is largely a compromise philosophy; it lacks positive coloring.

It is to early as yet to judge the New Deal. Is it a too far to the Left movement to ultimately be part and parcel of a Democracy? There are not a few Democratic politicians who do not claim a blood relationship with President's Roosevelt's "brain trust" If the New Deal fails will Roosevelt swing further to the Left or move over to the Right? If the former, he must fall into the very lap of the radical, and go over to the doctrine of virtual socialization of industry. The latter possibility, with the attendant opportunties for radical changes in the social and economic structures is not to be disregarded by radicals. It is highly probable that we can enroll the left wings of both old parties into a third party by 1936. I am looking forward with optimism to that alignment.

There is room for the Democratic party as the party of the liberal, and that is what it eventually will undoubtly become. It would acquire an altogether too far stretch of the imagination to predict the Democratic party as the champion of radicalism.

A radical party—yea, a united radical party—must come sooner or later to America as the challenge to Toryism and to a philosophy that compromises with Toryism. It must come as the challenge to the Tory view of life. That challenge is in the air; a long sustained economic depression caused more and more persons are beginning to believe, by something inherently faulty in our capitalistic order, brought that challenge to the surface The New Deal s merely holding that challenge in obeyance.

Fundamental, Fearlese, Practical

For the first time in American political history we are beginning to get at fundamentals in analyzing and finding fault with our economic order. We are criticizing, in a serious way, our method for distributing wealth; our inability to utilize the products of the machine for the betterment of the great masses of our people has caused us to ponder deeply. The absence of constructive thought from our industrial leaders,—our self-anointed leaders—has removed the cobwebs from our minds. They are not holy and not indispensable as we were taught to believe.

If a third party movement is to become an important factor in American politics, it must be something substantially different from the old parties. It must not be opportunistic. It must espouse a new economic philosophy and set out its sails fearlessly on the political seas. It must be revolutionary and at the same time well grounded in a practical program, one possible of achievment.

The Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota, in the last state election, was not afraid to advance radical thought which met with strong opposition in certain quarters. We campaigned, for example, for the enactment of an unemployment insurance law; a statewide old age pension; for submission of a constitutional amendment to permit the state to build and operate district power plants and to sell electricity to municipalities and to the public; a statutory income tax law to be used as a direct replacement tax on homesteads; increase in gross earnings taxes on railroads and other public utilities, and other such measures. Did it hurt our cause? Not if judged by the election returns.

Take Over Key Industries.

A third party must campaign on the theory that our capitalistic system is a worn-out machine, unsuited to the times and incapable of satisfying the needs of the people. I believe that to be a fact. Any patching up of that machine must be regarded not as a permanent solution but as a necessary step in a period of transition. How far to the Left can a third party go? I should say that its program should unhesitatingly set out as an immediate objective the taking over and operation by the government of the key industries of the country. It must do that to justify its existence; to fall short of that objective as an immediate goal would not give it the morel right to champion the aspirations of the masses.

From the standpoint of political action, many Minnesota Farmer-Laborites are interested in the causes for the failure of sponsors of a third party movement from a national standpoint, to build up or vigorously attempt to build up third parties for state campaigns and programs in order to gain political control within the states. Certainly that would be a better foundation for a national movement than an attempt to build from the top.

Farm and Market

by
R. A Trovatten
Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture, Dairy and Food

Some Twenty five years ago, large areas of marsh peat lands in Northern Minnesota were drained and the land opened up for settlement for farming.

The chief crime is that the state and federal governments disposed of its marsh lands to private owners without the concern as to how the purchasers might be able to use these lands to derive an income. Had there been an intelligent study made of the adaptibility of the land, the failures that followed could have been averted.

Even during the years when agriculture on the whole was somewhat prosperous, it was lean years for these "peat" settlements of Northern Minnesota. With agriculture on the down grade they found it impossible to carry on. They defaulted their tax payments, deserted their "farms" and now Northern Minnesota is faced with a gigantic problem.

Millions of acres of tax delinquent lands soon will come into the possession the state,—and are these lands again going to be sold by the state to settlers without concern as to their future use?

The entire state paid for the folly of the past. The state has assumed ditch bond obligation to the extent of $4,000,000 because the northern counties were unable to meet these obligations.

But the price paid was even greater than can be measured in terms of dollars and cents. The exposed peat bogs have been directly responsible for many of our largest forest fires.

The objective of the recent work of Governor Olson's Land Utilization Committee, of which Commissioner Trovatten is a member, is to bring about a land zoning system. In other words, land within an area suitable for agricultural development, where the chances of successful farming are in favor of the farmer, will be used for agriculture; land suitable for timber will be set aside for the growing of forests.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

ILLINOIS TOWN DISPENSES WITH BEER

Allerton, a small Illinois community, finds that it does not pay financially to sell beer. In April, according to press reports, three places put in bars and waited for customers, but the owners have decided that it is a losing proposition, and have agreed to take out the bars and start their regular business. When Allerton was founded forty five years ago, the stipulation was made that no saloons should be permitted. When beer was legalized, Mayor Beatty insisted it could not be sold, but the wets took the case to the Illinois attorney who ruled that since 3.2 per cent beer was "non-intoxicating" it could be sold within the city limits. It was herefore placed on sale, but it did not pay for itself because, according to the sellers, "the citizens have been too well educated against her". During the forty-five years of its existance only three of its citizens have been locked in the Allerton jail.

A HAPPY COUNTRY

When it is said of any country in the world, "My poor are happy; neither ignorance nor distress is to be found among them; my jails are empty of prisoners, my streets of beggars; the aged are not in want, the taxes are not oppressive; the rational world is my friend, because I am a friend of its happiness"—— when these things can be said, then may that country boast of its constitution and its government.

Highway Patrol Opens Four District Offices

Establishment of four highway patrol districts in the state, instead of three as in the past was announced by J C. Arnoldy, chief patrol officer. District headquarters will be in Mankato, Willmar, Brainard and St. Paul with a lieutenant in charge of each district.

Previously there were three general patrol districts, but all were supervised by officers who worked out of the headquarters office in St. Paul. Under the new system, each district will have a lieutenant constantly within its bounderies, with a definite district office.

Lieutenant J. C. Dahl will be in charge of district No. 1, headquarters at St. Paul; Lieutenant E. M. Larimer at Willmar; Lieutenant R. F. Potvin at Mankato and Lieutenant Noil Gordon, District No. 2 at Brainard.

All of these men have been acting in supervisory capacities in the past except Noil Gordon, who has just been promoted to lieutenancy. The four lieutenants will be under direct spervision of Bert R. Morton, assistant chief of patrol.

The Old Libby Prison

The old Libby prison, which was moved to Chicago in 1889, was torn down in 1899 and the Coliseum built on the site. The outer wall of the prison was used in constructing the front of the Coliseum, which was built in 1900. The war exhibit, which was housed in the prison after it was taken to Chicago, is in the possession of the Chicago Historical society. The organization also has a pair of the wooden shutters and the main door of the prison on exhibit in its Civil war room. Most of the building material is supposed to have been disposed of by the men who wrecked the building in 1899.

Phoenicia, Narrow Strip Along the Mediterranean

Phoenicia, Phenice or Phenicia, though a very small province, nevertheless occupies a large space in the histories of the Old world. Its people were expert mariners noted for their long voyages, celebrated artisans, energetic colonizers, foremost among traders. Their civilization was ancient. they were renowed warriors, and Carthage, their best known colony, became a notable nation, and rivaled Rome in her best days. The art of using letters we owe to them, so that we might almost call them the authors of literature, as it exists today.

Phoenicia is only a narrow strip of coast from 12 to 20 miles in width, about 120 miles in length along the northern Mediterranean shore of Palestine, north of Mount Carmel, or the modern St. Jean d'Acre. It is watered by several short streams, originating in the mountains of Lebanon which form its eastern boundary. It had valuable harbors at Tyre and Sidon, and Beyreout is an important port. Its soil was fertile, and although poorly cultivated produces in abundance such fruits as oranges, figs, plums, peaches, pomegranates, pears, and olives; also where allowed so to do, it raises the crops of grain.

Court-Martial System

The court-martial system of trial under which members of the Army Navy and Marine corps are tried by officers of the service in which the offense has been committed, dates back to the time of Charles I of England. These courts, which also try violators of martial law, are referred to in the first mutiny act of William and Mary. In the American court-martial, a closer parallel to civil trial is attained than in the British system. The prisoner has the right to have an attorney and to present evidence and the court is always composed of officers of the same rank or higher than the accused. The drumhead court-martial, in which a prisoner was tried on the field, during the height of passion and with little or no opportunity to defend himself, has passed out and such trials are no longer sanctioned in the United States.

The First Anesthetic

The first anesthetic was used only about 90 years ago; the germ theory of disease was proved only about 70 years ago; antiseptic surgery was founded only about sixty years ago; the first appendix operation was performed only about 50 years ago; the X-ray is only forty years old. At the beginning of the century cholera, smallpox, diphtheria, yellow fever, malaria and other diseases were scourges which swept the world intermittently, destroying millions of lives.

Tiny Bible at Fair

The smallest bible in the world is on exhibition in the Hall of Religion at A Century of Progress—the Chicago World's Fair. The pages are about one-third the size of an ordinary postage stamp.

Years ago quit rent in the form of faggots hnd to he paid to the crown for a piece of moorland in Shropshire, and six horseshoes, with 61 nails, for a forge in the parish of St. Clement Danes, given by Henry III to a farrier as a tribute to his skill. Both properties have long been lost, but the city corporation still pays the rent. The king's remembrancer, in wig and gown, watched the payment of the rent by the city solicitor. Two bundles of twigs—a substitute for faggots—wera cut in half, one with a bill-hook and the other with an ax. Then followed the six large horseshoes and 61 nails, which were carefully counted.—Montreal Herald.

Forty-two Miles of Pennington County Highway IucInded In Transfer

On October 15, the State Highway Department will start taking over more than 4,000 miles of new routes edded to tha trunk system by the last legislature. In Pennington County, this will mean the taking over of 42 miles of highway including the Elwell road, No. 2; the Angle road, No. 5; and the Plummer road, No. 8

Until next year the highway department will limit its work on the new routes almost entirely to snow removal, it was said by N. W. Elsberg highway Commissionerr, in announcing the program. All county boards have been asked by the highway department to put their portions of the routes in proper conditions for winter and to erect necessary snow fences.

"Next year the state will take over the entire maintennnce of the new routes, relieving the counties of all expence," Mr. Elsberg seid, "This would have been done this year, bnt the shortage of funds in the highway department resulting from the cut in automobile licence fees made it impossible.

"The highway department will do nll in its power to keep the new rontes open this winter. However, we must have the co-operation of the county boerds in getting the preliminary fall work done and snow fences in place, as we have no funds to undertake more than the snow plowing operations until next year. Even the funds for this purpose are extrememly limited so the department can only promise to do its best with what money is available."

Poultry Problem Is Attacked By A. A. A.

The problem of how to increase the prices of poultry and eggs to pre-war parity is one of the most puzzling that face the Agriculture Adjustment Administration, says advice received at University Farm, St. Paul, from Washington,D. C. Through a series of informal conferences with distributors and producers of poultry and eggs, however, the special crops section has begun an effort to work out a practical solution.

In value of product, the poultry industry ranks high. The nnmber of eggs sold in the United States in 1929 was nearly two billion dozen, with an aggregate value of $586,000,000. The number of baby chickens, exclusive of baby chicks, sold in 1929 was 248 million, with a value of $262,000,000. The combined total valne of poultry and eggs was $848,000,000. Poultry or eggs are produced on more than 5,400,000 of the approximately 6,000,000 farms in the United States. A relatively small nnmber of chickens are on farms that specialize in poultry.

The difficulties of improving the poultry and egg situatiou, according to the Adjastment Administration officials are that poultry is prodnced on sucb a large number of farms and in all parts of the country; that on all but a relatively small nnmber of these farms, poultry is considered a side issne and is often left entirely to the farmers wife; that it is impossible for producers to get into and ont of poultry and eeg prodnction in one season; that there are many thonsands of poultry and egg bnyers scattered widely over the United States; that the market of poultry and eggs is handled by several groups of middlemen before these commodities reach the consumer, and that cold storage snpplies of eggs and pon1try are from 40 to 50 percent greater than last year.

County Engineers Must Aid Making Fed. Applications

To speed up the government's public works program in Minnesota the governor's committee on public works has requested every county engineer in the state to aid the municipalities and county units in prparing their applications.

Instructions to this effect have been issued by L. P. Zimmerman, executive engineer of the committee, snpplying the county engineers with information conserning requlrements of the public works program. Each county englneer has been mads an agent of the committee to furnish information and aid to the various units.

Much delay in getting projects approved has been due to failure of the applying units to observe the administration's requirements, William N, Carey, state engineer of the Federal public works adminstration, said. Cooperation of the governors committee will go a long way in belping muniipalities prepare tbeir applications properly, he explained.

January 1, 1394, has been set as the deadliue for receiving applications. No project will be considered after that date.

As part of the plan to speed up work on proposed projects authority has been given to Mr. Carey and to the state advisory board to adjust a wage scale snitable to Minnesota conditions. While the minimum wage for unskilled labor is 50 cents per hour and the maximum $1.20 for unskilled labor, a scale is being prepared to include the semi-skilled classification. Labor will bs limited to 30 hours per week and cannot exceed 130 hours per month.

The governor's committee consists of Gov. Olson, cbairman; N. W. Elsberg,state highway commissioner; H. B. Whittaker, dlrector, state board of health; E. V. Willard, chairman, conservation commission; Harry H. Peterson, attorney general; J. D. Williams, chairman, industrial commission, and Morris B. Lambie, secretary, Leagus of Minnesota Municipalities.

This body is co-operoting closely with the Minnesota Federal Advisory board, which consists of J. F. D. Meighen of Albert Lea, Fred Schilplin of St. Cloud and Mr. Elsberg.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

The war that has been brewing between the railroad and warehouse commission on one side, and D. F. Jurgenson, former chief engineer of the commision on the other, has now broken out in open conflict.

On September 6 Mr. Hustlehy, secretary of the commission, advised the latter of "severance of your employment with this commission." Mr. Huslteby, on behalf of the commission, requested " return of your railroad and motor bus transportation, office keys and any and all official records in your possession."

The conflict between the commission and Mr. Jurgenson originated several years ago and has its basis in the investigation that Jurgenson made into the valuation of the Tri-State properties in St. Paul and in the territory in southern Minnesota heretofore served by the company.

Could Reduce Rates 25 per cent

It will be recalled that at that time Mr. Jurgenson reported to the commission his conclusions that a reduction of 25 per cent in telephone rates could be made and still allow the company an 11 per cent return on the actual value of the properties. The commission at that time failed to go ahead with its hearings in the matter, in other words, failed to act upon the recommendations of a merger of the Northwestern Bell and Tri-State companies on a valuation that was approximently twice the actual value of the properties of the Tri-State company at that time.

Attorney General Harry H. Peterson, through Deputy Attorney General Frederick Pike, and Speciol Council, Judge Reed, have presented a powerful case against the company at hearings before the commission. These hearings are still in progress and now relate specifically to the situation in the city of St. Paul. Mr. Peterson realizes that the discountinuance of Mr. Jurgensen's services at this time when the hearings are in progress would seriuosly cripple the state's case.

Would Retain Jurgenson

Upon learning of the dismissal of Mr. Jurgenson by the railroad commission, Mr. Peterson, on September 7, addressed the commission, requesting that Mr. Jurgensen be retained.

"I am told by my deputy who has been in charge of this case," says the attorney general, "that he has conferred with Mr. Jurgensen during the past two months and is informed of what Mr. Jurgensen has done. His opinion, in which I concur, is that Mr. Jurgensen's dismissal at this time will work irreparable injury. No one can fail to see the disadvantage that may result if the dismissal of the State's principal witness becomes effective."

In conclusion, the Attorney General expresses the wish that the Commission "see its woy clear to revising its decision in this matter," namely, to reinstate Jurgensen in his position as engineer of the Commission.

Bell Company on the Job

In this connection it is interesting to note the methods employed by the telephone monopoly now in control of telephone service in this and other states of the country. The Bell System is now officially the owner of the Tri-State Company, its request to merge having been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Even without the sanction of the I. C. C., the Bell crowd constituted the real owners of the Tri-State.

Naturally the Bell company is not going to permit the Attorney General or Mr. Jurgensen, or both combined to force a reduction of its rates if this can be prevented. Public utilities are not letting anything happen that will in the end prove to their disadvantage.

State System Attacked

Thus it happens that though the Legislature on the closing day of the session voted to appropriate $47,000 to install an automatic telephone system in the Capitol, State Office Building and Historical Building, the Bell company has thus far succeeded in obstructing the installation of this state-owned system at the Capitol buildings. It was shown conclusively before the committee on finance of the Senate and the appropriations committee of the house that a large saving could be achieved by installing such a system. The vote in the Senate was all but unanimous and in the house there were only seven votes cast in opposition to the bill.

It will be interesting indeed to watch the fight of Attorney General Peterson and D. F. Jurgensen, former chief engineer of the railroad and warehouse commission, to force the telephone monopoly to reduce its rates to the people of the Twin Cities and othr communities served by them in the state of Minnesota.

A Frankenstein

A Frankenstein is a person destroyed by his own works. The term is often erroneously applied to a monster. In Mary W. Shelley's "Frankenstein, or the Modern Prometheus," published in 1818, Victor Frankenstein is a young Swiss student who, while attending a German university, constructs a humanlike monster of materials obtained from cemeteries and dissecting rooms, and endues it with life by means of galvanism. The soulless monster, shunned by every living thing, is made frantic by unsatisfied human cravings, and commits atrocious crimes, finally inflicting a horrible retribution upon the man who usurped the prerogative of the Creator. The author of the book, who was the second wife of Percy Byssbe Shelley, gave the monster no name in her narrative, a fact which leads many into the error of referring to it as Frankenstein.

LEGISLATING WHOLE COMMUNITIES OUT OF EXISTANCE

On Wednesday Sept. 20, the Minneapolis Tribune carried in large headlines across its front page, "Broke, Eastern City Quits". The story that follows is one that might well have been the story of Thief River Falls or any other Minnesota municipality if it had not been for the alertness of the Farmer-Labor forces in the last legislature.

In Morgantown, West Virginia, the city council declared the city unable to function and carry on its business as a result of a drastic tax-limitation measure that was passed by the last legislature of that state. To quote from the story, "Crowds gathered in the streets and business men sought frantically to keep the city running after councilmen ordered suspension of municipal machinery on the ground that the taxation limitation leaves the city penniless".

The Minnesota counterpart of the law passed in West Virginia was known as the "McKenzie bill" and passed the Senate by a vote of 43 to 22. All efforts of the Farmer-Laborites in the Senate failed to keep it from passage. However the fact that the Farmer-Laborites had succeeded in organizing the house gave them control of the house committees and arriving in the house committee on taxes and tax-laws it was put on the table and the proponents of the measure could not muster enough votes to get it passed out to the house, where it might, mark well that we say "it might" have passed as it did in the senate.

Under the provisions of this bill all municipalities would have been limited in their tax levies, according to the words of the bill as follows:

> Section 2. The total amount of taxes which may be levied for the years hereinafter named in any municipal corporation in the state ————shall not exceed the following specified percentages of the amount of taxes which were levied by such municipal corporation in the year 1931, payable in 1932 for all purposes except those above enumerated, viz: in the year 1933, 85 per cent; in the year 1934, 80 per cent; in the year 1935, 75 per cent; in the year 1936, 70 per cent.

The exceptions are levies for bond retirement. Please note that they would not jeopardice their own racket. In the city of Thief River Falls where the bulk of the money for retirement of bonds has been paid out of the earnings of the municipal light and power plant the law would have affected us about as follows: The 1931 levy for city purposes was $22,000, the 1933 levy therefore would have been cut to $18,700. The 1934 levy to $17,600. The 1935 levy to $16,500 and the 1936 levy to $15,400. Which means that Thief River Falls as a city would've been legislated out of existence. These figures would have been fixed by statute regardless of what the needs of the city might become. Inflation and rising prices could not have altered them, and as a consequencee the present upward trend in wages and commodity prices would have closed up the city. Other communities that are served with street lights by private power companies would have been in still worse predicament inasmuch as they must make a direct tax levy to meet this obligation.

Now a person may wonder how these men who are generally considered the pillars of society could have desired to saddle such legislation on to the state. We say they are generally considered the pillars of society, because an analysis of the yea vote on this bill reveals the fact that of the 32 Senators that voted for this bill 20 were lawyers, one a banker, (the only one inthe Senate) two were newspaper editors and a half a dozen or more were insurance agents or representatives of other large corporations. The fact that it remained for the representatives drawn from the humbler walks of life to show good judgment and vote against this preposterous piece of legislation should go a long way to dispel the notion that the professional class are endowed with the best judgment and keenest insight. But perhaps the wreckage of our much touted social structure has already dipelled that falacy quite successfully.

THE "KEPT" DAILY PRESS

"Why," asks a friend, "does the Farmer-Labor Leader often refer to the large Twin City daily newspapers as the "capitalistic", "subsidized" or "kept" press? Is it because these newspapers accept out-and-out contributions from the vested interests?"

"Not on your life!" we reply, "nothing as forthright as that. There are neater ways to kill a cat than to choke it with butter."

A great newspaper's revenue has to be vast and continuous if a profit is to be shown. And this revenue flows from only one fount—advertising. As a source of revenue the subscriber to a Big Business daily is a total loss. He is a necessary evil and an expense—necessary because circulation is vital in obtaining advertising at high rates, an expense because his mite does not pay for the paper on which the news is printed.

Who advertises? The man in the street? Well, hardly. It's the automobile makers, the large stores, the tobacco companies and their ilk, entrenched wealth in almost every instance.

The Northern States Power company and the Twin City Rapid Transit lines are monopolies in the real meaning of the word. Advertising is a medium for fighting competition. So why should a monoply advartise. Yet at regular intervals the street car company and the power company blossom out with advertising spreads to warm the cockles of the most greedy publisher's heart. In view of this, is the publisher going to antagonize these "generous" utilities? You answer that.

Keep in mind, too, that big dailies, like farms, are addicted to mortgages. And when a bank holds your long overdue mortgage you dance most graciously when the banker calls the tune.

All this explains why the "kept" press goes to any length to attack, obstruct and belittle the work of men like Governor Olson and other Farmer-Labor public servants, and the entire Farmer-Labor program.—St. Louis County Independent (Hibbing.)

WHAT DO YOU MAKE OF IT?

Many centuries ago in Egypt a certain Pharaoh dreamed a fearful dream one night. In it he saw fat cattle for which the land was famous, being devoured by lean and hungry brutes which came up out of the river Nile.

In the days that followed, Pharaoh was sorely perplexed. It seems he didn't know what it was all about.

He wasn't a know-it-all. He admitted he was baffled He called in his "brain trust" and to its members revealed his dream. They weren't able to unravel the mystery of the vision, either. The best they could do was recommend to Pharaoh the counsel of a wise man they knew, named Joseph. Joseph, it developed, was then in jail. That did not surprise Pharaoh. Nor should we be surprised. The records show that the brains of the world are often confined in prisons of one kind or the other.

Well, Pharaoh sent for Joseph and told him of the dream. Joseph figured out the fat cattle to mean that years of plenty were about to bless Egypt, and that the lean kind stood for years of boll-weevils, droughs and grasshoppers which would follow the fat years.

Pharaoh was much impressed with the wisdom of Joseph and decided he could use the stranger in his organization. So Joseph was elevated to the position of Egyptian "secretary of agriculture." Complete control of all farm marketing was placed in his hands.

As dictator of the food supplies of Egypt, Joseph decreed that during each of the fat years a portion of the crop should be placed in the storehouses of Egypt and not be touched until lean years created a shortage of food. The lean years came and the superior statesmanship of Joseph was acknowledged by all.

Never once during the fat years did this ancient "secretary of agricultura" order cropa to be plowed under or animals raised to fill the flesh-pots of Egypt to be killed in their infancy. —Farmers Independent (Bagley).

THE ECONOMIC BATTLEGROUND .

To review in its entirely the talk given by John Bosch, state president of the Farmers Holiday Association before the Askov unit last Thursday evening would be some extent a repitition of what this gentleman has said at other meetings in Pine county and which have been reported in whole or part in the Askov American. However, many good points were brought out by Mr. Bosch, a few of which will be mentioned.

The speaker said that farmers have tried political, co-operative and production methods for their welfare and with some success but not far-reachingenough. He strongly advocated a banding together and fight on economic grounds, stating that the first principle of the Holiday Association is to get cost of production with orderly and controlled marketing.

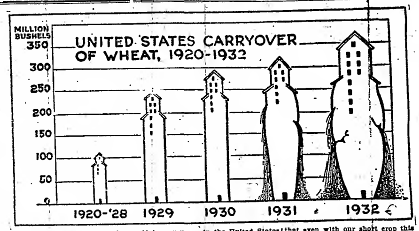
Mr. Bosch who speaks calmly and deliberately—no showmanship—but with the earmarks of having made a study of economics and sincere in purpose, said that every industry is successful only to the degree it controls the flow of its products to the market. The flow of the product will regulate the price or the price will regulate the flow. Corn was cited as an example, the market glutteh and the price as low as 1½ cents per bushel at Mitchell, S. D., where they have the corn palace.

The speaker said that because the filling station has barrels or tanks of gasoline on hand does not make them sell five gallons any cheaper. The same is true of the banker. A customer may ask for a loan of $100. The banker may be flush with money and even if he has $100 or more to loan out it will not induce him to make the $100 loan at 2 or 3 per cent interest if the going rate is 8 per cent. In other words they do not dump their surplus on the market at any kind of prices.

In this respect the speaker pictured a good example and admonished the farmers to do likewise—organize economically for mutual benefit—to get cost of production. While he realizes the value of co-opration and said that much good has come out of it, and advises also that the political field must not be overlooked, nevertheless the greatest lift to the farmer will come from organization on economic grounds.

Mr. Bosch said that test cases will be brought in district courts in an effort to have mortgages trimmed down to conform to present commodity prices. If laws are not morally and basically sound they will fall, said the speaker, and added that the Holiday Association upheld the moral law when it stopped mortgage foreclosures. The mortgage moratorium law passed by the last session of the Minnesota Legislature, providing for a breathing spell, was not as much as desired, said the speaker, but added that it was as much as the court would stand for.

The meeting which was attended by 200 people was made more interesting by Mr. Bosch's answers to questions regarding the Frazier farm refinancing bill which failed of passage in the last session of Congress, interest rates, the mortgage moratorium, and other questions which he answered in an understanding manner. He said that "every citizen in the United States is to blame for the condition of the country. We must change conditions to the extent we can help. Responsibility rests on the shoulders of all. If you are not interested in others you do not deserve to get your share."—Askov American.



BURSTING wheat bins pictured above indicate how the carryover of wheat in the United States has increased since 1928. From 1920 to 1928 the carryover was about normal and a bin or grain elevator capacity of slightly more than 100 million bushels was sufficient for supplies from year to year. Since 1928 the carryover in the United States has increased rapidly. In 1929 it was nearly 250 million bushels, in 1930 it was nearly 300 million bushels, it was over 300 million bushels in 1931 and in 1932 it reached a new peak of more than 360 million bushels. Secretary Wallace has estimated that even with our short crop this year, the carryover will still be above normal a y. r from now because of the present large carryover, the lack of export demand and reduced feeding and, unless something is done to check it, the carryover is likely to jump again to around 350 million bushels in 1935.

EATING WITHOUT WORKING

No single one of the economic moralities is held in more tender regard by the western people than that carried in the phrase: In the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat thy bread". To secure useful goods, one must give useful labor. This is, to date, aximatic.

It is true that the modern rule is not applicable to that 2% of the population who live by virtue of the absentee ownership of profitable investment, whether in lands, buildings, royalties, or stocks and bonds. Fortunately the classical economists have been at some pains to rationalize this breach of a great moral priciple. It appears that the "kept classes" consume without producing now, because in the past they have produced without consuming. This would be news to many young gentlemen and ladies in exclusive finishing schools, to every fortunate gambler in real estate and stocks, to all recipients of engraved certificates of esteem fom the house of Morgan, but so the classic apologia goes.

The economic morality of work stands, then for 98 percent, more or less, of the population, charmingly and persuasively encouraged by the remaining 2 percent. Impinging upon this principle, however, comes a thoroughly unmoral however, comes a Raw natural energy, harnessed in a prime mover and yoked to an operating machine, is destroying human work. This automatic process means a steadily declining use for human labor, particularly manual labor. What it does demand is efficient consumption of its fabulous output. Unless its serialized machines and processes are run at approximate capacity on the "balanced load" principle, it can properly function as in the present dspression. To function it must have millions and millions of te sturdiest sort of consumers Slowly under this imperative, consumption is becoming, as a matter of economic reality, more important than work; purchasing power more important than man hours.

Slowly, reluctantly, even kicking and screaming, industrial nations are being driven to the hitherto abhorrent notion that the consumer must be furnished with purchasing power whe- to watch the tortures of the moralists caught on the thorns of this delemma; one school seriously proposes that the output, rather than be allowed to fall into the hands of the consumer, should be destroyed. A billion pounds of coffee, millions of bushels of wheat, thousands of bales of cotton, uncounted gallons of milk have recently been subjected to holocaust and destructher he works or not. It is touchini tion, thus preserving the economic morality of the wayfaring citizen. He has not worked, so he must be prevented from consuming. This censorship, however, like another nohla experiment in prohibiting consumption, has not served economic realities.

The consumer must be permitted to consume. The 98 percent must absorb, with or without working, even as the 2 percent has done hitherto. A few business men and a few college professors saw the handwriting on the wall as early as 1922. Mr. Henry Ford saw it even earlier. They began the now familiar talk about the "economy of high wages", furnishing the worker with power to buy back what, with his declining assistance, the machine process could make.

From a broader point of view, of course, the consumer is not without moral claims of his own. The output of modern industry rests on five fundamental factors: 1. Natural resources avaliable; 2. skilled and unskilled labor (n declining factor but still very important); 3. technical management (an increasingly important factor); 4. non-human forms of energy (from coal, oil, water power); 5. the cultural heritage of the technical arts.

If the consumer can find a job to aid production in factor 2, well and good; that gives him a direct if modest claim on the output, as has long been recognized. But increasingly he will be denied a job as technological unemployment gains. Either that or the work demanded of him will be startlingly reduced by a shorter working week. In either case, toil will decline, and with it those claims founded on useful work.

Technical management has a sound and growing claim on output; but as there are probably not more than 200,000 families headed by active technicians in the United States, this is far too small a group to be of any appreciable help in carrying off the product. There are 30,000,000 families in the country.

The other three factors—natural resources, energy, and the technical arts—are, or should be, the common inheritance of the whole community, which is the same as saying the common inheritance of the consumer. His common property provides the factors which are most important in the whole productive mechanism. He has, accordinyly from this broader point of view, a reasonably good moral right to the usufruct of his property. Now this may or may not be good moral doctrine; certainly economic realities are on the road to making it a practical doctrine.

As for the methods whereby the consumer will ultimately be financed, history has a wide choice. She may select minimum subsistance payments per capita or per family; she may choose customers'. dividends, or a straight rationing of prime necessities, or an enormously shortened week with undiminished wages—thus keeping all able-bodied consumers nominally employed; or a guaranteed job, more or less of a nominal character, in the public works division; or a combination of these methods.

Somehow, somewhere—but in the not too distant future—mass consumption must move up to the technical requirements of mass production at the cost of whatever moralities and financial dream castles lie in the way. All men cannot at present work. All men must eat.

Editor Forum:

I wish to compliment the editorial in the Forum of a recent date wherein a distinction is made prosperity or security, the two are quite different.

Prosperity means production run rampant without regard to consumption or the ability to consume.

Security means to be able to consume all that can be produced, and if that could be done we will have a different out look on life.

Anyone knows or should know that with technical advancement in any industry or in nearly every trade, production has increased many fold, as we see today of glutted markets for everything but the ability to buy that which has been produced.

It appears then that we need not worry about production, but how to consume all that can be produced.

It seems then that the only reasson that the consumer cannot consume all that has been produced is because a profit has been exacted from the product which he made he cannot buy back with the wage he receives. And with the technical advancement increasing so rapidly of late years, it so becomes more prononnced, and it is apparent that we shall have to be master of technical advancement rather than tecnical advancement master of man.

Some day we shall realize that this so, and it will be hard medicine to swallow, but most every one knows what a good dose of castor oil will do to for an oiling system. Security can be obtained in no other way.

Yours truly,
Arthur M. Johnson.

CHURCH RELIEF REFUSED TO NEEDY DRINKERS!

—o—

The Associated Pres reports that fifteen hundred church members gathered at Heathsville, Virginia, for a Baptist camp meeting the middle of August, passed resolutions against giving church relief to families which were in want because of liquor, if and when the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed. The resolution called on the state legislature to make available any money "necessary to relieve distress brought on by the use of intoxicants or alcoholic drinks purchased from licensed dealers who pay the state a tax for license," and added: "If no distress comes from legalized selling of alcohlic drinks there will be no relief needed. If innocent women and children suffer as they did in the days of legalized liquor, it is only fair that the state that gets the revenue should care for innocent suffering families."

—O—

LIQUOR REVENUE A SOCIAL WASTE

"The national revinue from the liquor traffic is simply an indication of the extent of social waste and social poverty which is caused be the traffic." This was the statement of that keen-minded statesman, former Chancellor Snowden, of England. He continued: "The liquor traffic does not produce wealth; it destroys wealth in order to manufacture pauperism, crime, disease, lunacy, poverty and death."

Old Moon in Young Moon's Arms

When there is a crescent moon we often see the rest of the moon very faintly as an ashy light. This is called "the old moon in the young moon's arms." What we see is reflected light from the earth shining on the moon. Sometimes the crescent is almost horizontal and the moon is said to be "lying on her back." This occurs when the moon is vertically over the sun, after the sun has set or before it has risen on the earth.

What Funerals Have Cost in This Community

There is nothing mysterious or necessarily high-Priced about the cost of a funeral. A survey made by the Minnesota Funeral Directors Association, of funeral costs in Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties, for the past year, from September 1, 1932 to September 1, 1933, each report sworn to, shows that prices range from less than $100 and up.

It is said the average family purchases a funeral but once in 19 years. That however is no reason why people should not be reliably informed on current funeral costs, and not be misinformed thru prejudice and gossip. What people spend for funerals is determined by themselves and nobody else. The survey in three counties up here shows a third of the adult funerals cost less than $100 each.

Following is a summary of "Complete Adult Funeral" costs in Pennington, Red Lake, and Marshall counties, taken from the records of the nine reporting firms and their respective branhes, for the period from Sept. 1, 1932 to Sept. 1 1933:

91 funerals at or less than $100
71 funerals from $101 to $150
61 funerals from $151 to $200
28 funerals from $201 to $250
14 funerals from $251 to $300
7 funerals from $301 to $350
3 funerals from $351 to $400
4 funerals from $401 to $500

Total 279 funerals

State of Minnesota,
County of Pennington---ss.

I hearby certify to the above.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23rd day of September, 1933.
ROBERT J. LUND
Notary Public, Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minn.
My Commission expires Oct. 21, 1939.

The above tabulation refers to "Complete Adult Funerals" only, except in a few instances where all the services of "Complete" funeral were not used. A "Complete" funeral as the term is understood, means embalming, furnishing casket, furnishing outside box or vault, use of hearse, mortuary facilities, and services of funeral director.

Ickes Gives O K to U S Grant for Power Plant

HOME LOAN CORP TO OFFER LOANS

Three Plans Set Fourth Bearing Five and Six Per Cent Interest

The Home Owner's Loan Corporation will make loans up to 80 per cent of the property value, Mr. Chommie, local home loan attorney, stated today in announcing the plan. Bonds issued by the corporation, says Mr. Chommie, are guaranteed fully and unconditionally as to interest only, by the government. They are acceptable at face value in payment of indebtedness due the corporation; and they are exempt as to both principal and interest from all federal, state, municipal and local taxes.

These bonds are acceptable at par by the United States Treasury as security for government deposits and at market value to secure Postal Savings funds. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will accept them as security for loans made by the Corporation at 80 per cent of par. The Comptroller of the Currency has ruled that these bonds may be held by the National banks in operation when received from the Corporation in exchange for home mortgages, valued at par or the value at which the bank carried the mortgages at the time of exchange.

Three loan plans are given Mr. Chommie states, first, where the holder of the mortgage will accept the bonds, 5 per cent interest will be paid on a loan up to 80 per cent of the property value. Second, where the mortgage holder refuses to accept bonds, a cash loan will be made up to 40 per cent of the home value at 6 per cent interest. Third, special cash loans up to 50 per cent of the property value at 6 per cent. This percentage of the loan will include allowances for delinquint taxes, repairs and maintanence, etc.

Provisions for repaying the loans are also set forth; in the first plan the owner will pay 5 per cent interest for thre years, until June, 1936, of $4.17 per month for each $1,000, and then will pay $9.25 for 144 monthe to clear the principal; or he can start paying at once, by paying $7.91 for 180 months when he will be clear of the mortgage. The second and third plans of payment are the same, the owner paying interest for first three years and then $9.76 for each $1,000 the next 12 years; or begin paying $8.44 per month and continue for 180 months until he is clear of the mortgage.

County Board To Buy Box Cars For Houses

The County Board at its meeting Monday authorized the purchase of fifteen box cars to be used this winter for housing quarters for the Pennington county poor. These cars will be rebuilt and located under the supervision of the county overseer of the poor, Ray Pope.

Mr. Torgerson, division highway engineer, and Mr. Graves, division maintenance engineer, notified the board that the state would take over roads 2, 5, and 8 and requested that the county put up the snow fences and cut the weeds along the roadsides.

Board members Lee and Mandt were appointed delegates to a meeting at Roseau relative to the new trunk highway 136 to connect with highway 32 in this county.

A resolution was passed asking the federal government to dredge the Red Lake River. This resolution was mailed to Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes at Washington, D. C.

Mr. Pope says that arrangements are being made to move fifteen box cars to a location near the county poorhouse. These cars will be reconditioned with doors and windows and will be the homes of people who are unable to provide for themselves this winter. "Individuals living alone in the county and being supported by the county," Mr. Pope says, "will be moved into the city for the winter."

The unemployed men's agricultural endeavors are being harvested this week under the direction of Mr. Pope, who states, a fair crop is expected.

Litigation Fails to Sway Fed. Aid Administrator

Newspaper Report is Verified By Long Distance Telephone

The city of Thief River Falls' application for a grant from the federal government of $16,000 towards the installation of another diesel unit for the local light and power plant has been allowed by the Public Works Administration at Washington, according to reports received here this morning. City Attorney H. O. Berva was advised by long distance telephone that the grant has been allocated and that he may expect to get official confirmation within a day or two.

In the meantime the suit against the city officials to restrain them from entering into contract with the Fairbanks-Morse Company for the installation of such a unit as per resolution adopted by the council and vetoed by the mayor only to be repassed over his veto, is still undecided. It is on the calendar of the district court now in session in this city but has not yet come up for consiedration. By agreement between the city officials and the plaintiffs the case is to be taken up on ten days notice upon agreement between the contesting parties.

According to the report received here the grant was included with 61 projects that have been O K'd by Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes and which total in excess of $5,400,000. The city of Thief River Falls is allowed the sum of $15,000 according to the dispatch.

No statement has yet been made by the plaintiffs in the action against the city officials as to what effect the action of the Washington officials will have on their future course in the suit.

MAYOR SUGGESTS CANCELLATION OF AUDITORIUM CONSTRUCTION PACT

Would Secure Federal Aid and Re-advretise to Come Under Code

A naive suggestion that the city should terminate its contract with Bert Norby for construction of the new auditorium and readvertise as soon as the building is enclosed, in order to conform with the federal regulations and thus be eligible for federal aid on the balance, was contained in a letter to the city council from the mayor at its meeting last Tuesday evening. The mayor explained that it would be impossible to get a federal grant for the auditorium because of the fact that construction had been started and expressed the belief that if the city would terminate its contract with Norby when the building is enclosed, it could then readvertise after a federal grant has been secured to defray part of the cost of finishing. The councilmen smiled at the suggestion.

City Attorney H. Berve pointed out that Mr. Norby had been paid his first estimate and that subcontracts had been let. It was suggested by Alderman Olson that Mr. Norby has undoubtedly contracted for materials for the whole job and that there could not be a termination of the contract without the city reimbursing Mr. Norby for whatever loss he would sustain. Such a proceedure would hardly be considered legal, it was thought.

Some of the insurance representatives in the city appeared before the council and voiced objection to the city insuring with mutual companies. Robert Lund explained that a policy with the mutual companies is a partnership contract and that the city would be liable in case such a company failed and was unable to meet its obligations. In such an event the city could be made liable for the total of liabilities of such a company, Mr. Lund pointed out.

Attorneys for both proponents and opponents being present at this meeting the dog ordinance was taken up for consideration. Paul Lundgren appearing for the proponents pleaded for passage of the measure and read from the Minnesota State laws citing the statutes to prove that the council has the power to legislate against the keeping of more than two dogs. "This ordinance is fair," he said, "and we ask that you pass it. We are living in a close community and one neighbor must adjust himself to the wishes of the rest of the people in the group." In arguing against the passage of the law, Theo. Quale, appearing for Dr. H. B. Newell, said that there is an old Norwegian saying that, "if a person mixes in a dogfight he must expect to get bit." He presented a petition signed by 450 citizens protesting against the passage of the proposed ordinance. "The state Legislature never considered going to the extremes that the city would go to if it passed this ordinance," he said, "under its provisions the chief of police could enter your home or mine without a warrant. I've never heard of anything so ridiculous," he said. Continuing he said, "Don't drag the city into a neighborhood dogfight, for it is sure to get bit."

The council mulled the matter over while President Porter asked others to air their views. Mr Newell spoke shortly, stating that he conducted a hospital for animals. That it is his profession. "My dogs get blamed for all the barking in the neighborhood," he said.

Asked by the president of the council what he thought about it, Alderman Johnson suggested that the ordinance should be laid aside and another one drawn. "This one don't go far enough," he said.

"In what way would you change it?" Mr. Lundgren asked.

"Well it seems to me we should make it more thorough. It aught to go farther. The question is, how much should a dog be allowed to bark?"

There being no second to a motion by Mr. Harris that the ordinance be given its final reading and put to a vote, the president of the council ruled that the ordinance was lost.

George Mostue appeared before the council and stated that he wishes to file a protest against the construction of the proposed filling station by the Land O' Lakes creameries adjoining his property and asked that action on the application for a building permit be deferred. This request was granted. B. O. Norby, manager of the Land O' Lakes being present asked that the part of the application pertaining to the bulk station which will be constructed alongside the Soo tracks be allowed since there could be no objection to that part of it. He was assured that he could proceed with construction on this part without delay.

NRA JOB CENSUS WILL BE TAKEN

3,000,000 Questionnaires Will Be Sent Out—Answers Will Be Confidential.

Washington—The NRA announced the immediate start of a canvass to cover every employer in the country to establish how much new employment and increase in pay roll has been secured by the recovery program since July 15. The recovery census will be handled by means of 3,000,000 questionnaires to be distributed by the postoffice department together with return envelopes. Just as the blanks for the President's reemployment agreement were taken from door to door by the mail carriers, so will the census forms be delivered within the next few days. The questionnaire is addressed by President Roosevelt to every employer with the following message: "Two months ago I invited you to enter into an agreement with me to aid industrial recovery by shortening hours of work and by increasing wage rate. The time has come to take stock. The information here requested is necessary to determine the progress we have made." All information contained in the answer will be treated as strictly confidential and available only to sworn employes of the government. Instructions for distribution of the questionnaires were sent to the 48,000 postmasters of the country. The questionnaires are to cover conditions up to October 14 of this year and will be returned to the census bureau for tabulation. Figures for the 15 or 20 largest cities in the country are to be obtained first.

Highway Jobs Now Under Way in 37 Counties in State

A few days ago Secretary Ickes of the U. S. Department of the Interior announced that 14 states have not begun any highway work with their allotments of emergency Federal funds, and that withdrawal of their allotments is being considered.

H. Kinwon, president of the Federal Land bank of St. Paul. Engineer Advises Minnesota to Use Public Work Fund

PUBLIC WORKS FUNDS

Immediate utilization of Public Works Administration aid will effect material savings in the cost of financing projects, according to William N. Carey, Executive engineer for the administration of Minnesota.

With a grant by the government of 30 per cent of the cost of labor and material and annual interest and amortization cost amounts to about 4.9 per cent, he pointed out.

"On a $30,000 project this would make an anual cost of $1,462.50", he said. "If the community should delay a few years in its development work the same project, figured on 1926 price levels which rapidly are being approached, would cost about $45,000. This would make the annual charge for interest and amortization $3,160, more than twice the amount under the NRA.

For this reason Mr. Carey has joined with Governor Olson's comittee on Public Works and the state advisory board in urging every community in the state to consider taking advantage of the Public Works program. Mr. Carey's headquarters are in St. Paul.

Prepare For Biggest Swine Feeders, Day

Looking forward to the largest Swine Feeders' Day it has ever held, University Farm is making thorough preparations for this year's event Friday, October 13. Three speakers scheduled include Dean W. C. Coffey and Prof. W. H. Peters of University Farm, and R. W. Brown, Carrolton, Missouri, a practical farmer and a member of the National Corn-Hog Adjustment Committee of Twenty-five.

However, one of the biggest tasks remains for the last few days. That is the final check-up on the experiments conducted this summer. More than 160 pigs have been used in the several trial lots. Prof. E. F. Ferrin in charge of the swine breedig work says most of the trials have run for 90 days, during which each pig has been weighed every two weeks and careful daily records kept as to the kinds and amounts of feed consumed.

Mr. Ferrin reports that all lots of pigs have done nicely and that the trials, therefore, should yield some worthwhile conclusions. One trial will show how soybeans by being combined with other feeds, may provide a good share of the protein supplement without danger of soft pork. Other trials will give facts about old and new process tankage, buttermilk feeding, and individual differences in pigs on feed.

To encourage farmers to take advantage of the strong program offered the Minnesota Swine Breeders' association is offering a purebreed gilt as a 4H- club prize to each of the two counties making the best attendance showing at Swine Feeders' Day.

Minnesota Fuel Users Urged to Burn Wood

Added income for farmers, more employment for local labor, and possible savings for fuel consumers, both private and public, are some reasons why wood should be widely used for heating homes, school houses, court houses, town halls and other buildings in Minnesota this winter, says Parker O. Anderson, extension forester, University Farm, St. Paul.

Mr. Anderson has launched a statewide drive to bring these facts to the attention of school district, township, county and village officials, and citizens generally to urge them to use wood as fuel wherever practicable.

Governor Olson has heartily endorsed Mr. Anderson's suggestion. Likewise, the Minnesota Farm Bureau has rallied to the support of the plan Besides caling on its members to boost for wood, the Bureau has appealed to business men of the state, through letters addressed to commercial club secretaries.

Mr. Anderson points out that counties and other governmental units might accept wood from farmers in in payment of their taxes, thereby helping the farmers to avoid delinquency. Likewise local business concerns which buy wood from farmers may expect this added income to be reflected in increased trade, both because the added market afforded the farmer for his wood and because of th added employment provided in the cutting and hauling of it.

Government Taking Staggering Loss on Pig Buying Program

According to figures published by Fronk Moore, Livestock editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, Sept. 14 page 3: Runts and sick pigs have been sent to the market that average about $4.75 per head (or about $1.50 per head bounty). Brood sows have been kept at home to produce pigs for the wonderful market promised by politicians.

With result: $19,000,000 has been spent for meat; only 500,000 pigs were good enough to be turned into meat—with a value of about $1,950,000 on the open market. The rest were good only for tankage; 17,000,000 pounds of tankage grease (about 5 pounds per pig) at 2 3-4c per pound—worth about $467,500.

With result: a loss so far, of $16,517,500 ($19,000,000 minus the quantity $1,950,000 plus $467,500.)

New Leaflet on Lice And Mange Control

Whether hog prices go up or down, the man who will come out best is the one who keeps his pigs healthy so they can make quick, cheap gains, points out H. G. Zevoral, extension livestock specialist, of the University Department of Agriculture.

Keeping pigs healthy, he reminds, includes keeping them free from mange mites and lice—pests which cause large losses every year. Simple, inexpensive methods for doing this are given in Minnesota agricultural extension folder 45, a small leaflet recetly prepered by Mr. Zavoral and available free to farmers from county agents or the Bulletin Office, University farm, St. Paul. Its title is "Hog Mange, Hog Lice, and Their Control."

THE LIST'NIN' POST

The membership campaign has started for the coming year and it is necessary that every ex-service man entitled to belong to the American Legion be signed up for the coming year.

The past commanders have told us to get member when they were in office. The Rookies have them on the spot now as they have been named on the membership committee and they challenge them in this drive, the Rookies feeling that one of their members will win that blanket.

Commander Ericson states that hereafter all metting will start promptly and the members that have made it a habit of comming at mess call will be put on K P duty.

President Roosevelt and Governor Olson have asked that the American Legion support the N R A and National and State Commanders have assured them that this will be done Consider it is a patriotic duty to see that all who have signed up under the Blue Eagle are complying to the code governing their particular business and report to the local committee if there is a misunderstanding as to the code they shall follow.

Are We Out When Opportunity Knocks?

Elsewhere in this issue, we are carrying a statement by the mayor, Mr. Tungseth, wherein he states that the council should "release itself from the contract entered into with the Fairbanks-Morse company" in order that the city may be able to get the federal grant of $16,000.

This statement is somewhat misleading, for the council has not entered into a contract with the Fairbanks-Morse company and therefore has none to release itself from. The restraining order issued by the District Court stopped them from entering into the contract. There is consequently, no contract in existence between the city and Fairbanks-Morse company.

Furthermore the application which the council has made to the Federal Public Works Committee, specifically states that the mayor has vetoed the resolution by which the council would accept the bid of Fairbanks-Morse and company, and that it was repassed over his veto. It further states that no work will be started on the project until definite action has been taken by the Public Works Committee, and that in the event that the grant is made, the schedules of the Federal Public Works Act as pertaining to wages and hours will be strictly adhered to. The council has laid all its cards on the table openlyand aboveboard in all its dealings with the public and with the Public Works Committee in this matter and the federal body is conversant with all the facts in the case up to the smallest detail. Needless to say, the litigation that is being conducted against the purchase is endangering the chances of getting the grant. The statement which was made by our esteemed contemporary a couple of weeks ago to the effect that the restraining order raked our chances of getting the grant out of the fire because it postponed entering of the contract until Washington has allowed the grant, is therefore just some more of the "baloney" for which they are becoming famous.

The $16,000 gift from the Federal government, which it is hoped will be forthcoming on this project, is the first time, and it will probably be the only time that the city of Thier River Falls is in line for a present from Santa Claus. But inasmuch as there are thousands of communities that are willing to cooperate and pull together to get such a grant, it is not at all improbable that the grant will be denied us if we allow a few irreconciliables to divide us into two warring camps. We feel that this is a time when all our citizens should pull together. $16,000 is a third of the cost of the new diesel and inasmuch as prices are going up we would be ahead by buying now even if our need was not as acute as it actually is. If the litigation that is being carried on against this purchase results in the grant being denied, the persons who instituted it will have to be prepared to shoulder the responsibility.

A SUDDEN CRY FOR COOPERATION

The wet newspapers of the state are setting up quite a yowl about the fact that some of the dry leaders are refusing to serve on Governor Olson's Liquor Control Commission. The drys are accused of being selfish, lacking in courtesy, ad infinitum, for refusing to be a connected in any way with a liquor system. It seems to us that this criticism is entirely unjustified. A conscientious dry believes alcohol to be in the same class with narcotics, and as such should be barred from sale except on the prescription of a registered physician. Perhaps they are wrong, we will not argue the point for we are not entirely convinced one way nor the other. We do feel however, that they are absolutely justified in refusing to become a part in legalizing the hard liquor. In all fairness to them we fail to see how they could take any other stand. Would it not be just as logical to ask an opponent of capital punishment to sit in and help frame a law which would reinstate the death penalty?

We can of course understand the desire of the wets for assistance, for when a person gets into difficulties he is very much inclined to ask for help, even tho his quandary is of his own making. It certainly is easy to admit that in getting the 18th amendment repealed, which now seems assured, the wets have taken a husky longhorn by the antlers. It is entirely proper that they should assume the whole responsibility for writing a satisfactory regulatory law. They are ones who have insisted all along that prohibition is the wrong method and that there are better ways of handling the intoxicating liquors. We believe therefore that it is proper that the drys should sit back and let them "hop to it" without interference from the drys. If there should be colaboration in the drafting of the new laws would not the wets be inclined to pass the buck to the drys afterwards if the new regulations should fail to regulate as ideally as had been hoped?

Just why the wets should expect the drys to cooperate in drafting the new laws is one of those things that 'surpasseth' our understanding. Certainly the wets did not cooperate with the drys to give the 18th Amendment a fair trial. The failure of prohibition must be laid at the door of the wets for they are the class that insisted upon their "personal liberty" to the extent of buying liquor illegally.

Now that the American people are giving them a free hand to try out their method, let them frame the law as they see fit. They can be sure that if their regulations fail to regulate it will be as a result of the gluttonous appetites of members of their group for the drys neither use nor abuse liquor. The wets have cried long and lustily for the opportunity, now that they have it let them quit welching and get busy

500,000 FARMERS THREATEN STRIKE

THE NATIONAL Farm Holiday association declares it has reached the end of its "watchful waiting". Included in a number of immediate demands are two outstanding ones, enactment of the Frazier Bill, and an NRA code that will give farmers at least the cost of production. Unless these are forthcoming the Association says that without warning it will call a strike of 500,000 farmers in 24 states.

If such an agricultural move materializes it will be the most gigantic upheaval in American history, for the farmers, strongly organized, will withhold all farm products from the market, and will buy absolutely nothing. Carried to its logical conclusion, it will bring industry and finance to its knees, for even the lords of these two must eat—and they cannot eat unless the farmer feeds them.

Big Business newspapers will denounce the farmers as communists, "reds", and traitors. But back of all that commotion will stand the real reason for the farmers' desperate action. Here it is:

According to U. S. Department of Commerce figures made public on Sept. 24, the buying power of farm produce on Sept. 16 had reached a lower point than at any other date during the depression. And when practically all other commodity prices were steadily advancing.

Since September, 1930, farm prices have dropped 42 per cent while non-agricultural products have decreased but 4 per cent. (These are final figures in wavering line of rising and falling prices after three years.) Since September a year ago farm prices have risen 7 per cent but the prices of non-agricultural commodities have increased 16 per cent.

That simply means that present costs of what the farmer buys are about what they were in 1930—and going higher—while prices for what the farmer sells are 42 per cent lower than in 1930—and going lower.

No industry can withstand such a program and no set of men and women should be expected meekly to tolerate it. If the strike comes it will come swiftly, drastically. Every right-thinking man and woman in America will not only hope for victory for the farmers but will help them secure it.

CUBA AND THE ASTORS

SO VINCENT ASTOR owns the Tanamo sugar plant, near Antilla, Cuba, seized a few days ago by revolutionists! Now we should see the action! For Mr. Astor has a very seaworthy steam yacht which he can quickly convert into a warship. With a crew of other international bankers that vessel should be able to protect Astor's interests in Cuba. Surely he will not ask the Government to send its ships to protect his property nor to draft American boys to die in defense of a sugar plant in which they have no interest. Watch Vincent Astor protect his own interests in Cuba. —F. L. Leader

The Federal Government will loan a billion dollars to banks, trust companies and insurance companies at 3 cent interest, with the understanding that they will re-loan it at not more than 5 per cent "to assist business and industry." Why must banks be allowed to "cut in" to the tune of 2 per cent on distressed business and industry? What powerful financial interests keep this nation from loaning direct to its citizens? WHAT ACTUAL SERVICE DO THE BANKS PERFORM THAT ENTITLES THEM TO THAT 2 per cent? And if the Government can loan at 3 per cent interest to assist business and industry, why can't it loan to farmers, with their farms as security, at the same rate of interest? In other words, why a Frazier bill for business and deny it to farmers? Farmer-Labor Leader

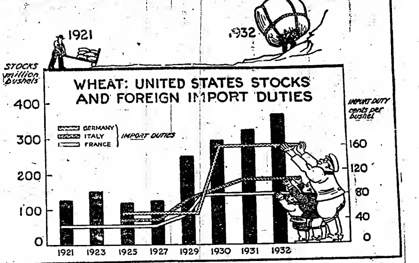
We invent machinery for mass production, and for the sake of cheapening the unit we develop output on a gigantic scale. Almost automatically the machine delivers a stream of articles in the creation of which the workman has had little part. He has lost the joy of craftsmanship, the old satisfaction of something accomplished through the concientious exercize of skill and care. In many cases unemployment that is more saddening than drudgery. ——Sir. Alfred Ewing.

Other republics have failed because the citizens gradually grew to consider the class against the whole. For when such is the case it mattered not whether the poor plundered the rich or the rich exploited the poor; in either case the end of the republic was at hand. We must resolve not to fall into such a pit. This great republic of ours shall never become the government of plutocracy and it shall never become the government of a mob. ——Theodore Roosevelt.



As foreign restrictions on our wheat mount higher, more of it piles up in this country. That is the lesson of this chart of United States wheat stocks and the rate of import duty imposed by representative European consuming countries. In 1925 these duties first became general and since that time our wheat supplies have climbed. The German duty of $1.62 is highest of all, as the picture shows. Next comes Italy with a duty of $1.07 a bushel and finally France is lowest with a duty of $0.85. The black bars, representing the wheat stocks in the United States, show that while these restrictions have been in force, the stocks have climbed to more than 360 million bushels. Even with the short crop in the United States this year, the black bar representing the stocks for this country a year from now probably will be near the 200 million bushel mark. The following year, if nothing is done to prevent it, the carryover is again likely to be around 350 million bushels.

The Liberal Digest

IF IT ISN'T BOOZE IT'S SOMETHING ELSE.

(Condensed from Colliers)

—O—

After Al Capone and his crowd were put in jail, Chicago settled back, expecting gangsters' peace. The peace did not come. And then Chicago discovered for itself that Capone had not been a master of gangsters. "Syndicates" had been the masters. And part of the game of any syndicate is to have a "bugaboo". Everybody in Chicago knows what that word means. The dictionary says that the bugaboo is a "fancied object of fear." Chicago's bugaboo is a REAL object of fear.

When Chicago speaks of a bugaboo it has in its mind a man whose very name causes people with whom he comes in contact to shudder. He's a man whose threats are always made good; are followed by injury or even death. Al Capone was the shudder men of the foremost Chicago syndicates. Now that he's gone they're building up another bugaboo. And you can't build up a horror in a week or so. It takes time and actual killings.

"Who," I asked an old Federal service man in Chicago, "is taking Capone's place"?

"A young fellow named So-and-so," he said, giving the mans real name. He went on to give me an adequate description of the youth, and then said: "Are you writers going to help him? None of the officials in Chicago will publicize him. Even the newspapers don't use his name freely. We're not going to help the syndicates build up another bugaboo like Moran or Capone."

The syndicates need a new bugaboo for a new activity. Prohibition, the gangsters have figured, is on the way out. Breaking the prohibition law enriched them perhaps beyond the dreams of any previous bandits or pirates in all human history. But what will they do after prohibition is repealed?

A racket in these days must levy tribute not on small groups but on the massed millions who can't shoot back but who can be depended upon to provide a steady stream of gold. The syndicates have found such a moneymaker.

"Get hold of the labor unions." That's the idea which the wise men of the syndicates have devised, and which they are putting into force with gunmen, bombs and threats. There was graft in father's booze; now there is to be graft in baby's milk.

Take for example the case of "Uncle Steve" Sumner, in the fortified offices of the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union. Mr. Sumner is the secretary-treasurer of the union, in charge of a very good-sized union bank account, and the gangsters are after him. It was difficult for me to secure credencials for my call upon him in his fortified office, but when I arrived he welcomed me.

"You're as safe here as you are at home," he said. "They've got police machine-gun squads guarding us from a house across the street, and we've got police machine guns here in every room. And what's more, we've got orders to kill the first bugaboo that tries to put his foot in this place."

"But what's it all about?" I asked.

"I'll tell you. But first you want to see how we're fixed up." All the walls of the five rooms, he showed me, were lined wiht steel sheets. The windows were covered with bullet-proof steel-wire screens. In each steel door was a window of curious dull glass. "Thats bullet-proof glass", explained the beleaguered man.

"What's this all about?" I asked. And here's the amazing story, verified by the police and district attorney.

"You are in the headquarters," said Steve, "of the Milk Wagon Driver's Union. Upstairs are the headquarters of the Truck Drivers' Union.

"There are 7200 members of this Each member pays into the treasury $6 a month, or $72 a year. This creates a fund from which we pay benefits for sickness, unemployment and other troubles that come to working people. You can see we take in almost half a million dollars a year.

"One day recently I had a visit from two men. One of them told me he was 'So-and-so.'" Steve named the man previously mentioned in this article. "They sat down and I could see their guns, protruding from under their shoulder blades. They offered me $100,000 cash to get out and let them have the union. They wanted to put their own men into office.

"I saw I was in a jam, so I stalled along and told them I'd think it over and they told me I'd better hurry. As soon as they went I told the chief of police and everybody else in authority what had happened and special police headquarters were established at once across the street. We called experts who put up these steel walls and screens."

In the meantime Paddy Burrell, secretary-treasurer of the Truck Drivers' Union, who had said "no" to the bugaboos when they made him a similar offer, was taken for a ride and shot to death. Steve Sumner today knows that the "bugaboos finger" is on him, but he is ready to face the threat of bloodshed.

His story brings into relief the whole problem of gangsterized labor unions. It is sometimes difficult in Chicago, for an employer to know if he is dealing with a real union or if he is dealing with a union seized by gangsters.

When gangsters seize a union they usually decide, as a first measure, to cut wages of the members. This suggestion not infrequently appeals to employers, so they pay the "union" for the service. A little later these same employers find a heavy tax levied on them for the use of a little window card. Bricks, or more likely bombs, will come through the show window if the card is not there. In this way the "gangsterized union" gets its clutches on both the worker and the employer.

Make no mistake, business men in Chicago are not blameless for this new development. It is merely an outgrowth of the "collusive-agreement racket" which has existed in Chicago for ten years.

This "collusive-agreement racket," Colonel Robert Isham Randolph, head of the Chicago Secret Six, told me "is comprised of four elements: the business man, the labor leader, the gangster and the politician. The business man seeks to create a monopoly in his trade. He seeks, through misapplication of the law by politicians, or by the withdrawal of labor by union leaders, to drive his competitors from the field, so that he can maintain an artificially high price for his commodity. The labor leader seeks first a monopoly of control over the workmen engaged in a given trade, and then dispenses the right to work under the permit system at so much per man per day. The politician paralizes the hand of the law, and looks for votes and money from the profits of the conspiracy. The gangster finds it lucrative employment to bomb, to commit arson, and to terrorize entire communities into staying away from the polls at elections.

"In short," says Colonel Randolph, "this collusive-agreement racket is a combination of business, labor unionism, politics and the criminal underworld that runs the whole gamut of crime, the purpose of which is exploitation through circumscribing the right to work and do business. At one time there were 163 such rackets in Chicago. That number is happily not so great today because of the recognition of the evil by a militant group of citizens".

How shall we deal with such rackets? This question is asked by Gordon L. Hostetter, director of the Employers' Association, in a statement issued to Chicago business men. His answer goes not for Cicago alone, but for most of America:

By recognizing, first of all, that crime in various forms has crept into the philosophy of American life today and must be rooted out—from fixing traffic tickets through the whole gamut of racketeering to the farthest reaches of fraudulent finance. Gangsterized industry is a symptom, and not a disease. It could not appear on the business surface without poisonous infection at work below. The infection, the real disease, is the fact that we have shirked our responsibilities as citizens.

The brave embattled Steve Sumner, brave enough to say to the gangsters, "I'm only an old man, but you'll have to kill me to get control of this union," is a rallying figure for the vigilante element among Chicago's citizens.

If they kill Steve Sumner in Chicago, the gangsters will even then be unable to get control of the union. The banks that carry the funds of the Milk Drivers' Union have also been put on guard. The men who try signing checks of the union—if Steve is killed—will have to prove their right to do so.

But delivering milk is a lonely job, performed in the dark hours of the early morning. Another way of either seizing or destroying the union is to threaten or even to injure all drivers who do not carry the card of some union which the gangsters favor. Almost any stop of a milkman on his morning delivery, might be his "spot".

The whole situation, typifying in high lights what is happening in more than one city in the United States these days, is worth watching. It will be incredible if American children can not drink their milk unless it bears the mark of the beast, the gangster.

Let not ambition mock their useful toil,
Their homely joys, and destiny obscure;
Nor grandeur hear, with a disdainful smile,
The short and simple annals of the poor.

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
Awaits alike th' inevitable hour.
The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

(By H. G. Teigan)

Eight thousand workers were deprived of their jobs as a result of the cut in automobile license fees by the State legilature last session. This is the view of Highway Department chiefs based upon experience of the Department and upon information secured from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

During the 1933 session of the Minnesota legislature automobile license fees were cut almost in half. On light cars, those weighing under two thousand pounds, the fees were cut 50 per cent; on those weighing a ton or more, the fees were reduced 40 per cent.

It was contended by the champions of reduction in license fees that this would mean saving to the tax payers. Senator Wm. L. Roepke of Farihault, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Motor Vehicles and Motor Tax, was the leader of this group in the upper house. His plan was to make a straight cut of 50 per cent.

Olson Opposes Plan

Governor Floyd B. Olson, it will be recalled, objected to this reduction on the ground that it would reduce the income of the Highway Department to such an extent as to cripple activities of the department. The Governor suggested to the Legislature that the license fees be left as they were except that the minimum he cut to $3.00 on "A" and "B" cars respectively. That is to say, on old model "T" Fords the fees would be reduced from $10.00 to $3.00, and on larger cars the fees would be reduced from $12.50 to $4.00.

The Governors plan was to aid those who most needed the reduction. He evidently figured that a man with an old $15.00 Ford should not be compelled to pay a license fee almost as great as the value of his car. The Governor and his supporters in both House and Senate took the position that the men who were able to buy automobiles during the years since the depression began could afford to pay the license fees then in force.

Revenues Decline Four Million

According to the latest Minnesota Highway Bulletin, revenues for the State Highway Department from Automobile license fees have dropped nearly $4,000,000.00 The total income from such fees during the first seven months of the year was $5,896,000.00 compared to $9,779,000.00 during the same period in 1932. This represents a drop of $3,883,000.00 in revenues from automobile license fees during the first seven months of 1933.

According to the best authorities we have, each million dollars in highway money spent on construction means the employment directly of one thousand men and indirectly of at least another thousand men. On this basis the loss in employment resulting from the cut in registration fees is nearly four thousand men directly and another four thousand men indirectly.

The above is a conservative estimate as to the number of men employed on highway construction work. In a recent bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture the Department estimates that "For every man directly employed it is estimated that two others were indirectly employed in supplying and transporting materials and machinery.

Highway Department View

At any rate the loss to the workers of the State caused by the Legislature's action in cutting license fees is tremendous. The advantage gained by the average motorist on account of a cut in license fees was small in comparison with the tremendous losses sustained to the people of the state and to the workers on the highways. Perhaps no better answer can be made to the Legislators responsible for the reduction in license fees than that presented by the highway Department at its exhibit at the recent state fair. It was addressed to "Mr. Average Motorist":

"The motor vehicle license fee reduction saved you this year $5.00.

But—

"It kept five thousand Minnesota husbands and fathers out of road jobs;

"It kept five thousand other men out of jobs in connection with road building.;

"These ten thousand men have thirty thousand dependents—wives and little children.

"Thus forty thousand persons were deprived of a means of support.

"Does that help prosperity?"

In view of the fact that county boards, city councils and other public and private bodies are appealing to State Highway Commissioner N. W. Elsberg for new road work in their respective communities, the writer wonders whether these bodies and their members are going to return to the next legislature, the Senators and Representatives who inflicted this automobile license fee legislation upon the State. It seems more than likely that there will be a considerable house cleaning of Legislators at the next general election.

Black Widow Spider Dangerous

There are those who would extol the virtues of spiders—those patient, ingenious and artistic spinners—and emphasize their value as destroyers of flies and other insect pests. The average text on spider lore has little patience with the stories of poisoning by spiders and with those who have believed them. But the defense of the spider is fraught with dangers, and when naturalists in their enthusiasms go so far as to suggest giving so notorious a culprit as the Black Widow the freedom of the house, it is time to review the actual facts of the situation and to note the true extent of this danger.—Hygeia Health Magazine.

PUBLIC STATEMENT

It is common knowledge that our city administration has made constant efforts to obtain a Federal Grant for our new auditorium. That is, a 30% gift by the government under the Reconstruction Act for municipal projects which stimulate industry and provide labor. Such grants may be obtained without loaning money from the government for the other 70% of the cost.

The Governor's Committee for our State and especially Mr. Zimmerman has given us much co-operation and encouragement. We conferred with these men before beginning costruction, knowing that projects under contract could not easily qualify for aid. We were then told that we might begin the construction since conditions here made that quite imperative and since early action was within the spirit of the Reconstruction Act.

With this encouragement and with much labor here in need of employment and since it was uncertain when the Federal machinery would be completely set up, work on the auditarium began. Since then we have kept in constant touch with the Governor and his committee, being continuously encouraged of the possibility of the grant. It is very recently that the Federal men for our State have been appointed. A paving project in St. Paul was the first project to receive Federal aid in Minnesota. That is only about two weeks ago. The many Minnesota projects which until now has been in the hands of the Governor's committee has been turned over to the Federal men for approval.

As I was in St. Paul last week for the purpose of ascertaining definitely whether or not the grant could be obtained, all looked very promising until I had conference with Mr. Wm. Carey, State Engineer, Public Works Administration. Mr. Ganger, our architect attended this confarence with me. The net results was the definite information that our auditorium could not qualify for Federal grant, being already under contract and that there was positively no exception to this rule.

It is to be regretted that the Federal machinery necessary for the Reconstruction Act to function, has been so miserably slow in getting under way in this time of crises. We need not regret that we began construction on the auditorium since it provides labor for so many local men who otherwise would have no way of supporting their respective families.

The project of purchasing an additional unit for our Light Plant has so far been given favorable consideration by Mr. Carey. That of course on the assumption that no contract has been entered into. In order to obtain Federal loan or grant (one or both) for such a project it will be necessary for the city to release itself from the contract with the Fairbanks-Morse Co., which the council has entered into and otherwise comply with Federal regulations. I have not yet been convinced of an immediate need of such an additional unit. When such expansion of our plant becomes necessary we should take advantage of the Reconstruction Act.

India's Monsoon Depended Upon to Make the Crops

The monsoon, which sweeps across the Indian ocean during the season from the end of May to September is one of the most important factors in Indian prosperity.

Nearly the whole amount of rain which falls in India during the year comes in the monsoon, says the Montreal Herald, and if the downpour fails Indian peasants' and farmers' crops are ruined. Anxiously they wait every year for the heavy clouds to burst, when the winds have rolled them across the Arabian sea to India.

In the early days of navigation the Arabs and the eastern voyagers who first sailed the Indian ocean, depended on the monsoon, and the early European trading companies regulated their voyages to the east according to the monsoons.

Today sailors vary their course during the monsoon, which is really a reversal of the normal winds over the ocean.

In the Arabian sea the normal wind is the northeast trade wind, but actually it blows only in the cool season. When the sun is overhead in the north of India a depression develops in the northwest. As a result, the southeast trade wind blows over the Equator and then circles round the center of depression or low pressure, reaching India as a southwest wind.

Copernicus Theory That Earth Moves Around Sun

A demonstration of the truth of the theory of Copernicus, that the earth moves around the sun, instead of the sun moving around the earth, is not made easily without a knowledge of various physical and astronomical phenomena.

There is an annual change in the apparent position of the stars, known as their annual parallax. Either the stars make this annual circuit and all of them in the same length of time, or the earth makes an annual circuit in space which causes the apparent annual movement of the stars. The fact that they are all made in the same length of time makes it more probable that they are due to the motion of the earth than that they are due to the individual motions of the stars themselves.

The work of Kepler in connection with the laws of planetary motion, of Galileo, with the use of the telescope, and of Newton in connection with the laws of gravitation, strengthened the Copernican theory which in the course of centuries has gained general acceptance.—Detroit News.

THE SHOE IS ON THE OTHER FOOT

Many writers and speakers for the dry cause these days are waxing facetious and even justly sarcastic about the great plea being made for patriotic adherence to the provisions of the NRA with the very same arguments that have been used for opposing prohibition. The Christian Advocate, August 31, has the following delightful editorial to the point:—

"It is one of the great ironics of the time, that this country is rejecting prohibition, 'that governmental interferes with personal liberty, just now For this is a moment when the most colossal governmental interference with personal liberty ever dreamed of in time of peace is in progress. It lays hands on the job, the working hours, the pay and the privileges of every citizen who has a job or hopes to have one.

"When King Rehoboam was asked to relax the strictness of his father's control over his subjects, he said, in a grim parable, 'My little finger is thicker than my father's thigh.' NRA has the Eighteenth Amendment looking like a 'Keep off the grass' sign on the courthouse yard.

"The strangeness of what has come to pass, that one prohibition is denounced, and fifty, far more drastic, are imposed, has nothing to do with the merits of either the Eighteenth Amendment or the NRA.

"But this strangeness grows out of two facts. Three-fourths of those who are busy imposing the many new restrictions on personal liberty have vehemently fovored removing the single one. Half of them, certainly, object to the Eighteenth Amendment for the specific reason that it is 'an intolerable invasion of the citizen's sacred rights.'

"We believe prohibition is, at least as demonstrable a piece of national wisdom as some prohibitions now being enforced under the Blue Eagle.

"But if it were ten times the interferer with genuine personal liberty that it has been, what is left of the personal liberty argument among those who are urging the Blue Eagle because its value outweigh its dangers?

"They must look pretty foolish even to themselves, when they see that what was yesterday their rather stupid objection to prohibition has today become their NRA creed, confession of faith and ten commandments.

When the Clock Gets Wet

From the Naval Observatory at Washington comes advice that may save a good timepiece. When a clock or watch has been immersed in water, it should be filled with glycerin and taken to the jeweler's at once. This advice was issued as an order to the navy. Clocks at sea are likely to be soaked at any time, with their consequent ruination sure unless cared for properly. The glycerin order was issued to economize on the costly chronometers necessary for navigation. Glycerin is the thing because it has an affinity for water and will mix with it. There are very few oily substances which will do this. That is why a small amount of glycerin added to water makes an excellent and cheap lotion for applying to the face, hands or other parts of the body which tend to chap and roughen.

When Windows Were Taxed

Bricked-in windows in many of the old houses in England are a reminder of the time when all windows were taxed. The tax was introduced in the reign of William III in order to defray the cost of the recoinage of silver. Many people objected to paying the tax, and it was to lessen the amount which could be demanded that they caused some of their windows to be bricked in. The tax remained in existence until 1851, when it was replaced by the inhabited house duty.

CHICKENS POINT TO VITAMIN DISCOVERY

Beri-Beri Cure Believed to Have Led to Idea.

Some chickens in Java contracted beri-beri in 1897 and their cure possibly led to the idea expressed in the now common word, vitamin, which is heard and read on every hand, says H. H. Williams of the New York State College of Agriculture. Beri-beri, he says, is a disease of the nerves which leads to paralysis and heart failure. A Dutch physician, named Eijkman, was medical officer to prisoners in Java. He discovered that the hens that were fed only the left-over polished rice from the prisoners' table had contracted the disease.

Doctor Eijkman then added the rice polishings, which is similar to the bran of wheat, to the chickens' diet and they recovered. Then the prisoners were fed the unpolished rice instead of the well-milled sort, and from that time the disease beri-beri ceased to worry medical officers in the Orient.

From that time chemists began to experiment and to theorize on the substances known today as vitamins. The word was first coined twenty years ago by a Polish chemist as a symbol for an unknown substance vital to health and life. Later, the chemists turned to the alphabet as a temporary means to designate each vitamin, since they are of unknown composition. Six different vitamins are now definitely known, although a recent book lists a possible seventeen. No one knows what vitamins are except that they occur in small quantities, that they are easily destroyed by heat and oxidation.

News Items From Many Localities

Wheat Acreage Cut Drive Is Short.
Washington—With only a week remaining in which to complete the sign-up in the agricultural adjustment administration's wheat adjustment campaign, reports from 23 states showed about a sixth of the nation's wheat farmers have signed applications which represent something less than a third of the average the department announced.

New Mexico, Idaho Vote for Repeal.
Boise, Idaho—Idaho and New Mexico went to the polls and added two more states to the long list which have voted for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This brings the total to 31, only five states short of the necessary 36 needed to strike the amendment from the U. S. constitution.

Atwater—Two bandits robbed the Atwater State Bank of $2,000.

Kenyon—Kenyon will conduct its ninth annual corn show Friday, October 6.

St. Paul—Exact figures on the vote for repeal in Minnesota were 390,179 in favor and 209,049 against.

Spring Valley—An organization meeting to form a Pierce County Young Democratic Club was conducted here.

St. Paul—Wheat planting in Minnesota will be reduced about 100,000 acres from the 1933 figure under the federal allotment plan.

Jordan—Appointment of George F. Sullivan of Jordan as United States district attorney for Minnesota was announced in Washington.

Kerkhoven—The first annual "Bean-Hole" day was celebrated here with visitors from nearby communities. It was a success and plans are to hold this event every year.

Deer River—A development program that has given employment to approximately 140 men is getting officially under way in four forest service camps in the Cutfoot district of the Chippewa National Forest.

St. Paul—Persons shooting at migratory game birds from a state trunk highway without authority of the owner of adjacent land thereby commits trespass on such lands, Harry H. Peterson, attorney general, held.

Duluth—Drying up of slooghs and small lakes in northwestern Minnesota counties will make duck-hunting quite a task for hunreds who head for that section of the state. A deficiency of 1.51 inches of rain during the summer has brought about a draining of both surface and subsurface waters, even in those lakes regarded as having substantial basins. This, according to state observers, is true in Polk, Norman, Mahnomen, Red Lake, Pennington and part of Marshall and Beltrami counties.

Ring Lardner Dies at the Age of 48.
New York—Ring Lardner, noted writer humorist, died at his home in Easthampton, Long Island, after a long illness. He was 43 years old. Although he had suffered poor health since a general breakdown in 1931, he had been a regular contributor to a weekly magazine in recent months. One of his physicians said that he finally was permitted use of his typewriter because he isn't happy unless he's working. Lardner, however, was forced by his physicians to remain away from the city.

So. St. Paul—The government pig-buying program ended here and throughout the country. Stockyards officials estimated that since August 23, when the pig-purchase program began, the government has bought about 565,000 pigs and 60,000 piggy sows from northwest farmers paying around $3,565,000 for them

Minneapolis—So far, more than $47,000,000 has been allocated for the channel work on the Mississippi river, which consists of 26 dams between here and St. Louis. A victory dinner celebrating the occasion will be held October 26 in the Nicollet hotel. A feature will be the radio broadcast over WCCO of a tribute to the upper river cities which have cooperated in making this nine foot channel possible. Governor Olson and Senator Henrik Shipstead headline the speakers.

St. Paul—The state tax rate for next year was fixed by State Auditor Stafford King at 11.06 mills, the highest in the history of Minnesota and an increase of 2.77 mills over this year. The largest item in the rate is for the revenue fund. That rate, 5.6 mills, was limited to that figure by legislative act last spring.

St. Paul—Distribution among people on relief roles of Minnesota's share of the pork acquired by the government in its program of raising prices by buying hogs will start by the state board of control acting as a state relief commission. In all, Minnesota is to receive 930,000 pounds, and the first distribution will be one-fourth of that amount.

Premier Wood Destroyer

The termite is the world's premier wood destroyer. The damage it does to wooden buildings in the United States alone is estimated at around $40,000,000 a year. No other insect or animal approaches it in damage to wooden property. Almost every sort of wood is attacked by it. Some woods are more or less resistant, but the only two termite-proof woods known are the teak of India and the poisonous manzanillit of the Virgin islands. The annual damage to wooden buildings in termite-infested areas is estimated at 1 per cent every year.

Ely—Agreement announced between the city of Ely and mining companies operating here is taken as a possible forerunner of a general settlement of the tax deadlock on the Minnesota iron ranges. The mining companies announced last spring that, owing to excessive tax burdens, they would not pay the second half of their taxes this year, amounting to about $7,000,000. The pact at Ely results from action of the city council, restricting its levy to $250,000. It was followed by announcement from the Oliver Iron Mining Company and the Pickands-Mather Company that they will pay their taxes in Ely, amounting to $329,856.54, and that three mines will be reopened within thirty days. The mines normally employ 600 men.

LITTLE GREEN WAVE DURBS PROWLERS

East Grand Forks (The little green wave,) a light scrappy football team out played the Prowlers last Friday on the East Side field to win 6 to 0 in a hard-fought battle. The big thrill of the game came in the final quarter when Grannum intercepted a pass on the Prowler goal line nnd raced 83 yards before he was caught and pulled down by Russell Farstad, speedy Grand Forks guard.

The Prowlers defensive play was good, but they seemed unable to cope with the Wave's defense, having four punts hlocked, tbey were kept in their own territory the big part of the time giving East Gand Forks several ideal scoring positions.

East Grand Forks scored the lone touchdown in the first four minutes of play. An exchange of punts left the ball on the Prowler twenty-eight yard line. Then a pass from Lillo to Finley scored the winning six points.

NEW BRIDGE TO BE BUILT HERE FOWLER SAYS

Report that New Structure Can Not be Built this Year Is Erroneous

The report which was received here last week to the effect that the new bridge over the Red Lake river at the end of Third street will not be built this winter was erroneous., H. L. Fowler, county auditor announced this week.

An inquiry by the county engineer at the office of the public works commissioner in St. Paul had been thought to be a new request and consequently he was informed that it can not be built this year. Mr. Fowler announced that he has been assured by the public works commissioner and by Mr. Elsberg, Minnesota Commissioner of Highways that the bridge is included in work that is to be let within a short time and that work will be started on it this winter. The practice is to appraise the requests from each county seperately, Mr. Fowler explained and as far as possible the work in each county is all let at the same time There is some highway construction to be done in Pennington county which also comes under the federal highway program and this is expected to be let at the same time as the contract for the bridge, altho work on them cannot be started until spring.

Highway Commissioner Elsberg is to be in Thief River Falls Friday and it is expected that he will personally inspect the location for the new bridge at that time. From here he will go to Roseau where he will meet with community delegations to hear their requests. He is also to look over the various proposed routes of the Rosean-Bemidji trunk highway which came into dispute last summer.

Standby-Power Issue to be Taken to the Voters in City Election, Progressives Aver

That Thief River Falls will see the hottest municipal campaign in its entire history is the concensus of opinion of the "man on the street." The controversy that has raged over the purchase of another diesel unit for the local power plant will apparently be carried into the campaign and the group opposing the purchase and filed application for an injunction restraining the city officials from entering contract with the Fairbanks-Morse company for the new unit is evidently decided on placing an entire ticket of cadidates for city offices in the field, headed by the mayor, who has "fallen out" with the group that elected him two years ago and is now being backed for re-election by some of those who opposed his election at that time. M. T. McFarland, one of the leaders of this group has filed as candidate for alderman at large, while other members of the group, Walt Jung, Peter Myhrom and Harry Lund have filed, Jung for alderman from the second ward and the other two from the fourth ward.

While the progressives and those favoring the purchase have not as yet entered any candidates, it is generally understood that they will enter a full slate. In the meantime several others who are more or less on the fence so far as stand-by power is concerned have filed for various aldermanic positions making the work of the dopesters exceedingly difficult. The other filings are Haakon Grondahl, 4th ward; Ole Engelstad, W. K. Knight, O. E. Swanson and W. A. Bishop, 3rd ward; Carl Christofferson, at large; A. J. Rau, and Emil Griebstein 1st ward.

Most of the candidates have declared themselves 100 per cent for the municipal light and power plant, tho they have also declared themselves as opposed to the purchase of another diesel unit at this time. Some are frankly in favor of hooking up with the highline if stand-by power is required, while others maintain that the present plant is sufficient to take care of the city's needs without stand-by power.

The progressives have been holding caucuses in all wards during the past week and are apparently girding themselves for battle behind the present council, which they maintain has served the city efficiently and well during the past two years. They maintain that the opposition's declarations in support of the municipal light and power plant is only camouflage to hide sinister intentions and that no true progressive seeks the office but waits until the office seeks him, or in other word do not file until they are endorsed. They point out that the fact that the opposition does not withdraw the injunction suit after the federal government has allowed the city a grant of $15,000 toward the proposed purchase of another diesel unit as proof of their highline proclivities.

Meanwhile speculation is rife as to who will be the progressive candidate for mayor. Rumors have been circlating to the effect that it will be O. C. Paulson, while other rumors have it that it will be Paul Harris present alderman from the 1st ward, considered the "spokesman" of the council, or Carl B. Larson, present alderman at large. Still other rumors say Rasmus Oen, veteran merchant is to be drafted for the position or Doctor C. M. Adkins, the genial physician and surgeon. None of the aldermen have filed yet altho it is understood that at least four of them have been indorsed at ward caucuses as candidates to succeed themselves.

The progresives have elected a central committee composed of three members from each ward selected at the ward caucuses and this committee is charged with the duty of selecting candidates for mayor and aldermen at large. Inasmuch as all candidates must file, not less than 15 days before election, which means on or before the 21st, it is expected that this committee will get into action during the weekend so that another two or three days should end the suspense.

COUNCIL GRANTS THREE BUILDING PERMITS TUES.

Land O'Lakes Service Station Permit is Granted Over Objection

Another hearing of the "old line" mutual insurance controversy was held at the council meeting Tuesday evening when Perl Mabey appeared before the council and explained differences between the policies issued and the risks undertaken by the insured as well as the matter of premiums and commissions to agents. Mutuals pay nothing towards the upkeep of the underwriters Inspection bureau and their policy is a contract under which the city assumes liability in case the company goes broke, Mr. Mabey pointed out. Several other insurance men also spoke and a general discussion of co-risk insurance followed. The council thank insurance representatives for the information made available and the matter of insuring the auditorium will be done with the facts of the case in mind they said.

George Mostue appeared and made objection to the granting of a permit to erect a filling station on the corner of Atlantic and Second street as applied for by the Land O' Lakes organization, on the grounds that, the value of his property which adjoins will be depreciated, that the noise of trucks and other vehicles will be obnoxious, that his firehazard will be increased and that there are filling stations enough to adequately serve the community before. The council requested an opinion from the city attorney, who stated that the council could not refuse to issue the permit providing the building to be erected confirms with building ordinances. Mr. Norby of the Land O, Lakes, who was present, informed the council that the building will be thoroughly modern and fireproof and that he had received word from the insurance authorities that there would be no increase in insurance costs on adjoining property as a result of the building of the station. The permit was granted on condition that plans and specifications approved by the fire-marshall shall be placed on file with the city clerk before actual construction of the building is begun.

Bert Norby was allowed his second estimate of $10,095.24 and the plumbing ocntractors were allowed their second estimate of $1,615.00, work completed up to this time on the auditorium as approved by the architect.

PASS SENTENCE ON KIDNAPERS

Four Get the Extreme Penalty—Kelly and Wife Now Being Tried.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Life imprisonment—the extreme penalty under the new Lindbergh kidnaping law—was imposed by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught on Harvey Bailey, Albert L. Bates, R. O. (Boss) Shannon and Mrs. Ora Shannon. They were convicted in the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, from his palatial home here. Armon Shannon, 21-year-old son of the Shannons, was sentenced to serve 10 years in prison but the sentence was suspended. Clifford Skelly and Edward Berman of Minneapolis, convicted of handling part of the marked ransom money, were sentenced to serve five years each for their part in the sensational crime which spurred the government's drive against racketeers. Katherine Kelly, wife of George (Machine Gun) Kelly, entered a plea of not guilty, contrary to announcement of Prosecutor Herbert K. Hyde that she would plead guilty. Kelly also pleaded not guilty to implication in the kidnaping; despite announcement of his attorney that he would not stand trial. Both Kelly and his wife went on trial in the same fortified federal courtroom several days after sentence was passed on the others. The sentence culminated the 12-day trial which ended a week ago. It was one of the first major tests of the new federal statute enacted to destroy kidnaping racketeers after the tragic kidnaping and murder of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's infant son. The trial was kept at fever pitch by repeated death threats sent Urschel; prosecutors and government witnesses by Kelly before his capture in Memphis. Attorneys for each of those sentenced have served notice convictions would be appealed. The heavy guard of government machine gun squads maintained around the court and the prisoners was not relaxed. Bailey, ranked as the nation's No. 1 desperado, heard the sentence without emotion. So did Bates. The elder Shannon was stolid. He put his arm around his wife, who looked as if she were about to weep

WORLD'S FAIR THRILLS MINNESOTA 4-H GROUP

Very much impressed with what they had seen and experienced, about 70 4-H club members and leaders from Minnesota returned Tuesday, (October 10) from a three day visit to the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. The party was in charge of T. A. Erickson, state club leader, University Farm, and two of his assistants, Miss Mildred Schenk and W. D. Stegner.

In addition to seeing the Fair, the group visited numerous points of interest in Chicago and its environs. Forty of the trips were provided by The Minneapolis Journal. These were trips usually awarded for the National Dairy Show. Nearly 20 of the trips were paid for by local commercial clubs, county fairs, banks and other local firms and organizations. Several state fair winners in 4-H work, entitled to trips to the National 4-H Congress at Chicago, in December elected to visit the World's Fair instead.

MINNESOTA NURSES' TRAINING RANK AMONG NATION'S BEST

After a survey of 1,400 schools of nursing in the United States, the Committee on the Grading of Nursing Schools, a national body now concluding its seventh and final year of study, reports that nursing standards have increased during depression and are expected to raise rapidly with the return of prosperity.

Miss Halvorson, Secretary of the State Board of Nurse Examiners, gives the following figures favorably comparing Minnesota with other states and with the nation as a whole. In Minnesota 98 per cent of the nurse students are high school graduates; the nations average is only 90 per cent, and in this state 59 per cent of the students are above the general average in standing. Seventy-three per cent of the Minnesota schools employed one or more full-time nurse instructors.

Minnesota nursing schools are ahead in annual vacations. Sixty-two per cent of the schools give three weeks or more vacation while the country's average is 43 per cent.

Few hospitals can give training in all clinical services and no school that does not provide added training and experience by sending its students to other hospitals can hope to adequately prepare its students, according to the Grading Committee. In Minnesota 82 per cent of the schools send their students out for part of their training, as against 57 per cent for the county as a whole.

Long hours, the Committee found to prevail in all states. Here also an improvement is being made in the last three years the Grading Committee reported.

UNIVERSITY FARM'S BIG WEEK JAN. 15-20

The big week for Minnesota farm folks will carry on, Dean W. C. Coffrey of University farm announces that the thirty-third Farmers and Homemakers' Short Course will be held, January 15 to 20, 1934.

Though the cutting of the University's budget has necessitated dropping a number of the regular short courses, the longstanding popularity of Farmers' and Homemakers' Week and the dependence so many organized groups have come to place upon this short course as the axis for their annual meetings and activities has made its continuance seem almost imperative.

To head the short course arrangements this year, Dean Coffrey has appointed W. D. Stegner, recently of Fairmont, who for several years has been a member of the extension division, employed as district 4-H club agent in southern Minnesota. He is a graduate of the Minnesota school of Agriculture and a former county agent. Mr. Stegner will serve as acting director of Farmers' and Homemakers' week, in place of F. W. Peck, agricultural extension and short course director, who is in Washington on leave for the year.

Mr. Stegner is a young man and in keeping with his appointment, Dean Coffrey has decided to lodge most of the active management of this short course in the hands of the younger members of the University Farm staff. The "youngsters" have accepted the challenge and are already working by committees and individuals to make January 15 to 20 a week of outstanding value and appeal to the farm men and women of Minnesota

PENNINGTON COUNTY IS WELL REPRESENTED AT AG. SCHOOL

At the close of the first week of the fall term, attendance at the Northwest School of Agriculture was running 30 per cent above one year ago. With new students registering daily, Registrar J. W. Mlinar expressed the opinion that final enrolment figures will exceed last year's attendance by at least 35 per cent. This unexpected increase has necessitated numerous shifts in class schedules as well as the purchase of additional textbooks and other supplies.

The greatest increase has taken place in the freshman class, which has the largest enrolment of any first year class for the past four years.

Students from Pennington County were in attendance include: Ray Carlson, Clarence Weckwerth, James Weckwerth, Hazel; Olaf Dahlen, Erie; Harold Nabben, Goodridge; Omer Nesland, Oklee; Oliver Huugen, St. Hilaire; Berry Borgie, Earl Ingstad, Morris Engelstad, Laura Honson, Martin Hanon, Pearl Hanson, Raymond Oen, Leroy Peterson, Thief River Falls; Gleo Taso, Trail; Rose Naplin, Wylie.

Fall term activities include an attractive football schedule with the Grand Rapids Aggies furnishing the opposition on Home Coming Day, October 28. Coach R. J. Christgau will have a team composed largely of new players this year, but with the largest practise squad in years, he hopes to win his share of conference games. Parents' Day has been set for November 4, while the Winter Shows will be held during the week of December 11-15.

CORN AND HOGS SAID TWIN CROPS PROBLEM

Too many hogs and too much corn constitute a twin problem in the general adjustment to bring production of basic farm commodities in line with effective demand.

The recent emergency hog-reduction program should be followed through with effective and more permanent control of both corn and hog production, corn acreage being reduced enough to compensate for reductions in hog production. These facts are emphasized in a pamphlet on the corn-hog problem issued recently by the Agricultural Adjustment Adminstration.

Reducing the pig crop would in itself reduce the demand for corn and bring corn prices down in relation to the price of hogs, according to the Adminstration. Lowered feed-grain prices, it is pointed out, would tend to stimulate production of other forms of livestock. Corn acreage, therefore, should be reduced in line with hog reductions.

STATE IS NEAR TOP IN ROADS

Minnesotr Ranks Second in Jobs Approved by Government

Minnesota ranks second in the U. S. in the number of state highway projects financed from emergency Federal funds which has been approved by the United States Bureau of Public roads.

This announcement has been received by N. W. Elsberg, state highway commissioner, from the Bureau of Roads, based on the last available tabulations made in Washington.

This tabulation, covering progress up to about the last of September, shows Maine leading all other states with 123 highway projects approved by the bureau of Roads, and Minnesota next with 123 approved projects. Since these totals were assembled, [illegible] of approved projects has increased materially.

Minnesota now has approximately $3,000,000 of road projects under contract and this week is launching a $2,000,000 program of Federal improvements on secondary roads, largely new routes added to the state trunk system by the 1933 legislature.

Much of the secondary program will be carried out by the highway department on a day labor basis as a result of a new ruling of the U. S. Bureau of Roads eliminating contract requirements on secondary projects. This action was taken in an effort to speed up employment of men. The department hopes to have 1,500 men at work on secondary roads before the end of October. Probably 4,500 Minnesota men will be at work on highway jobs this month, engineers estimated.

The first work under the emergency Federal program began with a letting August 29, and road employment has been growing steadily ever since.

JUNIOR STOCK SHOW TO OPEN NOVEMBER 6

With entries from nearly every county in Minnesota already in, as well as several Wisconsin counties, the Junior livestock Show at South St. Paul, November 6 to 10, promises to be one of the largest ever held. All the main features of previous shows will be repeated and the carcass show, started last year, expanded into a leading attraction.

Participation in the Junior Livestock Show is limited to the more outstanding 4-H livestock project members of each county. The event is sponsored by the Minnesota Livestock Breeders Association and the Agricultural Extension Div. University Farm, and very generously supported by many civic and commercial organizations in South St. Paul, the Twin Cities and other towns. The Wisconsin Livestock Breeders Association is also giving financial assistance this year.

DON'T SELL SHORT ON FLAX SEED, IS URGED

Because of the very short flax crop this year, seed is almost certain to be scarce and high priced, according to A. C. Arny, crops specialist of the Minnesota agricultural experiment station. He urges growers not to let the present high prices tempt them to oversell, so that a seed shortage will result. Rather, he suggests holding the high quality flax and advertising it for seed in state and local papers. Likewise, he advises farmers who will get it now while good quality seed is plentiful.

Except for 1919, the 1933 flax crop, estimated at 8,000,000 bushels for the United States will be the lightest in the present century, points out Mr. Arny. The 1919 production was 7,225,000 bushels. The 1932 production was nearly 12,000,000 bushels, Minnesota producing about half the total.

The estimated Minnesota crop in 1933 is about two-thirds that of 1932, with a yield of 4,000,000 bushels or half the total estimated crop. This smaller crop in the state is due to lower yields caused by dry weather. Normally, 8,000,000 acres of flax are sown in the Northwest each year, requiring nearly 2,000,000 bushels of seed flax. The very low yields in the Dakotas and Montana this year make a good demand for seed practically certain.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Scientific Temperance Instruction

The course of study prepared for Minnesota schools requires that pupils each year be given instruction in the effects of alcohol and other narcotics. The W. C. T. U. through the department of Scientific Temperance Instruction seeks to cooperate with the principals and teachers in giving such instruction. New material which supplements the text books is furnished to each grade beginning with the fourth. This material is ready to be used in connection with any subject in school in which there is a natural opening. Physiology, Civics and English are usually the ones in which the contact is made most easily. This teaching is the essential part of Scietific Temperance Instruction, or S. T. I. work as it isusooepp o....h S. T. I. work as it is usually called.

Essay contests, although not a necessary part of the plan, add to the interest of pupils and instructors, and do not increase the work of either, as pupils are expected to do a certain amount of composition. These contests are usually conducted in the latter part of the school year.

When the essay contests are completed each school sends its best essays to the local S. T. I. director who has them judged by competent people. Each grade forms a seperate contest. The local awards are in the form of certificates and are presented with some formalty, and the list is printed in the local papers.

The essays or booklets receiving first place are sent to the district S. T. I. director, where they compete with all those sent in by other towns in the district. The money prizes, which are given to the district, have added to the interest of Thief River Falls pupils, for each year they have received a number of such awards.

The ones receiving first place in the district are sent to the state contest when they are again judged, and again money prizes are awarded. For many years the names of Thief River Falls contestants have been in the list of state winners.

"Entered as second-class matter, April 27, 1932, at the post office at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, under Act of March 3, 1879."

It is with some regret that we learn that the Mayor, Rev. Tungseth has filed as a candidate to succeed himself. We had thought that his shortcomings as the city's executive would be so apparent even to himself that he would have refrained from seeking reelection. With all due respect for his ability as a pastor and as a gentleman, his deplorable lack of knowledge of business affairs and things corporeal in general has proven that his first election was a mistake; his reelection would be tragic, and we can not conceive of the people of the city taking his candidacy seriously. for that reason we say that we regret that he has filed for reelection. We do not like to see the innocent wounded, and pointing out the shortcomings of a man of such unquestioned sincerety and high moral character is a rather unpleasant duty.

In his public statements he often reiterates the fact that he is not a politician, a conclusion in which we heartily agree. We also respectfully suggest that neither is he a businessman, executive or diplomat. In the early part of his adminstration the council showed a genuine and hearty desire to work with him for the best interests of the city but his numerous and ill considered public statements, questioning both the integrity and intelligence of the council has so incensed that body and the thoughtful citizens who realize it is holding office in the most trying period of our history, that the city has been kept in a turmoil of debates and arguments for over a year, something which certainly does not work for civic unity and cooperation. Neither is there any grounds for believing that he would get along any better with any other council.

In his most recent statement, that given to the Times when he announced his candidacy for reelection, (we elucidate so that there may be no confusion in case there should yet be another before we get off the press) he states that" I shall continue to exersize my best judgment and permit erpenditures only when and where necessary and beneficial, and to keep such expenditures within our means." Yet it is through his insistence that the city is spending $20,000 beyond its means for an auditorium. A responsibility which he would now back out of by suggesting that, the city terminate its contract for the construction as soon as the building is inclosed. A suggestion so childish that we are loath to believe that it could eminate from a grown man.

Rev. Tungseth was present when the council met with the architect, Mr. Gauger to look over his (Mr. Gauger's) tentative plans. He saw the plans and had ample time to voice his objections and make suggestions but failed to do either. Yet he breaks into print in the very next issue of the newspapers with a statement to the effect that he would veto these plans unless they were enlarged and made to include "shower baths". When the plans were finally decided upon he secured a compromise which widened the building by five feet. In the public statement which followed he called upon the civic organizations of the city to help him raise the difference in cost. As yet we have heard no hearty "Hurrah! Let's go!" from those people who backed him up most strenuously in his inconsistence on a large building. (May we commend the promotional possibilities to Mr. Dahlquist?)

The mayor's handling of the diesel controversy has been equally preposterous. Calling in an engineer to make a survey of our power facilities without the knowledge of the council was tactless. Calling in an inexperienced man only two years out of the university made it worse. Having him make his report to the Civic and Commerce association instead of the council climaxed a shining example of his utter incompatability.

We do not know who will be his opponent, but we pledge our support. We do not believe that the city can boast of another citizen so absolutely unfit for the office.

WHO IS CAUSE OF INCREASED TAXES?

They are the causes of high taxes who complain most bitterly about taxes. We mean that the low wage payers of Minneapolis, the Citizens Alliance type of employers, are most responsible for increased taxes than anyone else in the city.

In the first place they duck and dodge their taxes and even those taxes that are finally assessed against them, only a portion of what they should be, they tie up in court actions so that the city does not get money when it should.

They are the people who want all functions of the city government curtailed except the function of protecting their useless lives and their hoarded property. For remember they want protection from police and fire department on the very property on which they refuse to pay taxes and from the very employes whom they want to work for nothing.

They want things fixed so that there will be as little employment as possible, at the longest possible hours and the lowest possible wages.

In this way they make it difficult and impossible for some people to pay their taxes. And because some can't pay their taxes others have to pay more taxes. And so through low wages in their own industries and curtailing expenditures for necessary city government thus adding to unemploymet these wealthy howlers about high taxes cause increased taxes.

Remember that there are very few instances where working people lose their homes because the taxes are high. They lose their homes because they haven't jobs to pay the taxes on their homes.—Minneapolis Labor-Review.

• • • • • • • • •

The Review might with equally good logic have added that the farmers do not lose their farms because of the taxes, but because of the fact that commodity prices are below the cost of production. A few years ago when farm commodities were at a reasonable level there was no complaint on the taxes among the farmers. When they made something more than the cost of production on their products they paid their taxes with a smile, because they had to pay with.

A RECORD BREAKER

Within the brief period of sixty days, from July 17 to Sept. 18, the banking department of Minnesota under the management of the new bank commissioner, Elmer A. Benson, has made a record in the matter of conserving the depositors money in closed banks that the Olson administration may point to with pride, says the Duluth Labor World.

Within that period a total of 27,193 checks aggregating $1,027,891.11 were paid to depositors out of "frozen assets."

To fully appreciate the splendid work accomplished by Mr. Benson and his Farmer-Labor assistants several factors involved must be considered.

One is the fact that the assets in the fifty-six banks contributing the above mentioned sum have been in process of liquidation for years, in many cases, and the best of the frozen assets had been picked over before Mr. Benson took the charge. That the bank commissioner was able to salvage so much out of the mere residue adds much to the credit due him.

Another factor is the fact that this splendid achievement was accomplished without any harsh or oppressive measures against the debtors. Mr. Benson approached the task in a spirit of good will toward all and a willingness to co-operate in every way possible with those owing the closed banks.

Liquidation is now being conducted throughout the state in this manner, and the interests of the depositors receiving first consideration. The work is speeded as quickly as possible and not dragged out as under the Republican regime to prolong fat jobs for lame duck benchmen. In some cases the jobholders hung on to a single bank for ten years and ate up the depositor's substance. —Mille Lac County Times.

Yes, Governor Olson is going to clean house; and the cleaning will all be done before January first. There is a big howl going up from those who have been holding down nice government jobs for so long they consider themselves fixtures. In fact, some of the job holders are covered with cob webs, indicating that all they do is draw their monthly check. Well, don't kick just because you have been a staunch member of the opposing party. You have had your chance—its now time for somebody else.

The Liberal Digest

LIBERTY MUST BE GUARDED

(Condensed from speech by Oswold Garrison Villard before the League for Independent Political Action at its Chicago convention Sept. 2-3, by R. M. Aalbu.)

If a liberal looks at Washington with his mind free of prejudice, he sees much to marvel at and be grateful for. A wholly new spirit has entered the government; whether all the measures undertaken are wise or unwise, just or unjust, a genuine effort is being made to serve the people and rescue the country from the slough of economic despond. Contrast the Roosevelt administration with that which preceeded it. One instance will illustrate the complete change in orientation which has taken place: Not long ago our steel kings were called to Washington, herded into a room and lectured like so many schoolboys by General Johnson of the NRA. Something that has never happened before in our economic history. These are the men who are in the habit of giving the orders to the government, dictated tariffs, furnished the Republican and Democratic campaign funds and have called the tune— they and their prototypes in other industries. This time they were told "where to get off at." If anything spells a revolution in our life, this does!

Wiping Out Abuses

I take my hat off to the administration's courage in undertaking the most gigantic peace-time program in our history— the making over of our entire industry. The president has flung overboard the anti-trust laws— wrung from Congress the power to wipe out the worst abuses of our industrial system; cut-throat competition, unfair and underhanded practices of every kind— he has regulated the hours and wages in all industries, not always properly— but that is less important than the fact that the great government of the United States has definitely intervened in the relationship between capital and labor.

General Johnson officially declared in Boston, that rugged individualism is dead in America. Doesn't that make you rub your eyes? Isn't that proof of a revolution? Believe it or not, we are actually seeing the government at work building up a great labor organization in the United States. Already the unions report an access of millions of new members. Most important of all— in the National Recovery Act the principle is laid down that the workers have the right to organize in any way they see fit and that their employers must deal with them, whether they like it or not. That this could come to pass in so short a time when there was nothing in the talks of Candidate Roosevelt nor in the Democratic platform to indicate that anything of this kind was in the offing, is one of the most amazing facts in our entire national history.

Tribute to the President

The liberal must also pay tribute to Franklin Roosevelt. I am deeply impressed, not only with the courage, but with his confident buoyant way in which he has grappled with problems in every one of our economic fields. Perhaps his buoyancy, almost gaiety, is due to a certain superficiality and incuarable youthfulness—there has always been something boyish about him. Whatever the reason, his confident, almost carefree bearing has helped to change the morale of the American people. He has been frank, straight-forward and without pretensions to superior wisdom. He has admitted that he does not know the answer to NRA and that he will retrace his steps if he finds that he has been mistaken.

I have watched with alarm, for years the continued efforts of professional patriots, capitalists and beneficiaries of special privilege to surround the presidency more and more with the trappings of royalty. Iam profoundly grateful to this man, who has been given dictatorial powers never before conferred upon any American except in time of war, and has not sought to aggrandize himself or to enhance the presidency. You will have noticed that there is no marine guard at Hyde Park, as Mr. Hoover had the marines guard his precious skin, at his summer camp on the Rapidan— and incidentally to build roads for him at government expense. I like Mr. Roosevelt's going off on a very small schooner yaiht with his sons; I like his family going about its own business of making speeches and writing for the magazines. To some this seems undignified. Not to me.

Thank Heaven that Mr. Roosevelt hasn't assumed a single mannerism of a dictator, and realizes that he is one of us temporarily exalted to the presidency, who will, within seven and a half years at the longest, return to private life. But I would preface all of his statements with the words "AS YET", for no man can tell, when we are living in such a kaleidoscopic world, whether we shall be able to say these things six months or a year hence. Mr. Roosevelt has been known to change and twist before this Criticses Lack of Program.

When a liberal looks at Washington, he sees among other things, a president without principle or program, without definite chart by which to sail the ship of state; no clear-cut philosphy of economics or of politics; in a fluid state and can go either to the right or to the left as he thinks conditions may warrant. Using the hit-and-miss method of trial and error of curing all political ills, but no more than in his campaign for the presidency do I find that he has permanent signposts set up to tell the people just where he is to be found.

In foreign affairs he has blundered direfully. He like his predecessors, has degraded the diplomatic service by awarding the largest plums to those who made the largest contributions to the campaign fund and desired to represent us aboard. His vacilliation and confusion of thought has made the inter-allied debt question worse. Dispite his appeal to the nations of the world to disarm,—he has of his own bat—without the sanction of Congress ordered the building up of our navy to the London Treaty limits, under the subterfuge of creating additional public works. This may turn out to be fraught with such mischief as to offset all the good he has done.

Deems Tariff Paramount

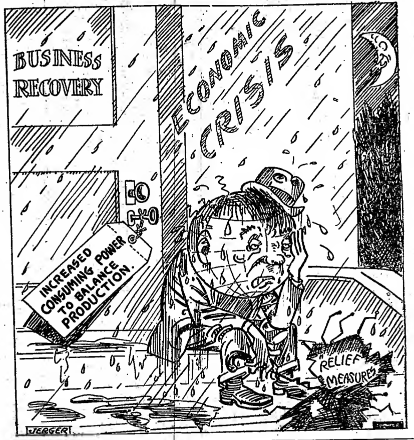
In the fields which are both international and national he has failed to move. He has not yet learned that the questions of tariffs is one of major causes of world economic disaster. Until the tariffs are done away with and our world markets are regained for us, there can be no relief for the farmer and many of our largest industries will be unable to dispose of their surplusses. We shall continue to see such economic monstrosities as the destruction of portions of our wheat, cotton and livestock crops in return for government subsidies—at the very moment when millions of our people continue on the borderline of starvation. This is economic folly—every thoughtful person knows we are suffering, not from overproduction but from underconsumption. In most of our economic problems the president suffers from the fact that he has no deep knowledge, understanding or beliefs on economics.

So the liberal looks away from Washington convinced, of the need of the creation of a truly progressive party devoted to tariff reform, peace, and disarmament, social and economic and political justice. The League for Independent Political Action gratefully acknowledges that the president has taken one of its planks and had the Congress appropriate $3,3000,000-000 for public works. But we have no guarantee that the president's party will back him in the long run in what he has done along reform lines. It is not clear that Congress will do his bidding next winter. Can he carry Tammany Hall and the crooked political machines in Chicago and elsewhere in his program? Can he swing the democratic south to what is called his radicalism? There is no assurance whatever. And as I have said, those inherrent weaknesses in the man which have manifested themselves in his foreign policy may sweep him, if our situation grows worse and the NRA fails, in the direction of a genuine dictatorship and Fascism.

The president has been quoted as saying that if his administration fails in restoring America, he will be the last president—I hope and believe that this is not correct— that would be treason to our institutions— to our inherent scheme of government. The idea that they cannot withstand the shock of this depression fills me with anger. It also makes me feel more than ever that we need a radical party to be the watch dog over all that we hold dear.

The war to safeguard democracy struck the deadliest blow at democracy that could be conceived. It is jeopardized in Russia, in Italy, in Poland and in Germany. In Germany they have just undone all that Anglo-Saxons have fought for since the Barons wrested the Magna Charta from King John. It is the sacred duty of every American to fight against every encroachment of American liberty and to deny the theory that the present economic crisis is in any way a proper excuse for limiting our democracy or restricting the liberties of the individual. We need a united front against Fascism, NOW.

This is no time to abdicate to the critical faculty, to listen to those who say that this is similar to a war-time emergency and that therefore it is unpatriotic to criticize the president or the NRA. That is the road that leads to dictatorship. Criticism in the press and by the public is the only safeguard of liberty. The very fast that the president is all but overwhelmed by the problems that confront him and the efforts he must make to rescue us, is adequate reason for continuing that criticism in a helpful spirit.



AUTUMN

The autumn time has come
On the woods that dream of bloom,
And over the purpling vines
The low sun fainter shines.

The aster-flower is failing,
The hazel's gold is paling,
Yet overhead more near
The eternal stars appear.

To the Times and Forum. If you please. Yes, what kind of times have we got in this land of plenty. In the land of milk and honey. How can this be construed to mean poverty and distress. Let us see what we have also plenty of beef cattle, chickens, and turkeys. That should mean wealth and not poverty. Then where is the trouble. The money is lacking, Money was created as a medium of exchange. It was created as a servant and it is ruling with an iron rod.of mn of mankind. But it has gone out our employment and become our master. Weather conditions are normal. But still you see poverty wherever you go.

The trouble is there is a set of money. pirates that is running this country.

In panic years like we have now the money is drawn out of circulation making dear money or high priced money. High priced money means cheap commodities. We have been getting next to nothing for everything grown on our farms. The cure would be here to give us the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 with gold. This would double the Primary monay also double the price of our commodities, enables us to pay our debts and do business on a cash basis. It is not rural credit we want, it is the rural cash we want. Put an end to this bonding busines, let this country be free. We have the most industrious people here that you can find any where. If we were rendered justice we would not have to lose our farms, homes and all that is near and dear to us. Hoping I have made this all plain, I remain Yours Truly

(By H. G. Teigan)

Republican news papers appear to have become astonished at the "radical" position being taken by Governor Floyd B. Olson in reference to his economic program. It is termed extreme and "revolutionary" by some of these papers.

In his address to the Minnesota Federation of Labor convention at Winona on August 21 Governor Olson stated that in his opinion the only solution of the present economic problem lies in socialization of key industries. "The only way that assurance of steady jobs can be obtained is by socialization of at least the key industries of the nation." He said, "I could have used another word for socialization which would not have shocked some people but I still cling to old ideas—ideas once scorned but now being favored under new terms."

Advocates Socialization

The Governor reiterated the same view in a letter to the conference of third party advocates in Chicago on September 3. He advocated the launching of a national third party with a fundamental sound economic program. He said among other things "I should say that its (third party) program should unhesitatingly set out as an immediate objective the taking over of the key industries of the country. It must do that to justify its existance; to fall short of that objective as an immediate goal would not give it the moral right to champion the aspirations of the masses."

Farmer-Labor Doctrine

This may seem like radical doctrine to reactionaries and even to pseudo-progressives, but it is not unusual to Farmer-Laborites or to persons who have an understanding of economics.

No, the governor has not wandered afield. He is merely standing by the Farmer-Labor platform, and in this respect is somewhat ahead of a few public officials elected by the Farmer-Labor Party who seem more concerned about their own political salvation than they do about advancing the cause which they were chosen to represent.

Farmer-Labor boosters everwhere will be delighted over the position taken by their governor. They feel that he has remained true to the principles which he has chosen to uphold.

Favors National 3rd Party

But Governor Olson also recognizes, as do other leaders of the party, that to bring about the economic changes involved in the socialization of key industries, requires action by the national government rather than by the state government. Thus he urged upon the Chicago conference the establishment of a national third party. He contends that both of the old parties are substantially the same and that "there has been little in the past to divide republican and democratic doctrine." He also contends that there is "neither truth nor logic" in the contention that a new political party cannot succeed in the United States.

To achieve success, the governor holds that "a third party must campaign on the theory that our capitalistic system is a wornout machine, unsuited to the times and incapable of satisfying the means of the people."

Must Unify Groups

The Farmer- Labor party program which provides for the socialization of key industries as enunctaied by Governor Olson is similar in practical effect to that of the non-partisan league in North Dakota and the program of the LaFollette move in Wisconsin. To bring these state groups together into a political union which will accomplish things, necessitates the organization of a national Farmer-Labo party. While it is most incumbent on Farmer-Laborites to build up their party in the state it is also their problem to aid in revamping the progressive movements in adjoining states into third party organizations. Practical politics requires that this be done. Confusion can, must and does result from the contradictory schemes of organizations now in operation in the several states of the Union. Our immediate task is, however, to build up Farmer-Labor parties in all states of the Northwest.

Pequot—An exploding heater trapped a mother and her six children in their home here, and they were burned to death. The dead are: Mrs. Sadle Johnson, 29 years old, and her children, Elden, 7 months old; Beverly, 2 years; Keith, 3 years; Shirley, 4 years; Warren, 7 years, and Roland, 9 years. Her husband, Roy Johnson, works nights as an electrician and was not home at the time.

St. Paul—Minnesota Democrats will lay charges before farm credit administration officials that the administration in the St. Paul Federal land bank area has spent more for salaries in recent months than it has loaned out as relief funds to farmers.

Appleton—William E. McKeever, a respected farmer of the Appleton community, driven into a rage by financial worries, ran amuck at his farm home northeast of here and killed his son and daughter, clubbed another son and his wife with a hammer, and then ended his own life.

When there is a crescent moon we often see the rest of the moon very faintly as an ashy light. This is called "the old moon in the young moon's arms." What we see is reflected light from the earth shining on the moon. Sometimes the crescent is almost horizontal and the moon is said to be "lying on her back." This occurs when the moon is vertically over the sun, after the sun has set or before it has risen on the earth.

Know-Nothing Party Was Result of Immigration

The Irish famine and the revolutionary movements in Europe in 1848 and 1849 were the causes of a great migration to the United States. The Know-Nothing party, which arose shortly thereafter, was in large part a reaction or protest against this increase in the foreign-born population.

It was a secret political party or society, variously known as "The Sons of '76," "The Supreme Order of the Star-Spangled Banner" and the American party. Because of the secrecy and the answer which members are said to have made to all inquiries concerning its activities—"I don't know"—it came to be known popularly as the Know-Nothing party.

It advocated a policy of "America for the Americans" and favored a 21-year residence qualification for citizenship. From 1854 to 1857, partly due to the dissolution of the Whig party, it carried elections in seven or eight states and figured in the national campaign of 1856. By 1860, however, it had entirely disappeared.

When Hair Turns Gray

Many authorities believe that hair turns gray because the hair follicles where it is born no longer furnish the oxydizing agent that oxydizes the pigment. Others think that the color is still there, but is hidden by air bubbles which form to take place of the shrinking hair cells. These give the hair its gray appearance, and when enough of them have formed they make it white. Although opinion on what turns hair gray is divided and nobody has been able to satisfactorily explain how hair can suddenly turn white over night from terror or grief we know that the first gray hairs to appear in a scalp are bigger and stronger than the rest. We also know that in extreme old age the hair grows thinner and finally becomes fine and short like those on the scalp of a baby.

When Balloons Carried Mail

During the siege of Paris in 1870, 55 balloons carrying mail rose from the beleaguered city, and 47 of them landed safely beyond the encircling German lines. It has been estimated that 100,000 letters were sent out of the capital in this way. The first balloon was the so-called Neptune. It left Paris, September 23, 1870, and carried 250 pounds of letters. The second was the Citta di Firenze, of Italian construction, with 300 pounds of mail; and the third was nicknamed the United States, "because it was composed of three small bags, tied together." The fifth balloon, unnamed, was brought down near the German lines, and both armies fought for its cargo, consisting of postcards, stamped at 10 centimes.

Explorer Tells of Three Hours Spent in Volcano

To be lowered into the active crater of Stromboli, clad in an asbestos suit and wearing a helmet strong enough to resist falling stones, with a breathing apparatus to save him from asphyxiation, was the exciting experience of an explorer.

The rope with which he was lowered into the depths of the crater had to be asbestos-covered lest it should shrivel up like tow and let him fall into the inferno below. Yet he remained down for nearly three hours, actually leaving his rope and making observations on the crater's floor.

On returning from his hazardous expedition, he said: "It was like being in hell to watch the fury of the volcano. The boiling lava was reminiscent of the sea in a storm. Every now and then great waves rose and, exploding, hurled over the rim of the crater masses of burning lava, hundreds of big stones, and clouds of ash. On the floor were pits, ten to thirty feet deep, lava seething in them like boiling porridge. As the bubbles burst there was a crash, and stones and other incandescent material was flung aloft. The walls around me assumed black, red and yellow tints, while from great cracks poured sulphur vapor."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

The "Tow Bug"

The "tow bug" is also known as the cigarette beetle, and is found in stored tobacco and other stored products, such as the tow in overstuffed furniture. The larva is a white, fleshy, tiny grub. The adult is one-sixteenth of an inch long, brownish, its head bent back under its thorax. The larvae feed here and there through the food substance, and the beetles make small round holes in emerging. There are several generations annually under suitable conditions.

Giant's Causeway Result of an Upheaval of Basalt

The formation of the Giant's causeway, according to geologists, is the result of an upheaval of basalt along the northern coast of Ireland which occurred during the Tertiary period. This has left a weird and unusual promontory of broken pillars in a series of cliffs which project into the North channel near Bengore Head, about eight miles from Portrush.

When the volcanoes of this district were in activity they sent out sheets of lava over nearly the whole country of Antrim and the adjoining parts of Londonderry and Tyrone. Their molten masses were poured out over the chalk that lies deep below, and ages of erosion have left the cold and rigid columns seen today.

Within an area of several hundred square yards there are some 40,000 of these pillar-shaped rocks and they are cut as if by mathematical calculation. They range in diameter from 15 to 30 inches, most of them being six-sided, although some have five, seven, eight and even nine regularly formed sides. Some are 20 feet in height.

The Giant's causeway received its name from a legend that this group of basaltic rocks was once part of a bridge or causeway over which giants passed between Ireland and Scotland.

Forty people have signed to make the trip to the Minnesota-Purdue game at Northrop field, Minneapolis, October 14. The trip will be made by car because the rate received from the railroad was good only if about one hundred and fifty people signed up.

Dr. H. W. Froehlick, president of the Former Residents of Thief River Falls Club, has arranged for reception at the West Hotel the evening after the game. Approximately three hundred people are expected to attend this reception.

Beat 7 to 6 until the final quarter Lincoln High School's Prowlers rallyed, with a fine display of football, last Friday, to defeat Warren 27 to 7 at Warren.

During the first three quarters, the Prowlers' game was ragged with poor general-ship, losing the ball on the Warren one yard line as the half ended when they should have made a decisive thrust for a touchdown.

Warren's boys showed a strong fighting spirit as they played against their heavier opponents even during the first three quarters of the game, but were unable to stop the Prowlers in their punishing fourth period scoring drives.

The Prowler's inexperienced players are taking on polish and considering the weight of the team, they should offer strong competition for the remaining teams on their schedule.

Fighting his way through the championship flight, G. P. Hinton won the silver cup, emblem of the Thief River Falls city golf championship. Dr. A. E. Jacobson was runner-up and Walter Mann Jr. won the consolation place. C. H. Jung won the first flight, Ed. Bratrude was runner-up and A. M. Holte won the consolation. In the Second flight J. P. Curtis won first place, Paul Lundell was runner-up and Walter Jung won the consolation.

The championship cup was dedicated by the local club in 1929 and is a rotating emblem unless won three years in succession by one man in which case it becomes his permanent possession. Mr. Hinton is the third winner of the cup, George Mostue won it in 1929, H. O. Chommie in 1930. There was no tournament in 1931 and 1932.

A reply to the statement by Mayor E. L. Tungseth in tha Thief River Falls Times of October 19, 1933.

The Forum certainly will not enter into a long-drawn verbal battle with the mayor, Mr. Tungseth over the status of the diesel grant. As we stated before and for which the mayor in a very unparsonlike manner called us a liar, the council laid their cards on the table with the Public Works Administrator. The complete text of the application for the grant is on file in the City Attorney's office and we believe, open to the inspection of anyone who is sufficiently interested to look them over. We let them speak for us.

As to who writes the Forum editorials; that should be a matter of small consequense, the main thing is that we are willing and able to back them up with the facts and figures. If it salves anyone's vanity to believe that we need someone else to do onr writing for us, we are quite willing that they be allowed to have that small consolation. We would not question the mayor about who writes his public statements, the fact that he signs them is sufficient. However, we have marveled that sentiments of such diminutive proportions coulld eminate from a person of his stature.

We challenge the mayor to lay his cards on the table!

We challenge him to snbmit to the press, tha complete text of his letters to the Public Works Administrator and the replies he received from that official.

We shall have nothing further to say to the mayor until this has been done. When these communications have been made public, we will if they prove that we are wrong and have been wrong in our attitude and in our interpretation of the status of tha diesel grant or any oher matter npon which we have taken the mayor to task, make a full and public apology.

WILL THE MAYOR PROMISE AS MUCH?

MILLIONS TO GO FOR BEEF, BUTTER

Program is Designed To Reduce the Heavy Surplus Holding Down Farm Markets.

Wasbington—Two million pounds of butter and an undetermined quantity of beef will be bought weekly by the surplus relief corporation for distribution to the unemployed. In accordance with plans formulated recently, Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, and Secretary Wallace announced that the purchases were to be made. The cattle will be of the canner and cutter grades. The food will be in addition to 100,000,000 pounds of pork bought by the farm administration in its emergency hog program and turned over to the relief administration. The program will cost approximately $15,000,000. The butter purchasing program worked out by farm Administrator Peek and Major R. M. Littlejohn, chief of the special commodities section, is designed to cut into an existing surplus estimated at about 70,000,000 pounds. This surplus, it is claimed, has been holding down prices. According to Hopkins, needy people on the relief rolls in many communities have not been supplied with nearly sufficient quantities of meat and butter while cattle, dairy and hog growers are suffering from poor markets. Two alternative methods are open for financing the beef plan. A compensatory tax could be levied on beef when a processing tax is levied on hogs or corn to finance the corn-hog program being worked out by the farm administration. A marketing agreement also could be used to increase prices of high grade steers. By either method the farm administration could contribute funds to the surplus relief corporation to help finance expansion of the present beef program.

STUDENTS TO GET LOW RETURN FARE FROM G.N.

College students get a new deal from the railways of the country this fall. They pay one-third more than the first class one-way fare and get a return ticket which can be used during the Christmas and Easter holidays or at the close of the school.

Students, railways and educational institutions are all expected to benefit from this arrangement, according to W. E. Baker, Great Northern agent here. The lower cost of transportation is expected to attract larger attendances, particularly from distant points.

If the student returns for Christmas of spring vacation, he can get another round-trip ticket on the same basis. Stopovers also are permitted. Teachers and others connected with educational institutions can avail themselves of the reduced rate.

FARMERS ARE WARNED NOT TO ASSIGN THEIR WHEAT CHECKS

Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials have warned farmers against signing agreements assigning their wheat adjustment payment checks to creditors or other parties in violation of their contracts.

The administration's warning was issued as a result of word that creditors of farmers in some states are seeking to get farmers to agree to such assignments, says a communication received at University Farm, St. Paul, from Washington.

"The purpose of the wheat adjustment payment is to put this additional purchasing power into the hands of the farmer for him to use at his discretion—not merely to have him assign his adjustment payment to the first creditor who reaches him," says George E. Farrell, associate chief of the wheat section.

To protect farmers against such practices, the wheat allotment contract in Article 16 specifically forbids the contracting farmer to sign his payments, as follows: The producer will not sell or assign, in whole or in part, this contract or his right to or claim for adjustments payments under this contract, and will not execute any power of attorney to collect such adjustment payments or to order that any such payments be made. Any such sale, assignment, order, or power of attorney shall be null and void.

"The answer of any farmer to a creditor who asks that the adjustment payment check be assigned to him, is that such action is impossible under Artice 16 of the contract," says Mr. Farrell.

1500 MORE WILL GET ROAD JOBS ON 'FEEDER' PROJECTS

Road projects providing employment for 1,500 men on the $2,000,000 secondary road program of the Minnesota highway department have been submitted to the United States Bureau of public roads by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner.

Recent orders from the Public Works adminstration in Washington, ordering the temporary abandonment of regulations, prompted the commissioner to submit at once a program of work including thirty counties. Many of these jobs are already under way and helping relieve unemployment.

The prompt launching of this $2,000,000 program will provide work for a total of 1500 unemployed, it is indicated.

BEEKEEPERS OF NATIAN TO HOLD MEET IN MINNESOTA

With the Minnesota Beekeepers association as host, three national organizations associted with beekeeping will hold their annual joint sessions in Minneapolis during February. The organizations are the American Honey Producers' League, an international federation representing state and provincial beekeepers' associations of United States and Canada; the American Honey Institute, with headquarters in Madison, Wis.; and the Apiary Inspectors of America.

James Gwin, Madison, Wisconsin, president of the American Honey producers' League, has lined up the tentative program, which will stress the marketing of honey, its food and health values, and new uses of honey to stimulate demand.

Dr. M. C. Tanquary, secretary of the state beekeepers' association and for 2 years president of the American Producers League is heading the local committee on arrangements. In order to enable as many Minnesota beekeepers as possible to attend the national convention, the state beekeepers' association has postponed its regular convention and will merge it with the national convention.

Dr. Tanquary, who is also head of the beekeeping section at University Farm; announces that, due to curtailment of the University's budget, no special short course for beekeeping will be offered at University Farm this year. Consequently, the beekeeping program for Farmers and Homemakers' week, January 15 to 20, will be somewhat more extensive than that offered in former years. For the last 5 years, the state beekepers' association has convened at University Farm some time in November in connection with the University's beekeeping short course.

CITY ATTORNEY ISSUES STATEMENT ON GRANT

Mr. Berve's statement follows:

Editor:

In the hopes of clearing up some misunderstanding in regard to the Diesel Engine Situation and the Grant from the Government, I would like to make a brief statement. So far as the pending Injunction suit against the City to stop the purchase of the Engine goes, I have nothing to say. That matter is in Court, and even if the Plaintiffs want to try the law suit and try to stop the purchase even now when a grant of $15,000 is available, that is their legal privilege and no one can stop them. If that is what they want the only way to do is to try the law suit and find out where we stand through a court decision.

What I wish to call attention to is that we have official written notice from Mr. Wm. N. Cary, Engineer and Public Works Adminstrator for this state, that the city of Thief River Falls has been allotted a Grant of fifteen thousand dollars for the City Light Plant. All we have to do now is to arrange and adjust matters so as to take advantage of the grant. We are satisfied that the Conditional Salles Feature of the contract will not need to stand in the way. If the Government has any objection to the conditional sales contract, that can be adjusted and taken care of. In fact were it not for the injunction suit, these minor details would probably have been ironed out long ago.

It should be distinctly understood by the people of this city that this grant of fifteen thousand dollars from the Government is a gift to our city from Uncle Sam under the National Recovery Act. It is not a loan which some people seek to make it appear. It is a gift and does not have to be paid back. This gift or grant is based upon the present plans and specifications which have been approved by the Public Works Engineers.

So far as we can see, all that we have to do now is to unitedly get behind the grant. It is poor economy to turn down $15,000. Other towns are perfectly willing to take this money. It amounts to almost one third of the cost of the new engine, and if we wish to be truly economical and save the city it would seem that the only thing for us to do is to get busy and actually get this grant money here.

We want to distinctly call attention to the danger of discord and friction over this matter of the grant. The United States Public Works officials have done their part and favored the city with this grant. Senator Shipstead, Congressman Holdale and Governor Olson have given us their assistance and co-operationin this matter. If we lose this grant now it will be because of the opposition of a few people here at home. The Mayor's chief objection when he vetoed the Resolution for a Diesel Engine was that there was no grant. The Council has applied for the grant and done their part to get it. The grant of fifteen thousand dollars has been alloted to our city, and it would seem to be only good business now to arrange to take advantoge of this gift. It has been reported to me that someone here at home has even written letters to the Public Works officials trying to block the grant after it was allowed. This is unfortunate. If the people here at home want to block the grant, it can easily be done. Unless our opposition here at home ceases we can be quit certain the government is not going to force a gift of fifteen thousand dollars on our city. If we delay too long the grant may be given to some other town.

Yours very truly

H. O. Berve,
City Attorney

Roosevelt Asks Relief Co-operation.

Washington — President Roosevelt assailed buck passers who leave it all to the government in providing relief for the needy and appealed to all to give to local organizations carrying on welfare services. Opening the four weeks' charity drive of the 1933 mobilization for human needs in an address from the White House, Mr. Roosevelt re-emphasized his position that local and state responsibility comes first in the relief program and said that if they were not sufficient, the government would step in.

MORE HIGH SCHOOLS ARE TEACHING AGRICULTURE

Eighty Minnesota high schools this year are offering special instruction in agriculture through federal and state aided departments of vocational agriculture, headed by teachers with agricultural college training. This is more vocational agriculture departments than the state's high schools ever have had before. Last year there were 77. Six new departments opened this year, including those at Alango, Big Fork, Carlton, Clara City, Crosby-Ironton and Howard Lake.

Dr. A. M. Field of the agricultural education department, University Farm, St. Paul, says nearly all of the reports from the teachers show increased enrolment and that when all the figures are in well over 3,000 students will be enrolled for agricultural instruction in high schools. Austin high school has reported 126 students in agriculture and Bemidji 110. Last year, enrolments totalled 2,956.

The vocational agriculture departments offer a variety of instruction. That for full-time students includes regular daily or weekly classes in agriculture, plus special home projects supervised by the teacher. In addition, high school agriculture teachers offer opportunity to young people, not regularly enrolled to attend the regular or special day classes in agriculture, and also organizes evening schools of adult men and women for the study of special problems in dairying, crop production, poultry raising, or other subjects.

Special attention this year will be given to the organization and maintenance of local chapters of Future Farmers of America, a state and national organization for students and former students of vocational agriculture in high schools. Dr. Field, state advisor of the F. F. A., says this organization supplements the regular class work by providing opportunity to students for recreation and leadership experience.

AGGIE SCHOOL ENROLMENTS MOUNT TWENTYFIVE PERCENT

Things may be looking better down on the farm and they may not—anyway there are 25 per cent more students than there were last year registered at the four schools of agriculture maintained by the University of Minnesota.

The registration by schools, as reported at the end of the first week of classes was approximately as follows: University Farm, 230 as against 190 some time last year; Morris, 225 against 152 last year; Crookston, 260 against 177 last year; and Grand Rapids, 50, about the same as last year. Enrolments were still coming in as these figures were issued. The University Farm school, especially, anticipated an appreciable number of late comers, as cornhusking in southern Minnesota interferes with registration the first two or three weeks.

J. O. Christianson, principal of the school at university farm, announces that the advanced registration of students for the winter term indicates an attendance of about 400, the largest since 1929.

The College of Agriculture, Farm, and Home Economics at University Farm, reported a registration of 723, which is less than last year. Forestry shows the biggest decline, this being attributable largely to the fact that many upperclassmen have dropped their studies temporarily to enter government service in reforestation.

Fourteen million farmers raise the basic commodities covered by the new law.

Good government is the product of well informed ownership.

Farm and Market

By

R. A. Trovatten

Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture Dairy and Food.

The Governor's proclamation designating October 30 to November 4 as Minnesota Potato Week is a reminder to all persons interested in buying, selling and consuming potatoes that Minnesota is a great potato state. It further urges all citizens of Minnesota to get into the habit of using Minnesota grown potatoes. No doubt, the farmers and the inhabitants of the smaller towns of the state do their share in consuming Minnesota's grown potatoes, but recent statistics show that, exclusive of the early potatoes shipped into the state during the summer months and consumed in the large cities, particularly Minneapolis and St. Paul, a large amount originates in other states. Minnesota potatoes find their way to many markets, both as table and seed stock; and we have, besides our natural environment advantages for producing good potatoes, the growers who know how to raise them. Such being the case, it should not be necessary for Minnesota consumers to eat imported potatoes nor to pay the high price asked for such potatoes. However, the fact remains that such importd goods does demand a higher price than do Minneota potatoes. This is undoubtedly due to the fact that these imported potatoes are well graded in contrast to much of the locally produced stock which probably never saw a grader and which is dumped on our local markets as junk. It is a deplorable fact that this condition exists because thousands of carloads of well graded Minnesota potatoes are shipped out of the state every year. Although this is true, many carloads of questionable quality also leave the state, and we must remember that our stock, wherever shipped, comes into competition with stock in other states. Every car of questionable quality leaving the state is a poor advertisement for Minnesota potatoes.

To encourage an increase in demand within as well as without the state, it behooves everyone engaged in the potato industry in Minnesota to put up quality stock as good or better than the stock that is now being shipped in from other sections. Minnesota is advantageously located for the production of high-class potatoes. Althought 1933 has been far from an ideal year for the potato crop, many sections can offer potatoes of the finestquality. The Federal and State Departments of Agriculture have set up a produce inspection service with well-trained inspectors scattered thruout the potato loading area. It is not only the purpose of potatoes, but also to assist and instruct potato loaders in the matter of putting up a first-class pack of potatoes. Everything within their power is being done to discourage the loading of junk. The department is encouraging better grading and endeavoring to make inspection of every car shipped possible.

Consumers are willing to pay a better price for well-graded potatoes, and consumer demand for home grown stock can be increased only when those engaged in the production and sale of Minnesota potatoes will see to it that the stock offered to the public in our large consuming centers is above reproach.

The designation of potato week by Governor Olson is for the purpose of encouraging a demand as a means of improving the market and stimulating home business for the benefit of all. The consumer's dollar is as good as it ever was. Give him the kind of potatoes that will make him Minnesota potato-conscious, not only for one week, but forever.

Prohibition Law Protects Youth

"God only knows what conditions would be, with the enlarged freedom which the young people now have, if prohibition were not in existence," declared A. A. Stagg, physical director of the University of Chicago, in his testimony before the Sub-Committee "There would be an immeasurably greater amount of drunkedness and debauchery than there is now.

"In fact, it is my conviction that it is the greatest sort of a blessing that prohibition has been a law during this unstable period when youth of today have such vast freedom.

"It is breaking down the home and this responsibility on the part of the parents toward their children which creates the problem of today and not the Volstead act. The statement that prohibition has produced these conditions is an absurdity and pure bunk.

"The trouble with prohibition is not itself, but that it has not been given a fair chance. Before there should be any consideration of a change in the Volstead act there ought to be an attempt to enforce the law.

"This is not just my opinion; it is the opinion of some of the officers of the University of Chicago, and I have reason to think it is the opinion of millions of people in this country who are interested in giving the youth of the country every chance to grow up under the most favorable conditions, something which can be truthfully said they now have.

"I come before you with no bias, and I am a member of none of the organizations that wanted me to come here. I was born in a poor neighborhood of factory workers given to beer drinking, and as a boy I used to see the heads of nine out of twelve families in our block drunk and fighting. I saw multitudes of keg parties and saw young men get drunk on beer. Well, I saw the boys and men get drunk—and women too.

"I have been at the University of Chicago thirty-four years and before prohibition I used to see scores of the men drunk, coming along fifty-fifth Street and Lake Park Avenue in Hyde Park. Sine prohibition I have seen very few drunk.

"There has been an immense change and I know of a large number of students personally Furthermore, I am convinced that there is nothing like the amount of drinking in the middle west among the younger generation that there was before prohibition.

"As to obeying the law, a whole lot of folks haven't been playing the game on the square nor according to the rules. This whole nation should set aside personal wishes and co-operate with the law. I think it is terribly important that a moral wave, a religious wave sweep the country. Parents are running away from their responsibilities."

World's Largest Cross

Stolberg, a tiny city in the Hartz, with the Stolberg palace, is little known outside Germany, but it possesses two distinctions. One finds here the largest collection of funeral sermons in the world, comprising 20,000 volumes of eulogies delivered in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, and on the outskirts of the city stands the world's largest cross, on the "Josephsbone," at an elevation of 1,886 feet, erected more than a hundred years ago in the form of an observation tower 124½ feet high.

COMMENDATION

The progressives of the city are to be commended on the uniquivocal stand they have taken on the question of additional power for the power and light plant, and against any compromise by which the power companies could get a foothold in the city. The facts are clear to anyone who wishes to take the trouble of looking them up, and no thinking person can, after having considering them, remain in doubt as to whether or not additional power is required at this time. The McIntosh-Seymour unit is at the present very near its limit when the peak load is on and before mid-winter it will take all the engines to carry the load at certain periods of the day. What the result would be for the city if anything should happen to the big engine is rather too dire to contemplate. There are hundreds of electric wash machines, electric radios, electrically controlled oil-burning furnaces, refrigerators, and electric ranges in the city to say nothing of the power and light requirements of the industrial and business places, streets and homes. The wonder is that anybody can argue that no more power is necessary.

The progressives rightly insist that the additional power required shall be manufactured here and not purchased from the highline. Aside from the fact that it is cheaper for the city, honest people should naturally want to deal with honest people ally should want to deal with honest people and the power trust is one of the most corrupt aggregations doing business in America today, Their methods of capital inflation, water power site steals and outright bribery of public officials is public knowledge and we should have nothing to do with them. We feel that the voters will agree with the progressives in their stand and prophesy an overwhelming victory for the progressives in the coming city election. Our people have expressed their opinion on this issue in unmistakeable terms before now that it is becoming clear just what the issue is, there is no doubt of the outcome of the election.

FELICITATION

The citizens of our city are to be congratulated upon having the opportunity to vote for a set of men of such unquestionable character and ability as that possesed by the candidates supported by the progressives in this campaign. Lars Backe, who heads the ticket as candidate for mayor, has lived in this city since the townsite was a varied conglomeration of stumps and has seen it grow into a thriving community. He knows our problems, he knows our people, he has served us as a public official for 37 years, and always with ability and with honor. We are fortunate indeed that he has consented to give us another two years of his time and labor.

O. C. Paulson, candidate for Alderman at large has served the city on the council before, he is experiencd, he is capable and he has a flair for hard work possessed by very few people.

The rest of the ticket has served the city during the past two years, conceeded to be the most trying in the history of the country and their work has been commendable. To quote the words of Mr. Backe when he was asked how he liked his running mates, "They are good men. It's a good council, the best that the city has had for a great many years." They have undertaken and are carrying to completion a splendid work in the building of a new auditorium. They have secured a bridge over the Red Lake River to be built this winter. Make no mistake about that. The bridge was secured thru their efforts and party affiliation. Without in any way belittling or distracting from the work of the Civic and Commerce association in civic affairs it is hardly to be expected that an organization with such well established republican conservative leadership, one of whom thru his newspaper made one of the nastiest personal attacks upon the governor that has yet been written, would get a great deal of consideration from the state administration. Just as much possibly as a Farmer-Labor club could have gotten from the Christianson regime, but hardly a great deal more.

COMMISERATION

We regret that some of our citizens, men of integrity, men who always have been ready to give of their time and efforts towards the building up of our community should have been jockeyed into the unfavorable position now occupied by the group that instituted the injunction proceedings against the city. Their affliction is certainly not of the heart. We believe they have been misled by a hot temper and misinformation peddled by smallbore politicians impelled by petty jelousies.

In view of the fact that the council has secured the grant of $15,000 from the federal government thus dispelling their fear of increased taxes as a result of the purchase of another diesel unit, we hope that they will now dismiss their action so that the city can take advantage of the grant and work be started. We do not believe that they would wish to see the city lose this opportunity of profiting from a gift from the Federal government.

Too much time has already been lost as a result of misunderstanding and hot tempers, let us get together before we also lose the grant.

MUSCLE SHOALS

It is a lamentable fact that the Muscle Shoals project remains at a standstill despite the millions of dollars appropriated by the last Congress to develop this gigantic plan for the benefit of the public.

But this much has been done to quicken interest in Muscle Shoals: The authority has already announced the electric rates to be in vogue as soon as the government approves the work, and these rates are a revelation. They average about 2 cents per kilowatt hour for the typical general consumer, an average of about 2,3-4 cents per kilowatt hour for the typical limited user, and an average of about seven mills for the fully electrified home. The average domstic rate charged by privately-owned utility corporations is 5.-58 cents per killowatt.

No sooner had the rates been announced before the Edison Electric Institute and all its affiliates began to offer alibis for their own excessive charges. They began asserting that the Muscle Shoals schedule is not founded on a basis comparable with privately-owned utilities. This claim was at once answered by David Lillienthal, director in charge of Muscle Shoals, who stated that the rates were computed on a conservative basis and cover all production costs, including operation, maintenance, depreciation, taxes, interest and amortizstion. But nowhere in the government set-up is there an allowance for the usual milking processes to be found in every privately-owned utility concern. There are no false management charges and no payoffs to so-called holding companies. And that is why the 2 cents per kilowatt hour rate is possible at Muscle Shoals as it is in Ontario. —Union Advocate

GOOD WAYS OUT.

What this country needs is a country with enough credit to borrow the money from us to start a war with a country whose credit with us is just as good.

Another good way out of this depression would be be for Mr. Morgan to float a billion dollar war loan to Japan wherewith to lick Russia. Then follow it up with a twenty billion dollar war loan to keep Japan from getting licked. Then having failed, float a thirty billion dollar Liberty loan or something to finance our entrance in the war on the side of Japan. Then having succeeded in licking Russia at last, float a forty billion dollar Victory bond issue to finance the rationalization of Russia Industry so as to enable that country to pay Japan what it owe us. Then having done all this, raise our tariff walls so as to prevent Japan from paying us with the goods the Russians paid to Japan to pay us.

Sounds crazy doesn't it? But that's how the wonderful prosperity was brought about, for which the great and intelligent American people thanked God for Coolidge.— American Guardian.

The Liberal Digest

PREAMBLE AND PLATFORM
Adopted by the Progressive Voters League

I

The present council has held office during the most trying period of the city's history. They have had to cope with vast problems of public relief and unemployment. They have at all times met these problems in a businesslike and fair manner. They have provided made work to relieve the unemployment situation, having disbursed over $2,000 for graveling on the city's streets this past season. Yet they have conserved the taxpayers' money and kept the tax levy from increasing. Businessmen, professional men, taxpayers, and working people have alike been given fair and square treatment and unrestricted scoring on all questions coming before the council. They did not allow themselves to be dictated to or dominated by any particular group of citizens. They have reduced the city's bonded indebtedness in 1932 by $29,000 in 1933 by $44,000, reducing the annual interest payments by more than $2,000 per year.

II

The municipal power and light plant has been an excellent revenue producing asset for the city. It has in past years returned to the city in net earnings, after paying outstanding bonds and interest, from $19,000 to $30,000 per year. These monies have gone into the city's general fund and has saved the taxpayers these amounts. The net operating profit of the plant, after charging off depreciation and interest was $29,123,18 in 1932. Indications are that 1933 will show approximately the same figure, inasmuch as the figure now shows an increase over last year, the light decrease in the early part of the season should be offset before the year is ended. We believe in keeping this source of revenue up to its best efficiency.

Since the McIntosh-Seymour engine was installed and put into operation on Jan. 1st 1930 the consumption of electric energy in the city has increased 12 per cent. During the same period th available waterpower has dropped off so that while we in 1930 generated 878,700 KWH with water power, in 1932 we could only generate 107,600 kwh with water power. This difference of 771,100 kwh had to be generated with diesel power. The amount will be still greater in 1933. And the demand is growing while our water power is shrinking, thus dispelling all doubts of the necessity of procuring additional power.

III

The foregoing paragraphs show that our city is a fertile field for exploitation which the highlines would go to any length to aquire. Then the profits of electric energy production instead of going to lighten the load of the taxpayer would be used here, as records show it is being used other places, for purposes of coruption and bribery of public officials.

IV

Thru the fact that the present city council is in their political and economic philosophy in harmony with the state and national administration, they have in the face of bitter and unfair opposition secured a Federal grant of $15,000 to be used towards the purchase of another diesel unit for the power plant. In spite of the fact that this is a direct gift from the Federal government, a certain group of our citizens have seen fit, by injunction proceedings to hold up the using of this grant, which may result in the city losing this money.

V

Thru their efforts and because of their political affiliations and influence, the council has secured the promise of a new bridge over the Red Lake river for this city, to be built this winter, at a cost of approximately $50,000, to be financed with Federal funds appropriated to the state for highway purposes.

In view of the foregoing and the fact that the members of the council and their running mates indorsed by the Progressive Voters' League have pledged themselves to the platform adopted by this league, we ask the voters to vote for them and support them in the fortbcoming city election. Tuesday, November 7th.

PLATFORM

1. We pledge ourselves to continued efficiency and rigid economy in all city affairs, together with a full and open discussion of all public questions.

2. We pledge ourselves to the protection and continued improvement of our city owned power and light plant, including the immediate addition of another diesel engine, so as to provide a plant that can be depended upon to adequately take care of the needs of our city.

3. We pledge ourselves to keeping the power trust and the highlines out of our city.

4. We pledge our best efforts to protect the city's interests in the injunction suit and to make use of the $15,000 grant which the council has secured from the Federal government for diesel purposes.

5. We pledge our best efforts to secure additional federal funds for necessary public improvements.

TO the Forum:

I wish to comment on an article in the Editorial column of the Times of Oct. 12th, under the heading, "The Means Are Now Available." The article says, "Thanks to the vetos of the mayor, it seems likely that government aid will be secured for the purchase of a diesel engine by the city." The facts are that if the council had not passed the resolution to advertise for bids, and then again the resolution to accept some bid that was offered over the mayor's veto, the city would not have been in a position to ask for a grant from the federal government. The council in this case took the necessary steps in the proper order and got the grant allowed and the only thing that is delaying the installation is the Court Order obtained by a group of citizens, not for the purpose of securing the grant, but because they are opposed to the purchase of additional power. The mayor in his vetos, also was not interested in obtaining a grant, but only in stopping the purchase of additional power. Thanking these people for their actions would be similar to thanking a person for blowing the dam just prior to a cloudburst that might have caused a dangerous flood, had not the dam been previously destroyed.

The Editor of the Times evidently still retains resentment toward the council because the Times' low bid being accepted for city printing. Personally, I would have much preferred that printing be let at a fair price, as I do not believe in selling below cost in the matter of printing or of any other service or commodity.

Sincerely yours,
P. A. Harris.

To the Editor

Please allow me o little space in your paper to comment on the road meeting held at Roseau last Saturday. I was a member of the delegation from Gatzke and surrounding communities at this meeting and am sorry to say that we found ourselves greatly outnumbered by delegations from other points. If a force of number is to decide the issue we could have brought a hundred or more delegates to this meeting, but we tried to comply with the request of the Highway Commissioner, Mr. Elsberg, to keep the delegations small.

We realize of course that the routing of any road is a matter that will get into dispute for it is only human for everyone to wish the highway laid at his door. Nevertheless we feel that there are arguments favoring the route which we advocate which the Commissioner of Highways should give very serious consideration. In the first place the route which we desire will serve practically all the farmers living in this whole territory as they must come to Thief River Falls to market their turkeys and other products, that being the location of the Land O' Lakes plant. We feel that this road should be so laid that it will serve the greatest number of people and not to serve Bemidji alone. Furthermore, the distance to Bemidji is 40 to 60 miles longer for us than the road to Thief River Falls. Anyway the road as we propose will serve Bemidji equally well, as well as traffic between Bemidji and all points north.

The route which we propose will simplify the building of the highway and keep the cost much lower for it lays thru territory where the roads are fairly well built and are high enough to be kept open during the winter. It runs thru denser settlement and on higher land. A considerable distance of the proposed east route runs thru sparsely settled territory which it is the state's policy to depopulate. A great part of it olso runs thru bog and sandy land.

We feel that if the farmers can prosper then the people in the cities and villages will also prosper and that therefore the farmers should be given a fair consideration in this matter.

We know that inasmuch as the Commissioner of Highways took a firm stand for the rural communities in the controversy that arose between the Twin Cities and Duluth and the rural sections of the state last summer over the allotment of Federal road funds that he can be depended upon to see that justice is done in this matter.

Very truly yours,
A. O. McMillin.

Farmer-Labor Press Service

(By H. G. Teigan)

The Minnesota Highway Department this week began a $2,000,000 road construction program under the "day-labor" system. This work will be done on secondary roads.

This program which will be done directly by the State Highway Department will require approximately 2000 men to do the work. There will of course, be about the same number of men employed indirectly, thus giving employment to approximately 4,000 men.

It must he apparent by this time to those persons who are desirous of seeing work done in the state that the contract system in huilding roads is not a practical one. It not merely is more expensive and operates to the detriment of the taxpayers, but is of equal disadvantage to those who are seking work.

Day Labor Favored

Had the State Highwoy Department been permitted to under-take all of the road work by "force-account" or day-labor plan, as it is usually termed, it is safe to state that fully $5,000,000 worth of work would have been done by this time. Due to the complicated method necessitated by the contract system, only $3,000,000 worth of work has been undertaken thus far and yet that places Minnesota second among the states in road work accomplished under the Federal Aid Scheme this year.

It, must however, be realized that the Federal Governments red tape and the contract system are not entirely to blame for the lack of road work done in this state during the present year. It is well for the people of the state to keep in mind that Minnesota's contribution, as it were, to the road construction program lies entirely in the amount collected hy the Federal Government in gas taxes. Approximately one-half of the $10,000,000 alloted to Minnesota by the United States Government has been or will he paid by motorists of the state through the 1.5 cents gas tax collected by Washington.

Legislature at Fault

The point is that the reduction in the license fees by the 1933 Legislature deprived the Highway Department of money for use in construction work. I have made meotion of this in a previous article but it is of sufficient importance to hear repitition. In view of the fact that every community of the state demanded road construction work and has sent committees to interview Governor Olson and Commissioner N. W. Elsberg about the matter, it is only proper to impress upon the people of the state that the failnre to build roads needed is due in no small measure to the Legislature's action in depriving the state Highway Department of necessary funds to carry on the work.

Loss of $4,000,000

As relates in a previous article, the reduction in license fees caused tha loss of $4,000,000 to the Highway department. This means a direct drop in employment of nearly 8,000 men affected directly and indirectly by the loss in Highway revenne.

Those communities of Minnesota that have been making demands upon the Commissioner Elsberg and Governor Olson for road building should place the blame where it properly helongs. Let them examine the record of their legislators in reference to support of the Highway Department the years 1933 and 1934.

Anyway, Minnesota people have reason to cogratulate themselves on the accomplishments of the state Highway Department's use of Federal funds this year not withstanding the Federal red tape involved. According to official figures Minnesota rank No. 2 in getting work under way under the Federal Act. And that is doing pretty well.

WHEAT PRODUCTION AND ACREAGE STATEMENTS OF MEMBERS OF THE WHEAT PRODUCTION CONTROL ASSOCIATION OF PENNINGTON COUNTY, STATE OF MINNESOTA

The following is a statement of the production and planted acreages of wheat in the years 1930-32 and planted acreage for 1933 of producers of Pennington County who have submitted applications for farm allotments. This publication is made in complianea with the regulations of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. It is made so that a check may ba made on all statement claims, and so that reports may be made to the county Wheat Production Control Association on any inaccuracies which may appear in the statements.

The allotment for this county has been definitely calculated from official records of the United States Department of Agriculture, and is 50,396 bushels. This is the total allotment for the county. Therefore, if any farmer receives a greater allotment than his past production warrants, he is thus depriving other farmers in this county of their just share.

Total production figures of those who apply for contracts, together with those who do not, must ba consistent with the official county production as shown by the records of the United States Department of Agriculture. If the county totals are greater than the official totals, it will be necessary to make a downward adjustmeot.

Any person may make a confidential report if he finds any statement here which he believes to be inaccurate. Such reports should be made to the community or county Allotment Committee, either in writing or verbally. Tha reports will be strictly confidential. A farmer whose statements are said to be inaccurate will need to prove his production figures.

Farmers have been asked to furnish evideoce of production and evidence of sale, such as threshermnn's certificates, elevator certificates, or other records and receipts. Satisfactory evideoce will be required of aoy farmer whose statement is questioned.

The following statements have been condensed to savo epace. "A." represents acres planted and "bu." represents bushels harvested. The "3-year average" represents the 3-year average acreage and production of 1930-32. Farmers should refer any questions regarding this publication to their Community Committee or the County Allotment Committee.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

1. In case of rented farms:—
   a. Contracts are not legal until signed by landlord.
   b. Contracts cover the totol wheat produced and payments for 1933 are divided as the 1933 wheat crop is divided. The same is true of the 1934 and 1935 payments.
   c. Data giveo for 1930-32 is for the farm shown in the publication regardless of who raised these crops. Renters do oot give crops raised on some other farm.
2. Farms reporting no wheat either alone or in succotash in 1933, do not receive 1933 payments. By fulfilling the contract they receive 1934 and 1935 payments.
3. Some of the men listed in the above applications have not grown clear wheat but have grown succotash. This has been reduced to wheat acres by taking the per cent of wheat in the mixture (Not over 50% allowed unless an elevator statement accompanies it showing actual percentage) and allowing that percentage of the acres in succotash as wheat acres. If wheat was grown alone, then that average for that year is considered the yield on those acres of wheat in succotash. If no clear wheat was grown, the County average for that year was taken as the yield.
4. Due to hail and grasshopper damage during one or more of the years 1930-32 the following men have requested a 5-year average and are being considered by the allotment committee:

J. P. Asp
Adolph Barstad
John Johnson
Soren Knutson
Christ Person
John Scholin
Victor Scholin
M. G. Shumway
John Solberg

5. Due to the fact that many of the farms are located in more than one section, we have given the section number for the sectioo on which the man lives.

HIGHWAY NUMBERS WILL BE UNIFORM UNDER NEW PLAN

Minnesota scheme of truck highway numbering will be considerably changed in 1934 as a result of the taking over by the state of approximately 4,600 miles of new routes added by the last legislature.

The highway department is now completing a plan for co-ordinating the new routes with those of the orginal trunk system, according to a department bulletin.

At the same time, methods are bedeveloped for eliminating all cases where the same routes carry different state and federal numbers. Duplications of numbers on different routes also will be ellmated.

Much confusion is expected to be avoided by the change. Tourist traffic, which depends largely on U. S. route numbers for guldance through the various states, will be greatly accomodated.

"When the 1934 highway maps are issued," said N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner, "no route will carry more than one number. A route having a U. S. number will have the same state number, not a different one. The new routes added by the legislature will be fitted into the system in a practical manner. We will endeavor to keep the total number of routes under 100.

"At the same time that the renumbering is done, Minnesota will join with other states and adopt the national standard of black and white signs for trunk highway guide markers, instead of our present black and yellow. The black and yellow combination will be preserved for warning signs. Route numbers will be shown in black and white.

"There will be a sentimental regret on the part of many Minnesotans in seeing the changes made in the numbering of our trunk system and in sign colors, but the convenience of the motoring public will be best served by keeping in step with national highway practice and progrehs.

"We wish to make Minnesota highways as attractive to motorists in our own state and in all other states. It will help if we eliminate the confusing practice of having different state and Federal numbers on the same roads.

"In changing the color scheme of our road signs we are adopting a standard which has been approved by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads and is already in effect in most other states. The black and yellow Minnesota sign originated with the beginning of our trunk system and was intended to distinguish state signs from those of counties and other divisions. National experience and research has proved, however, that warning signs are more effective if painted in a different and more conspicious color than is used for guide signs.

"As black and yellow is accepted as the most effective combination for warnings, black and white has been nationally adopted for numbering.

The changes in route numbering now being worked out will go into effect shortly after the first of next year, Mr. Elsberg said.

Banana Industry

The banana industry had a modest enough beginning. At first there was Friar Tomas de Berlanga, who took a banana plant from Gran Canaria, to Santo Domingo in 1516. The schooner Reynard is said to have carried 30 bunches of bananas to New York in 1804, the magazine, Fortune, relates but the venture was not pursued. In 1866 there was an attempt to ship bananas from Panama to the United States, but it was abandoned. The first successful effort to ship bananas from the tropics to markets in the United States came when Capt. Lorenzo Baker, a Cape Cod sailing master, picked up a lot of bananas at Port Morant, Jamaica, for 25 cents a bunch and sold them in New York 11 days later for $2.50 and $3 a bunch.

Original "Blue Streak," or Sharp-Shinned Hawk

The origin of the expression "going a blue streak" is hazy but for a practical demonstration of what the term implies, the sharp-shinned hawk, or little blue darter, can give it. When he spies a broiler, quail or other careless feathered luncheon wondering far from shelter, this real chicken hawk can give a good imitation of Capt. Malcolm Campbell's Blue Bird—but with a square meal in view, not for the purpose of setting world speed records.

One of the speediest hawks, the sharp-shinned, is also regarded by authorities as one of the most destructive to poultry, game and other beneficial birds. Although measuring but 10 to 12 inches in length, with a wing spread of about 22 inches, this little blue darter, says a publication of the United States Department of Agriculture, "is very partial to chickens and often almost exterminates early broods which are allowed to run at large. No birds, from the size of doves, robins and flickers to the smallest warblers and titmice, are safe from its attacks."

The More Game Birds foundation, an organization of nationally known business men and sportsmen, puts the sharp-shinned hawk as the leading wild life gangster. In its booklet, "More Game Birds by Controlling Their Natural Enemies," the foundation declares: "The sharp-shinned hawk is second in its destructive habits only to the Cooper's hawk and goshawk as a game bird enemy and should be controlled at all times."

Mysteries of Human Ear Still Awaiting Solution

The mechanism of the human ear has been known during long ages, but the manner in which it conveys definite information to the brain is another matter. The world is still far from a final pronouncement, however learnedly one may speak of sound waves striking upon the drum of the ear and establishing a vibration which is communicated to the brain by a row of white threads attached to a series of wonderfully articulated bones. That the threads, like the aerials which catch the flutterings of the ether bearing sounds across the oceans, and give them rebirth exactly as they were born thousands of miles away, to the last squeak of the clarinet or chirp of the piccolo; translate to human brains the meaning conveyed by the air vibrations which tap against the ear-drum or tympanum does not greatly help.

A writer says: "We call the threads nerves, but how the tympanum adapts itself by contraction and relaxation to the different pitch of sound without our will intervening we have no idea. We know only that it does."

Jazz Time and Syncopation

There is no such thing as jazz time. Jazz is merely noisy rhythm. Ragtime is, however, popular music with syncopated rhythm. Syncopation means that a regular accent has been delayed or hastened beyond its usual beat. Generally, in common time, the accent comes on the first and third beats of each measure. When the second note of a measure is held over and not struck on the third beat, it is said to be syncopated. The same applies when the fourth beat is held over the first of the following bar and not struck. It was not invented by jazz writers but was in common use long before. Beethoven made effective use of it. A well known example is in the "Allegretto" of the popular "Moonlight" Sonata.—Montreal Herald.

Westminster Abbey Known as the Royal Cemetery

The site of Westminster abbey has been occupied by a church for more than thirteen centuries. The beginnings of the present abbey, however, date to the reign of Edward the Confessor, who had a palace at Westminster, and who, between 1049 and 1065 built a church here, dedicated to St. Peter. From this circumstance comes the present official name of Westminster abbey—the Collegiate Church of St. Peter.

Edward the Confessor, who died in 1066, was the first monarch to be buried there, and his shrine, erected by Henry III, is one of the most celebrated there.

Since Edward's time the abbey has been several times reconstructed, restored and enlarged, some of this work having been done as recently as 1890.

In Westminster abbey lie buried thirteen kings and five sovereign queens, besides the consorts and descendants of kings.

The delegation of local fans who went to Minneapolis last week to see the Gophers led by Captain Roy Oen play the highly favored Purdue aggreation saw plenty of football. The Minnesota boys, under-dogs maybe, but the masters just the same outplayed Purdue and hung up a decided edge during the first three quarters and yielded only when Purdue's reserve strength asserted itself. During the final minutes of the game. Oen played the same game that has made him one of Minnesota's best Captains, always where he was needed, playing the game to win.

Playing some fine football, Lincoln high school's Prowlers plunged thru Crookston last Thursday 19 to 6. From the first, the Prowlers showed their superior power and led their opponents at half-time 13 to 6. Crookston's only score came in the final quarter when Dooley's reserve string was playing .Two long runs brought the ball to the fifteen yard line, which was followed by a penalty that put the ball on the local's one yard line. Here the Prowler reserves weakened before the fighting Crookston boys who saw their chance to score and promptly made the most of it.

All the Prowlers who saw action showed up well, they are loosing that raggedness that has kept them below the peak of their ability. Chommic scored all three times and Bradley kicked the extra point.

This week the Prowlers play Grand Forks there, Friday evening, and altho they are by far the under-dogs, if they play with the spirit and smoothness they showed last Thursday it will be a game worth seeing.

The date for the Bemidji-Prowler tilt has been changed to Friday, October 27 here. This game will wind up the Prowler's football season for 1933.

Outstanding bowling scores chalked up during the past week indicate that many pin-smashers will be in tiptop condition with the opening of the regular bowling league schedule for the first of the month. Altho the teams have not yet been announced, it is expected that the league will be organized by next week.

Severt Brandon this week rolled 252, Lyle Lanning scored 236 and Leonard Helgeland chalked up 238. That would be a diciding score in any man's pin game.

Diesel Installation Would Provide Labor For 20 Men

Notification that work on the new Diesel engine to be added to the local light plant could be started within fifteen days ond would provide work for twenty men about three months, was received by tha National Reemployment office this week, it was announced by Arnia Solem, manager. A minimum wage of fifty-five cents an hour would be paid, and a third of the money or $15,000, donated as an outright gift by the government.

Meanwhile, this work is now being held up by the injunction filed by a local group opposed to further improvement of the plant at this time. A hearing will be held October 30, but there is danger that the government offer will be withdrawn if litigation continues.

PROGRESSIVES ENTER FULL SLATE IN CITY ELECTION

A campaign committee consisting of the chairman from esch ward was agreed upon and R. M. Aalbu was elected campaign manager.

Mr. Backe, is a pioneer of the city, coming here in 1890. He was village recorder from 1893 to 1896, When the city was incorporated in 1896 he became its first clerk, serving in this capacity until 1909, a period of 13 years. He became mayor of the city in 1909, serving in this office for two terms. He was elected Judge of Probate in 1921, serving in this capacity until 1932. He was a member of the school board from 1899 until 1922, a charter member of the city fire department, serving as its secretary until 1909.

Mr. Backe expressed himself as 100 per cent with the council in its stand for the purchase of another diesel unit at this time. "I helped give birth to the municipal light and power plant," Mr. Backe said, "I have seen it grow up from an infant to a real man and I shall do all in my power to protect it and the city from the encroachments of the power trust." Continuing, he said, "I believe in adequate stand-by power to insure service at all times." He told of the efforts of the power companies to frustrate the citizens in their efforts to found the plant back in 1900 and cited instances of attempted bribery to gain their purpose. Speaking of his running mates on the progressive ticket, Mr. Backe said, "They are good men. It is a good council, the best that the city has had for a great many years. I know that we shall get along fine together and be enabled to do a great deal of good work for the city."

Climbing the Himalayas Called Job for Hardiest

Himalayan mountaineering is, of course, a very different matter from the Alpine sport where the climber returns to a comfortable inn with beef and beer and an easy chair to smoke his pipe in, says a writer in "The Saturday Evening Post."

It takes a tough man even to reach the foot of Everest. To get there he must organize a train of coolies, cut his way through dense jungles, cross snow passes higher than Alpine summits and endure the combined hardships of the desert and the Arctic.

When he pitches his base camp at the foot he is already higher than the summit of Mont Blanc, but his campaign has just begun. With his companions he must labor for weeks in the deep snows, pushing a series of camps higher and higher, in the hope that, before the monsoon breaks, one or two of the party can be launched at the summit.

He lives in a scrap of a tent pitched on the snow, must thaw out everything that he eats or drinks, and spends his days carrying heavy loads up slopes that would present climbing difficulties to unladen men.

His worst handicap is the rarefied air. Above 20,000 feet the heart labors and the feet drag like lead. Sharp pains assail the eyes and ears, the breath is drawn in gasps through a burning throat and ambition departs. A climber sets himself a goal of just twenty more paces, but sinks down to rest at the end of ten.

Metal Plating Secrets of Egypt Are Revealed

Some of the secrets of metal plating as practiced in Egypt more than 4,000 years ago have been revealed by study of a small copper kettle in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, says "Popular Mechanics Magazine." The kettle and an accompanying basin, made about 2500 B. C., are regarded by a professor of Columbia university, as the earliest examples of chemically applied metal plating.

While cleaning the kettle, smooth patches like silver ware found among rougher areas of a typical old copper color. Tests established that the base metal of both kettle and basin was copper and that the silvery plating was a thin coat of metallic antimony, with a small amount of iron as impurity.

The principle involved in application is actually electrolytic but may have been accidentally discovered and applied. The professor says there is reason to believe that pickling baths containing vinegar and salt were used by the ancients for cleaning bronzes after discoloration from heating, and the addition of antimony and contact with iron may have been accidental at first, but was repeated intentionally when the results were observed.

That antimony was available in ancient Egypt is proved by the antimony sulphide found in the eyebrow paint used by Egyptian women. Two methods of application of antimony plating have been found, each requiring only raw materials known to have been available in Egypt.

TAX LEVY FIXED BY COUNCIL TUES.

General Revenue Fund Cut From $22,000 Down To $10,200

The tax levy for the coming year was placed at $40,000, the same as last year by the council in session last Tuesday evening. There is some dicerence in the placement of the funds however, for there is an item of $15,000 going into the new auditorium. The figures follow:

	1932	1933
Current fund	$22,000	$10,000
Auditorium maintanance	1,100	3,000
Poor	5,000	none
Cemetery	750	750
Parks	800	800
Band	750	750
Paving Imp. No 1	6,000	6,000
Permanent Imp. (Auditorium		15,000

Due to a slight shrinkage in valuation the mill levy will very likely be increased some. City Clerk P. G. Pederson estimates that the levy will be in the neighborhood of 105 mills when all school, county, state and city taxes are computed.

Routine business followed. A representative of the Iron Fireman Stoker company appeared before them and expounded the advantages derived from the use of his product and the savings that can be made for the city if it should decide to install the Iron Fireman in the new auditorium. The council decided not to take action on the matter until it for further investigation.

The Standard Oil Co. requested permission to install pipeline in the city from their bulk station on Atlantic avenue to their service station at corner Main avenue and Second street. The request was laid over for further invehtigation.

Arthur Rambeck was granted a permit to move the building now at 115 LaBree avenue north, formerly occupied by the Thief River Decorating company and later by a cream

Five Day Deer Season In Northern Minnesota

By executive proclamation Governor Floyd B. Olson last week ordered a five-day open season on deer in northern Minnesota.

Hunters will be allowed to take one deer each, either buck or doe, from sunrise November 21 ao sunset November 25, in Cook, Lake, St. Louis, Koochichisg, Itasca, Beltrami, Lake of the Woods, Pine and Carlton counties.

The state law allows an open season only in even-numbered years. Governor Olson made his proclamation on the strength of an opinion from the attorney general giving him such authority. The Governor said deer were so plentiful there was danger of disease spreading through the herds, and that an open season at this timo should strengthen the herds.

This is the first time in ten years that there has been an open season in an odd-numbered year.

G. N. Railway Passenger Service Is Being Enlarged

Approximately 1,200 miles of daily passenger service will be added by the Great Northern Railway October 29 as part of the road's program for recapturing business lost to the highways during recent years. In addition to this, about 250 miles of mixed troin service is to be replaced by passenger trains, and re-rontings and changes in srhedules ere being worked out to afford more convenient hours for travelers.

This expansion of passanger train service is believed to be the first announced by any railway since 1929. Curtailment has been the trend during the last four years.

The first steps along the recovery road are being taken at this time for three reasons, according to W. P. Kinney, president of the Great Northern.

First—The 50 per cent increase in the number of local passengers which allowed the reduction of fares to 2 cents a mile August 1 demonstrated that travelers can be brought back to the trains.

Second—The reduction of the railway faro for passengers in the Pullmans which will go into effect December 1 is expected to stimulate travel still further.

Third—additional trains, with faster and better service is looked to as the final thing needed to reverse the cycle of diminishing passenger business and curtailed train service.

3000 ATTENDED PROGRESS DAY

Thief River Valley Poultry Ass'n. Pays Final Obligation Saturday

Three thousand cooperative petrons and officers of creameries and out Northern Minnesota gathered in Thief River Falls last Saturday as the guests of the Land O' Lakes and local businessmen, to celebrate Cooperative Progress Dny in commemoration of a halif a centhry of cooperative expansion in the Red River Valley.

Final pay-off of the $40,000 debt of the dsfunct Thief River Valley Poultry Association taken over by the Land O' Lakes several years ago, was made last Saturday as the grand finale of the Progress Day celebration in this city. This payment amounted to nearly $9,000. B. O. Norby, manager of the local Land O' Lakes plent stated.

The Thief River Valley Poultry Association began business in 1924 and failed in 1027 following heavy losses. The farmers of the concern then allowed the Land O' Lakes to take over the association and deduct one-fourth of one cent per pound and per dozen from the price paid for farm produce until enough money was made to pay off the old debt. This deduction will be discontinued November 1 of this year.

Co-operatives showed great interest in the progress celebration. In spite of the disagreeable weather seventy-fiv units from surrqunding towns were represented in the parade at noon Saturday. Lead by th Fertile Community band, cooperative enterprises from the following towns were represented in the perade: Mahnomen, Roseau, Middle River, St. Hilaire, Erskine, Thief River Falls, Fisber, Ross, Flom, Newfoldsn, Viking, Greenbush, Helman, Beltrami, Lengby, Karlstad, Grygla, Ada, Hendrum, Plummer, Bronson, Bagley, Mentor, Winger, Perly, Holt, Warren, Clearbrook, Fertile, Goodridge, Fosston, Gary, Gentilly, Alvarado, McIntosh, Garden Valley and Erskine.

The Crookston American Legion Auxiliary Drum Corps and the well known Ninth District American Legion band participated in the procession.

Speaking on the afternoon's program, John Brandt, president of the Land O' Lakes organization, explained the plan of the Federal government to purchase butter to give to the needy, thru an organization with ten directors, of which he is president. The Land O' Lakes, Mr. Brandt stated, began purchasing surplus butter August 17, and haa accumulated 19,000,000 pounds. This was done, Mr. Brandt said, to strengthen the market. This butter will be repurchased by the government.

Stuart McLeod explained the method by which the Land O' Lakes had accumulated the money to pay the debt of the defunct Thief River Valley Poultry Ass'n. Other speakers were Dr. A. A. Dowell, superintendent of the Northwest School of Agriculture, A. J. McGuire, general manager of the Land O' Lakes and R. J. Lund, manager of the National Wool Pool in this city. B. O. Norby, manager of the local Land O' Lakes plant was chairman of the afternoon.

The fire origineted in the northwest corner of the building, occupied by the machine shop and fanned by a strong northwest wind spread rapidly thruout the entire building. The fire was believed to have been caused by en overheated kerosene stove that had been left burning while the workmen went home to dinner.

ENFORCEMENT OF NRA WILL BEGIN

Retail Code Omits Small Town Stores—Policing Agencies To Be Set Up.

Washington — The reorganization program of the NRA, including machinery for policing operation of codes throughout the country, is ready to go into effect. Together with creation of local boards to hear price complaints, as provided by President Roosevelt's executive order, the NRA will create a regional network of enforcement agencies under direction of the score or more representatives of the department of commerce who have offices in the country's principal cities. Their job will be to receive complaints and seek their adjustment locally. Where this method is not successful, cases will be taken up in Washington with the trade authorities set up for the various codes. The federal trade commission is expected to enter the picture only in cases of flagrant violations. It is the intention to substitute state representatives of the NRA for the department of commerce men, to handle the compliance work on a permanent basis. Commerce department agents have had regional supervision of the blue eagle campaign. The entire national labor board setup, with its regional boards in key cities, will be preserved intact to handle labor disputes arising under codes. In integral activity in the semi-permanent setup now evolved will be a division to help formation of trade associations for the less organized industries and trades. This work now is being started by T. S. Hammond. Under pressure of adverse farm sentiment, the NRA pulled out of the country's villages and small towns and announced a protective chain of local tribunals to keep merchants from raising prices too high. An exception under the order was that chain stores, wherever located, will remain under code regulation. Also small factories, these stores doing interstate business, and those employing more than five people still have the NRA watching over them, even in the otherwise exempt towns of 2,500 or less.

More than 1,000 leaders in business, industry, finance, agriculture, journalism and civic progress have been invited to the Victory dinner, held Thursday night (October 26) in the Nicollet Hotel, Minneapolis. "Canalization of the river simply means that the whole northwest and middlewest will be placed on transportation parity with seacoost cities. We will have a direct and adequate water route from the Twin Cities to the Gulf. This channel will support tows of 12,000 tons eech, a cargo sufficient to fill a great ocean liner or five or six freight trains.

"In dollars and cents, this water transportation means at least five cents per bushel more in the price of wheat to northwest farmers, and proportionate increases in tha prices of other grains. It means also a saving of at least $1 a ton on coal used in the northwest, and a similar saving on many other types of commodities which come from the southern parts of the country and from foreign lands."

CITY ATTORNEY H. O. BERVE REPLIES TO MAYOR TUNGSETH

Editor:

With the Editor's kind indulgence I should like to make a reply to Mayor Tungseth's statement in regard to the Grant for the Diesel Engine, even at the risk of again having the mayor insinnate that I am not truthful. I had hoped that we could give the public full informstion in regard to this gift of $15,000, and discuss the matter without hatred and without calling names. Regardless of what the mayor does, I shall not resort to such tactics.

Let me first of all assure Mayor Tungseth that I did not write the Editorial for the Forum. I had absolutely nothing to do with the Forum Editorial.

Let me again repeat that we are in danger of losing the gift of $15,000 through the discord, friction and opposition here at home. If the City wants this fifteen thousand dollars we simply have to quit fighting and finding fault with the grant. To prove this lat me quote from a letter in my office from Wm. N. Carey, Public Works Adminstrator, and dated October 16th, 1933, where he writes as follows:

"So far as I have been advised by Washington, the allotment for the grant will etand a reasonable length of time. If it should appear thru litigation, or eome other source, your city would be unduly delayed in taking advantage of the grant and in actually putting men to work, the Public Works Administration, will of course, withdraw tha allotment so that it mey be used elsewhere."

So far as the Conditional Sales feature of the contract is concerned it will not need to make any trouble. It is true that there was some objection to the conditional sales feature of the contract, but we had never heard of this objection until Attorney Lundgren , or Mayor Tungseth or someone here at home, had written to the Public Works Administrator about the grant. But be that as it may, that objection has been straightened out and removed quite a while ago.

Fairbanks, Morse and Company have agreed to waive the title to the engine in order to comply with the requirements of the grant. In other words Fairbanks, Morse and Co. will turn over the engine giving the city full title so as to enable the city to get the benefit of the fifteen thousand dollars, taking back only the revenue certificates, under soma arrangement satisfactory to the government. I have a letter from Fairbanks, Morse and Co. saying that they have so written Mr. Carey, and this arrangement has been approved by him. Wa may therefore say that the conditional soles part of tha contract has been removed and need no longer be in the way. To prove this last, let me quote from a letter which I have in my files from Wm. N. Carey, Public Works Adminstrator, which letter is dated October 20th , and in part reads as follows:

"I received a letter from Fairbanks Morse and Co. stating that their compeny which is low bidder in your contract, agrees to waive title to ownership of the equipment to be installed upon execution end surrender by ths City of Thief River Falls, of the revenue certificates in proper amount of the time of delivery ond installation of the equipment covered in the contract. Inasmuch as your application is for the grant only, I believe thot the arrangement as agreed to by the Fairbanks, Morse and Co. will be satisfactory, providing that the contract and other supporting papers are also found to be satisfactory."

This letter from Mr. Carey is in my files, and should clear the matter up, unless someone again writes in to the Government and makes some new objection to the grant. I may further say that naturally when you get a gift of fifteen thousand dollers from the government you must make some little adjustments as to N. R. A. wages end working conditions, in order to satisfy the government.

However, this has all been ironed out, and Mr. Carey has approved the arrangement. These minor details can olways be ironed out if we want this money and get busy. However, if we just simply want to fight and block things, then we can always find something to kick about. The point I wish to make now, and to make absolutely clear to the people of our city, is that if we want this fifteen thousand dollars we simply hava to get together and quit fighting between ourselves. That is all I said in my statement in last week's peper. Read it again yourselves, and you will fail to see anything therein to justify the Mayor or anybody else in resorting to calling names.

I have no desire to enter a newspaper controversy with the Mayor or anybody else, nor do I have any desire to fight for the mere entertainment of the public. However, to the best of my knowledge, all the cards were laid on the table and all the facts set out in the application for the grant. In order to show the people of the city that the Public Works Adminstration knew all about the Fairbanks Morse Contract arrangement, let me quote a few extracts from the application which was sent in to the Public Works Adminstration, as follows:

On page 7 where it says:

"Plans and Specifications have been issued, bids heve been called for, and were opened on the 25th day of July 1933. A provisional contract has been awarded to Fairbenks, Morse and Co., St. Paul, Minn., in the amount of $56,984. This contract is now held up waiting action of the part of the U. S."

Again on page 22 of the Application:

"CONCLUSION: Specifications have been drawn, bids have been opened, contract awerded, which was vetoed by the Mayor, subject to a grant by tha Government, and the council is willing and in a position to pass its resolution over the veto of the Mayor, providing the U. S. Government advances a grant of 30 per cent. If no grant is given, it may be difficult, if not impossible for the city to make this improvement during the Year 1933."

So much for the contents of the Application. In order to further prove to the Mayor and the people of our city that nothing was concealed, let me include the following leter:

FEDERAL EMERGENCY ADMINSTRATION OF PUBLIC WORKS, STATE ADVISORY BOARD

September 14, 1933.

Mr. H. O. Berve, City Attorney,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Dear Sir:

In connection with the application of the City of Thief River Falls, for a grant from the Federal Government for funds with which to construct Municipal Power Plant improvements, there is certain additional information which we will need for the purpose of making a report on this subject.

As we understand tha present status of this project, the City has awarded a contract to Fairbanks, Morse & Co. for the complete construction of tha improvements contemplated. In order for us to make a detailed report to the Department at Washington, it will be necessary for us to have four certified copies of the bids received at the time bids were taken for this project. It will also be advisable for us to have four copies of the advertisement for bids, on definite information as to how bids were taken, and whether or not at the time such bids wera taken, it was understood by the bidders that this project would be carried out under the rules and regulations of the the National Reovery Act.

Kindly let us have this information at your earliest convenience, so that we may make a complete report on this application.

Yours very truly.
Henry H. Jewell,
Engineer Examiner.

The copies and other information requested in the above letter were at once sent to the Public Works Administration. Kindly also note that this letter is dated September 14th 1933, and speifically refers to the Fairbanks, Morse Contract.

In passing it should also be stated that the bid of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. was the lowest of all bids received by about $3,000.00 thus saving the city about three thousand dollers. Clearly there can be no objection to the Fairbanks, Morsa & Co. contract so far as price goes, especially in view of the grant of fifteen thousand dollars.

We believe this will give the people of our city full information so that they may understand the grant. The council has worked hard, and they secured the grant which the Mayor requested and urged. The grant can be had now if tha people of the city want it. It can also be easily lost if we keep on fighting.

The working people of the city should also keep in mind that if the Injunction suit was out of the way, so that the council could go ahead with the purchase of the Engine, then quite a few working men would get jobs, under the N. R. A. wages and rules and regulations. I do not know just how many it would be, but a bulletin received at the local National Reemployment Office states about 20 men would be put to work on this project.

The application for the grant, the letters and other papers relating to the grant are on file in my office. I wish to extend an invitation to Mayor Tungseth, Bill Dehlquist or anyone interested to call et my office so that they may see for themselves that nothing has been concealed from the Public Works Administration. We have already heretofore invited tha Mayor two or three times to come to the office and discuss this matter, but I am only too glad to renew the invitation.

Thanking the editor for spoce for this rather lengthy statement, I am,

Yours very truly.
H. O. Berve,
City Attorney.

Thanks!

their good will and help during our recent fire.

GLENN FRANK ON THE TAX DOLLAR

Glenn Frank in taking issue with those whom he terms "Dishonest Tax Reductionists," says that the national future depends upon exposing them. He directs his fire at the "fallacy, deliberately fostered by dishonest tax reductionists, that when the tax dollar leaves the taxpayers' pocket it becomes a dead loss." Continuing he says that he undertook to follow the tax dollar of a certain city, not only as it left the taxpayers' pocket, but as it returned to the taxpayers directly through business stimulation resulting from the spending of the salaries and wages of city employes, the purchase of supplies and equipment by the city and the payment of interest and principal installments on the city's bonded indebtedness. He says;

> "Bnt that is only part of the story. There are indirect returns for the tax dollar in values that lie beyond economics but have econcmic value to the community nevertheless. The city I am using as an illustration has budgeted for 1933 the total of $31,483,292 for such services as: The health department which administers the inspection of the milk and the water supply, the inspection of meats and other foodstuffs, the clinical services of schools and health centers, the education of mothers in domestic hygiene, and so on. This department program has reduced the death rate of children for this city from 145 in 1910 to 46 in 1932, and between 1910 and 1932, has reduced deaths from typhoid, diptheria and tuberculosis quite as dramatically. Deaths from typhoid for instance dropped from 45 in 1910 to none in 1932. The city employes running the schools, the libraries, the museums and the recreational centers of the city —which are more crowded than ever in these days of unemployment—have erected strong barriers against the temptations and tendencies to crime among the city's youth. The tax money this city is spending on these services is one-fifth per capita for its youth of the money we are spending nationally on juvenile and criminal courts and penal institutions. There are dishonest tax reductionists in this city who would have the city cut its expenditures for such services drastically, despite the fact that its record on criminality among its youth is a bright spot in the American scene. If these services are now wrecked in the name of economy and the youth of this city match the criminal record of the nation at large, this city will have to spend five times per capita on its criminal youth what it is now spending in the nobler enterprise of crime prevention.
> "I cannot resist the conviction that the tax dollar of this particular city is invested rather than lost. It happens by coincidence that in this particular city the cost to the citizens for this service is almost exactly what they are spending on telephone, gas, light power and transportation—approximately 31 million dollars. The dishonest tax reductionists, in their grave concern for the tax payer, apparently think it sounder statesmanship to riddle the 31 million dollar budget for safeguarding the health, the intelligence and the character of its people than to reduce the rates for the present 31 million dollar bill for utility services. While fostering honest economy, our national future depends upon our exposing the dishonest tax reductionists.

The truth of Dr. Glenn Frank's deductions is being proven in the case of Minnesota, where the unwarranted reduction in the motor vehicle tax has swelled the lists of unemployed by throwing thousands of state highway employees out of work. The drastic reductions in other fields of state government has severely handicapped our educational facilities, while reports from cities wherein our state institutions are located show that business has suffered severely in those communities because of the slashes made in the salaries of state institutional employees.

It is becoming more and more apparent every day that so-called economy programs indulged in by national, state and local units of government has been rather the wrong kind of economy, tending to center the wealth more and more in the hands of those who have plenty before, while the farmers deprived of the market which the workers in the city are provided are, with the workers sinking deeper and deeper into poverty. Poverty fosters crime and idleness drive men, and women, to drunkedness and debauchery.

It seems to us that we have been too intent upon saving for a rainy day. We have been worrying about the problems of production long after those problems have thru modern methods ceased to exist. The problem now is distribution. Distribution of the world's wealth so that there be no abject poverty and distribution of the opportunity for labor so that there be none entirely idle.

The National Adminstration has recognized the fact that distribution is our problem and is attempting to solve it with NRA and the AAA, but while it is applying their new philosophy to industry and attempting to apply it to agriculture, it still clings to the psychology of want which it to all intent and purpose has repudiated when it administers its own business. One would believe that to be consistent it would now throw aside the National Economy Act and place all government employees on NRA hours and wages. To do so would certainly take up a lot or slack in the unemployment situation as well as provide a bigger and better market for the products of the farm and thus hustle us along on the road to recovery with an added impetus.

Governor Olson will be called upon within a few days to make what is probably the most important appointment of his tenure of office, so far as Northern Minnesota is concerned. In the resignation of Judge Wm. Watts of Crookston the 14th Judicial District is losing a man who has been an outstanding credit to his profession and to the judiciary of the state. He is a man of temperate judgment, deliberate and considerate, his long experience on the bench has given him an insight into the idiosyncracies of human nature which makes him hard to replace.

While we know that the 14th district possesses a lot of very good legal talent, we believe that the are two men in the district of such outstanding ability, legal training, integrity and judicial temperament that they stand head and shoulders above the rest of their profession as material for the judgeship. These two are H. O. Berve of this city and M. A. Brattland of Ada. Added to the fact that they are otherwise well qualified is the fact that they are both veterans in the Non-Partisan League and the Farmer-Labor movement.

While our selfishness naturally would lead us to endorse a close personal friend and a man from our own city, for we well realize that a rsidnt judge is "good business" for any town, we feel that the wellfare of the district should be uppermost when such appointments are made. Crookston and Warren are so close together that the fact that the judgeships are located in those cities has been to the disadvantage of the extreme edges of the district. There are often papers to be signed, prisoners who wish to plead guilty and must be taken before a judge as well as a great number of other matters that must continually make a disadvantageous location somewhat of an expensive proposition for a great many attorneys and counties in the outlying parts of the district. Thief River Falls would be even a more disadvantageous location. We feel therefore that the Governor could certainly not make a better choice than M. A. Brattland of Ada. In appointing him, he will have chosen a man whose fitness is beyond doubt and at the same time have located the judgeship in that part of the district which has been probably most penalized by distance in the past.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

WE WON'T BE STEAM ROLLERED

Some who have stood for sobriety and decency are just now letting their convictions be steam-rollered by sheer weight of nnmbers. By such attitude they imply that majorities can change insanity to sanity and reverse that irrevocable law that drink makes sottishness, poverty and crime.

A few of us refuse to let past records of liquor be steam-rollered out by hystrical votes. Not one iota has the damning indictment against alcohol been reversed. It is just as true as that the earth is round, and was round when everyone but Galillo denied it. And we stand pat in spite of the backwash of tommyrot about personal liberty to drink.

It is no harder to stand alone now than it was for Lincoln when some of his Cabinet intrigued against him, copperheads plotted, trusted generals failed and Europe prayed that Confederate bonds would stay at par. Some day it will be self-evident that this country can no more achieve its best while besotted with drink, than it could have done under human slavery.

Steam rollers never have been able to roll convictions out of all the people. The Inquisition tried, and failed. Feudal despotism ditto. Ghengis Khan and Napolean tried it. They all got badly dented by determined minorities. That's the fate of steam rollers. We refnse to be steam-rollered.

We shall rear onr children and grandchildren in the same belief that manual skill, keen brains, character that is immortal, don't go hand in hand with drinking freely that which makes babbling fools and gutter swine of so many. Even though some high officials chime in with hysterical majorities and a few college presidnts and some ministers "M Too" tha exultation of low-bred wets, we'll be an unrollered remnant waiting patiently to see the steam roller busted up. It's bound to be. Our grandchildren will go to the museum to see a badly wrecked, "everybody-back-to-booze" steam roller.

Borrowed Plumes Come From Different Lands

Leghorn, it appears from a consuler report, does not make the famons straw and velveteen hats that bear her name. She only handles those thet are made far np in the Tuscan hills. In the same way Panama, even hack in the day's hefore De Lesseps, was known the world around for the hats made hy South and Central American Indians 1,000 miles from the isthmus. But Panama was the common trading center to which they were fetched for export, and so the headgear got its name, according to the Boston Transcript.

And they tell us also that the children of the Celestial empire, in their old Chinese home, know nn such concoction as chop suey. It is a dish of American invention. Farmer-Labor Press Service

(By H. G. Teigan)

The tax dodgers are still with us. A discovery has just been made that the late Charles Weyerhauser, who died on February 15, 1030, dodged his moneys and credit tax on $60,318,388 worth of securities that were subject to tha 3 mill tax on moneys and credits.

The discovery was made by Michael Sipkins, inheritance tax examiner in the office of Attorney General Hnrry H. Peterson, a few weeks ago. Mr. Sipkins passed the information along to former Mayor William A. Anderson, now special tax investigator for the state tax commission. Mr. Anderson being an expert in running down big tax dodgers followed the trail and resolved and determined beyond all question that Mr. Weyerhauser had defrauded the various political sub-divisions of the state of Minnesota, of $180,954.85 in tax money.

On $60 Million

As stated above, more than $60,000,000 worth of securities issued by the Weyerhouser corporations operating under laws of other states were subject to the 3 mill tax in Minnesota. Such securities, according to the law, be declared in full by the owner to the county assessor. Investigation reveals that during the seven years folowing the year 1922 Weyerhauser declared only $60,000 per year or less than one tenth of one one per cent. Since his pssing, three years ago, his estate has declared absolutely nothing on the more than $60,000,000 worth of securities subject to taxation.

The securities are mainly those of other timber companies associated with the Weyerhauser interests, but issued by corporations incorporated under "foreign" state laws.

Back Taxes for 10 years

As a result of the failure to declare the securities for taxation the state has the legal right to go back to the time of original purchase of the stock and assess taxes, plus 7 per cent, up to the present time. Because of the fact that such procedure would involve long and expensive audit of the indefinite records of Weyerhauser's fortune, the county assessor has placed the valuation in the books for only the past ten years or approximately 60 million dollars.

The taxes, when collected will be distributed mainly among township and school district in which Weyerhauser resided. One third goes to the school district, while the county receives one sixth of the amount, the residue going to the state.

$23,000 Due State

Circulations indicate the $233,061.99 in tax revenue will accrue to various political divisions. Of this amount $180,954,85 is actual taxes, and $52,107.14 interest at 7 per cent. The school district will receive $77,687.33, the township $77,687,33, Morrison county, 38,843.66 and the state of Minnesota, $38,843.66.

The immense Weyerhauser fortune was founded upon the once flourishing timher industry of Minnesota. Timber rights wereo btained to state owned lands under extremely lax laws, remedied since the Farmer-Labor party assumed control.

These lands were denuded of natural wealth and left for the state to cope with. In some instances the land was bought or obtained through other means, stripped of timber, and left to drift back to the state through tax delinquency. It is these same tax delinquent lands that now form such a burden on taxpayers of the northern counties.

The Difference-Why?

Farmer-Labor state officials are apparently not so easy for tox dod- apparently not so easy for tax dodgers to deal with as were their Republican predecessors. Farmer-Laborites holding down state jobs are under no obligation to the "fat boys". That's why they can enforce the law with absolute impartiality.

The Republican party being the party of big business secures its campagn revenues from the tax-dodging and for that reason cannot ba so exacting with the letter in forcing tax legislation or any other legislation inimical to those who furnish the sinews of war during the campaigns.

It is my prediction that ere long the atate tax commission will reveal many more instances of tax-dodging on the part of big business corporations and individuals in this state.

ACTION COMMITTEE OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS TO MEET AT CHICAGO OCT. 30

The National Committee of Correspondence and Action of the Continental Congress of Workers and Farmers will meet in extraordinary session in Chicago October 30 to take up the important questions presenting themselves to the alliance of producing classes under the "new deal". First on the agenda of the National Committee which will meet all day the 31st at the Bismark Hotel, will be the calling of the next meeting of the main body of the Continental Congress which must meet not less than a year from the date of the original gathering in Washington D. C. last May 6 and 7. More than 4,000 delegates attended this year's Congress.

The next gathering of the Congress must, nnder the rules, meet in some city "not farther east than Chicago". The place and time of this massing of farmers and working delegates will be depended upon moves of the National Administration in the near future on such questions as the right to etrike, protection of the farmer in his usa of the land and adequate labor representation on industrial boards.

Following the all day session of the National Committee of the Continental Congress, most of whose 24 members are expected to be present, a puhlic mass meting will be held at 8 p. m. in the Electrical Workers' Hall at Washington Blvd. and Ogden Ave, Chicago. Speakers scheduled include Emil Rieve, President of the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers and Chairman of the Congress and other members of the National Committee, notably Norman Thomas of the Socialist party, John A. Simpson and Robert Miller of the Farmer's Union, Arnold Rann of the Northern States Cooperative League and Karl Borders of the Chicago Workers' Committee on Unemployment.

Your Name

You got it from your father; 'twas the best he had to give.
And right gladly he bestowed it—it is yours
the while you live.
You may lose the watch he gave you and another you may claim,
But remember when you're tempted, to be careful of his name.

It was fair the day you got it, and a worthy name to bear.
When he took it from his father there was no dishonor there;
Through the years he proudly wore it, to his father he was true.
And that name was clear and spotless
when he passed it on to you.

It is yours to wear forever, yours to wear
the while you live.
Yours, perhaps, some distant morning another boy to give;
And you'll smile as did your father smile above that baby there,
If a clean name and a good name you are giving him to wear.

Fish With Sheep Teeth

The sheepshead, one of the most valuable food fishes of the United States, derives its name not from the shape of its head, but from the teeth, which resemble those of a sheep to an amazing degree. The fish varies in weight from two pounds to about fifteen. Its teeth are used to grind up the shells of the shellfish, upon which it feeds principally. Young oysters, barnacles, mussels and similar crustacean are its favorite food. The fresh-water drum is a type of sheepshead.

Starfish Enemy of Oyster

The starfishes are among the most formidable enemies of the oyster. One means af destroying them is to catch them on a specially designed apparatus made af frayed rope, called a "tangle," and then kill them by plunging them into hot water. Persons engaged in this work know better than to cut the captured starfishes in pieces and throw them back into the water. This would only mean more starfishes than ever to prey upon the aysters, far each piece of starfish replaced in the water alive has a chance eventually af developing into a complete animal.

To these must be added North America, South America and Australia. Some authorities add a seventh continent, Antarctica, the land mass around the South pole. A continent is defined as ane of the great divisions of land on the globe, differing from an island or peninsula not only in its size but in its structure, which is that of a large basin bordered by mountain chains.

Notice of Farm Allotments and of Maximum Acreages of Wheat for 1934 Under Contracts for Members of the Wheat Production Control Association of Pennington County, State of Minnesota.

Listed below are statements of the allotments which have been determined for members of the Pennington County Wheat Production Control Association from Pennington County. These allotments are to hold for the duration of the present wheat contracts, and they are the basis upon which adjustment payments are to be made. They have been determined by the County Allotment Committee after careful consideration of the application statements. Every effort has been made to have these allotments as accurate as possible. The maximum acreage which may be sown to wheat for the 1934 crop on each farm, under the reduction requirements of the contract, is also listed.

The Pennington County allotment, which has been calculated from records of the United States Department of Agriculture, is 50,390 bushels. This is the total number of bushels allotted to the county under the wheat plan. The total of the individual allotments, including those allotments which could have been assigned to farms which are not participating under the wheat program, must be in line with the county allotment figure. The number of nonparticipating wheat farmers in the county is 217; the average total wheat acreage for those nonparticipating farms during the base period is 2,796 acres; the total average wheat production on these nonparticipating farms during the base period is 29,945 bushels.

Light Check-Up Week To Begin October 30

For an entire week, beginning Monday, (October 30) night drivers in Thief River Falls will be "tagged" if the lights on their cars are not in perfect condition, Chief of Police A. B. Stenberg announces. From seven p. m., until midnight, every night during the week, the chief will personally supervise light check-ups, he said.

Drivers of cars with glaring lights dim lights, badly focused lights, burned out lights and improper tail lights will be stopped and given tags which will allow 48 hours in which to hav corrections made. It is expected that all motorists will cooperate in this safety movement.

The local light check-ups will be conducted in connection with another statewide movement sponsored by the Minnesota Safety Council and the Minnesota Police Association. Puplic opinion and newspapers' editorial comment has demanded that drivers of cars with defective lights be resuired to have their lights fixed before snow, with its blinding effect upon night drivers.

In a former light drive, conducted last July nearly 50,000 cars with defective ligrts were found thruout the state. It is expected that almost as large a number will be found during ahe coming drive, as lights require more constant attention than any other mechanical safety feature of a car.

Chief Stenberg urges motorists to give consideration to the condition of the tires on their cars before slippery weather starts. Tires with trads worn off easily slide over ice or snow making brakes almost useless, he said.

Making Images of Buddha

In line with the process used by the Japanese to induce pearls to grow within the shells of oysters by the insertion of small bits of a foreign substance that eventually become pearl coated, is the method employed in creating the sacred clam shells that Chinese Buddhists believe to have a miraculous origin. These curious shells have small fat images of Buddha appearing as raised designs on their inner surfaces. The images have the same pearly luster of the shell linings and are really a part of the linings, showing no break or joint. In making one of these curios a clam shell is pried open for the insertion of a thin metal image. It is then closed and the clam returned to the water where it is left until enough new shell has been formed to cover the image with a varnish of pearl thick enough to hide the metal, at the same time fastening it to the shell.

New Zealand's Glow Worm Caves

It is as quiet as death as you float into the glow worm caves near Waitomo, New Zealand. Your guide's paddle makes no sound. Your boat slides forward away from the deep hue of the starred night sky and glides into inky blackness ahead. Suddenly, immeasurably far above, a single fading spot of light. Another and another, until the whole of this artificial sky that is the cavern roof comes alive with will-o'-the-wisps. It is the glow worm's light. Now a solid sheet of phospherescent gleaming. Now a thousand isolated flakes of light. The floating lights change, waver, drop nearer and then recede, die before your eyes and then rekindle in far corners.—Review of Reviews and World's Work.

Fear of Pain Saves Us From Many False Steps

Mother nature, for our preservation and safety, has hedged the trail from the cradle to the grave with pain. Pain is beneficent because it stands guard over our lives to protect us from penalties of broken natural laws. Were it not for pain, observes a writer in the New York World-Telegram, few children would grow up with all their fingers. The Canada thistle beside the cowpath keeps the barefoot boy inside the straight and narrow way as he drives the cows down at night. Prickers on blackberry bushes remind us that we cannot thoughtlessly gather the fruits of earth. Strong teeth on the smilax vine remind evil doers that though the jungle offers sanctuary it is not to be received without due respect. The fear of pain is the wellspring of sagacity forethought, careful living. Eating green apples in Eden caused distresses that have come down the ages and made millions of men and women eaters of legitimately ripened fruit. In the quick pain that follows the breaking of natural law probably lies the root of conscience, that unwritten code within each human breast upon which civilization, trade, government, banking and a thousand other human institutions are founded. The rights of others and the obligation to observe them are enforced by the poison ivy beside the swimming hole, the warning of the rattlesnake and the pale of neutrality about the hornet's nest.

Lord Julian Pauncefote Was British Ambassador

Lord Julian Pauncefote, who became the first British ambassador to the United States in 1893, was born in Munich, Germany, September 13, 1828. He was educated in England, France and Switzerland and was destined for a career in the Indian army. He had already received a cadetship in the Madras light infantry, when for family reasons he decided to enter the legal profession.

In 1862 he went to Hongkong to practice and three years later was appointed attorney general of the colony. In 1873 he was knighted, and in the years following served in various capacities in the British colonial and foreign offices. He was made permanent undersecretary of state for foreign affairs in 1882, served as British commissioner in the Suez canal negotiations in 1885 and came to the United States as minister four years later. The post of ambassador was not created for another four years.

After he headed the British delegation to the peace conference at The Hague in 1899, Queen Victoria made him the first Baron Pauncefote of Preston.

The years he spent in the United States were most successful. He liked this country and made every effort to help it in every way. His chief contribution, the Huy-Pauncefote treaty, negotiated in 1901, permitted the United States government to build and control the Panama canal as it now does.

He died at the British embassy in Washington, May 24, 1902. A state funeral was held there. The body was taken to England on an American warship. He is buried at Stoke, New Newark, England.

Grouse Family Large; Found in Many States

The grouse family is a large one and some subspecies can be found in a great number of the states and in Canada. The grouse, or at least the true grouse, is said not to be found anywhere save in the northern hemisphere. The ruffed grouse and the Canada spruce partridge, known as the black grouse, have been considered the two most valuable of the grouse family in America.

It is interesting to note the manner in which the grouse, or members of the family, are named in various parts of the country and Canada. In Canada there is the black grouse or spruce patridge, which also is known as the swamp partridge.

The spruce partridge is a small wood grouse and his habitat is the northern spruce forests. In New England the ruffed grouse was called the partridge or "patridge." In many sections of the country the grouse is called a pheasant. He also is called a prairie chicken. But authorities hold that these other birds are not of the same genus as either the Canada spruce partridge or the ruffed grouse.

Lizard Has Defensive Weapons

The Mexican spiny lizard, though an entirely helpless creature so far as defending itself physically is concerned, is provided by nature with three very effective means of self-protection. These reptiles are so covered with sharp spines that they can be handled only with difficulty. The spines also serve as a protection for the lizard because they form what might be termed a cloak of invisibility, so closely imitating the fragments of larval rock and other mineral debris amongst which the various species of spiny lizards are found as to allows its possessor to escape detection by an enemy. In case the spines fail to protect the lizard either from discovery or attack, however, the animal can confound an enemy by ejecting a thin stream of blood with great force from the corner of each eye.

The Armadillo Speedy

The armadillo, the armor-plated animal of Central and South America and sometimes found in Texas, is only 30 inches long on the average and equipped with short legs, yet so swiftly does it run, it can easily outdistance a man. It has two means of defense, one, its armor plate which protects it when it rolls up into a ball if overtaken by a too-speedy enemy and the other an ability to burrow into the ground at almost incredible speed. Mostly it is a nocturnal animal, coming forth after dark to feed upon insects, worms, roots, fruit and, when nothing better offers, sometimes on carrion. Its principal habitat is the woodland or pampas sections.

When Niagara Falls Wara Dry

The winter of 1847-48 was extraordinary severe. Heavy ice formed in Lake Erie. When it was broken up during the latter part of March, the winds swept the ice into the entrance of Niagara river at Buffalo, where it jammed in a solid mass, completely choking the outlet of Lake Erie, with the result that on March 29, 1848, the falls of Niagara were practically dry. Similar conditions prevailed during the winter of 1925-26.

Strange Wayside Orchards

Between Juliaetta and Troy, Idaho, the railway, winding through the Big Potlach and Bear Creek valleys, is lined with fruit trees which have germinated from seeds and cores thrown from the train by passengers who had been munching fruit. In the spring, beautiful blossoms on peach, cherry, apple, pear and plum trees scent the air. In the summer these domestic fruits ripen in the company of lofty pines and tamaracks, firs and hemlocks in the heart of the forest. Along the Juliaetta Genesee road in the same state the same types of domestic fruit trees, untrained and unattended, have grown despite their accidental beginning. They grew from pips and cores thrown away by ranchers, salesmen and stage passengers in the days before the automobile was introduced.

MCGUIRE MNGR. LAND O'LAKES DIES SUDDENLY

Was Known As "The Father Of Co-operative Marketing In Minnesota"

Arthur J. McCuire, for eleven years general manager of the Land O'Lakes Inc. and widely know as "the father of cooperative marketing in Minnesota," died late last Thursday afternoon, after a brief illness, In the Miller hospital at St. Paul Mr. McGuire was 59 years old ond died following an operation for a stomach ailment.

Mr. McGuire had been in this city the preceeding Saturday participating ia the Progress Day celebration sponsored by the Land O,Lakes Inc. Known personally to almost every creamery operator in the northwest, Mr. McGuire was consulted at frequent intervols by sponsors of co-operative movements throughout the world and wos known as an authority on such problems.

The Lond O'Lakes Creameries sprang into being in 1925 from the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries Association, Inc., which was Mr. McGuires idea, the result of almost 30 years of contact with dairymen and creamery operators in Minnesota as a member of the University of Minnesota department of agricultural staff.

In 1921, as university extension expert, Mr. McCuire went to New York with a view of obtaining better marketing facilities for Minnesota butter. Lack of organization he found hindered him, and he conceived the idea of a marketing organization, including all the creameries of the state.

At Mr. McGuires suggestion the state department of agriculture called a meeting of 300 co-operative creamery operators. The outcome of this meeting was a co-operators organization of which Mr. McGuire was named chairman. Final organization was completed in1922. Mr. McGuire was named general manager, a position he held until his death. Under his management the annual business of the organization grew from $12,000,000 a year to $51,000,000 a year and its products found a market thruout the world. It comprises now 450 co-operative creameries owned by more than 83,000 farmers.

Fire Destroys House; Goblins, Witches Frolic

Fire joined the Hallowe'en pranksters Tuesday night when it completely destroyed a vacant house a short distance north of the fair grounds on old Highway 32. The origin of the fire is not known but theories are advanced. Maybe the Goblins and Witches staging their annual frolic burned the candle at both ends —too long—.

MEN GO TO WORK ON ANGLE ROAD

Twenty-Six Men Work Clearing Right-of-Way; New Crew On Today

Twenty-six men from this county were pat to work by the local N. R. S. office, clearing the right-of-way for the new road connecting the Angle road and the Plummer road, on Monday. This morning a new crew of sixteen men and elevea teams went on the job of building the road. The teamsters are farmers in the county who need work and most of the laborers are unemployed from this city and St. Hilaire, Arnie Solem, manager of the employment office stated.

More work, consisting of the approaches to the new bridge will be done this fall, Mr. Solem stated, providing the weather is favorable and the freeze up does not come to soon.

A service office was opened Tuesday in Grand Forks by Donald Snyder, of the local office, to handle men on a dam construction project near Grand Forks.

Approximately 1,000 men have been put to work by the State highway department on secondary road projects since the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads recently removed a number of time-consuming regulations affecting this type of projcot, says a department bulletin.

About $2,000,000 of Federal funds are to be spent on Minnesota secondary projects approved by the U. S. Bureau of Roads. Much of this work will be done by day labor. Federal highway projects on the main trunk routes and in municipalities are being done largely by contract.

Cntractors doing highway work work are now employing in the neighborhood of 3,000 men and the highway department is employing about 4,000 in addition to the 1,000 just added on day labor jobs. This makes a total of about 8,000 working on state roads.

REELECT COUNCIL SAYS LARS BACKE

Urges Return of Pioneer Co-operative Spirit In City

It is time to return to the pioneer spirit of co-operation in city affairs said Lars Backe, tha progressive candidate for mayor in issuing a statement to the voters today. He urges the reelection of the city council and the protection of our city owned utilities. His statement follows:

Voters of the City of Thief River Falls;

Friends and Neighbors:

The Pioneers of this city had a vision of a future prosperous city, their vision has come true, today wa have a modern town with all the convenience of the bigger cities in our state. We have our own utilities which has proven to be a main factor in building up our community to its present estate. The vision of our pioneers has come true, it has been accomplished by co-operation of past city Mayors and Councils with the backing of public sentiment.

The good book says: "That a house divided will fall, united it will stand." Why not get some of that pioneer spirit back to our present day problems? To accomplish results there must be harmony and good will in our city administration, without this we will be tearing down in place of progress.

The voters of the city will express their views at the election on Nov. 7th, and whatever the result I hope it will be accepted in the right spirit by one and all. When tha voters have spoken let us all support the incoming council for our own best interest. It is natural that we differ, but when we do, it should be in a friendly manner. As to myself, the public knows that I am 100% for the protection of our public utilities and if the voters agree with me they will elect me along with tha progressive council.

If elected Mayor I shall use my best efforts to secure harmonious co-operation between the office of Mayor, and the city Conncil to the end that both may work together for the best interest of our city.

Respectfully yours,
Lars Backe,
Candidate for Mayor.

Diesel Proposition Discussed With Other Issues Of The Election

Between 175 and 200 persons attened the political rally held by the Workmans Protectiva association in the court house last Monday evening at which several candidates for aldermanic positions and R. M. Aalbu, editor of the Forum were heard on questions involved in the present campaign.

Paul A. Harris, Alderman from the first ward spoke first. He pointed out that the present council is the first concil in the city of thief River Falls that has included a minimum wage scale in a contract for work or construction. He reminded his listeners that the council is composed of six men and its decision must necessarily be the compromisa that can be arrived at betwen six men. On the question of wages, ha said, he had favored a higher wage than that set. Others had probibly favored a wage that was set. He urged the immediate purchase of another diesel engine for the local power plant and pointed out that the only reason that the project is not already under construction is tha fact that certain local citizens have tied the matter up in a law suit.

Alderman-at-large Chria Porter spoke briefly stating that he agreed with Mr. Harris and believes that the city should do its utmost to take care of the unemployment and yet must guard the city's finances so as not to overload the taxpayers. Refering to the light plant he declared himself in favor of adding another generating unit at once. Anyone looking the plant over can see that

JUDGE J. OLSON HEARS PLEAS ON INJUNCTION SUIT

Legvold Testifies To Need For Purchase Of New Diesel Unit

INCREASE IN ENERGY CONSUMPTION SHOWN

Mayor Colaborated In Fixing Payments Testimony Shows

A hearing on the application for an injunction restraining the city officials from entering into contract with Fairbanks-Morse and company, for the purchase of a diesel engine, was held in the Pennington county court rooms last Monday. The application which was brought by a group of citizens who oppose the purchase set forth a number of alleged facts among which were that the diversion of the earnings of the municipal light and power department into the purchase of another diesel engine would deplete the general expense fund of the city and thus place an added burden upon the taxpayer; that the contract would consitute a general obligation upon the city; that the expenditure is unnecessary at this time; and that it is not within the legal power of the city council to enter into such contract without a vote of the people.

Plaintiffs were represented by attorneys Paul A. Lundgren and H. O. Chommie, the city was represented by city attorney H. O. Berve and Theo. Quale, while the Fairbanks-Morse Co. being co-respondents in tre action, were represented by John P. Kyle.

In opening the case, Mr. Chommie stated that the sole question at issue is whether or not the city council has authority under the city's charter to enter such a contract as proposed. Mr. Kyle suggested that if such is the case plaintiffs could strike out 90% of their complaint.

On direct examination P. G. Pederson, city clerk, replying to question by H. O. Chommie, stated that the specificatioas for the proposed engine was drawn up by H. M. Anderson of the Fairbanks-Morse Co., aided by the city Superintendent of Water and Light, Ole Legvold. Further examination later developed the fact that only the preliminary draft was drawn by Mr. Anderson and that the final specifications as approved by the city council had been redrawn by City Attorney H. O. Berve and changes sug-

Chief interest this year will center around the Home Economics building, which has been completely remodeled and now takes its place as one of the most modern buildings on the campus square.

During the noon hour the parents will be guests of the student body at a special Parent's Day dinner in the school dining hall. Following the dinner hour a special assembly program will be presented under the direction of the Music, English, Home Economics and Agricultural departments.

Inspection of exhibits entered in the Home Project fair, together with a general get-together, will take place in the physical education building during the late afternoon, with a Hallowe'en party scheduled for the evening.

MOTORISTS MUST CHANGE SUMMER DRIVING HABITS

Minnesota motorists will prevent deaths, injuries and car damage if they step more lightly on the gas at the first sign of snow or ice on the highways, according to safety experts of the State highway department.

Every fall, department records show, there are a large number of accidents following the first snow or sleet storms because drivers are still in the habit of shooting along at summer speeds, which are not safe under winter conditions.

Last week there were a number of skidding accidents on the highways in the northern part of the state following the first real snowstorm of the season. Most of these could have been prevented by more careful driving.

WE HAVE ENJOYED THE BATTLE

On Tuesday the voters of Thief River Falls will go to the polls and render the decision in the present campaign. Naturally we hope and believe the entire progressive ticket will be elected. We feel that the present council has served the city conscientious and faithfully for the past two years, and altho they have made mistakes, they have also more constructive good work to their credit than any council the city has had for many years. And they have held office in the most trying time in the history of the city. Added to that, they have been hampered by criticism and lack of cooperation from a few citizens who like to be considered "uppercrusters" which certainly has not lightened their load. We feel that their work entitles them to reelection and that their unequivocal stand on the question of purchasing another power unit for the municipal light plant is an assurance to the citizens of Thief River Falls that they will not let the city's interests in this most vital utility deterioate, even if the decision of the court should go against them in the matter of the injunction suit. We believe that they can be depended upon to devise a way of financing the project and make use of the Federal grant thru some other method if the present proposed contract is found to be illegal, which we do not believe that it will be.

Nevertheless we shall be well satisfied with the decision of the voters regardless of which way the election goes. We shall continue to do our part towards the building up and bettering of our city and community; to criticize what we believe is wrong and commend what we believe is right. For a frank discussion brings progress and only from indolence, "softpeddaling" and suppression has democratic government anything to fear.

We take a great deal of satisfaction in the fact that some small part of the fight has been due to our efforts for we feel that the heat of the campaign has centered public attention more than ever upon the issues involved. The debates and arguments that have developed has been good for all of us, mainly because it has led to such a thorough discussion of the issues that every citizen has had an oportunity to become informed and to learn the facts. There is no need of anyone going to the polls without knowing what he needs to know to render an intelligent verdict. Therefore we feel that the outcome will be a true expression of the will of the majority.

WHO IS DISLOYAL NOW?

Those people that were massaging their noses every morning a few years ago to make it hooked like the eagles beak and screaming about 100 per cent Americanism are now talking about the need for a strong man, giving the president unlimited power, the benefits we could derive from a dictatorship, and so on, which shows how little faith they actually have in our American form of government and our American institutions. A true American believes in, and fights for free speech, free press and free assemblage. Unknown under a dictatorship. The true American believes in the rule of the majority thru its representatives and that minorities shall bow to the wishes of the greater numbers, gracefully and without ARMED or BELLIGERENT opposition. Confining their opposition to education and propaganda. Just point that out to the next 100 per center you hear talking about a dictatorship.

None questioned the council's authority when it came to spending $80,000 for an auditorium, but man! How wrong they are when they want to spend $38,000 for an additional engine for the power plant. Can it be possible that the fact that an auditorium is not a paying proposition for some private corperation has anything to do with this inconsistency?

The Times advises us to vote for Tungseth for mayor. The Times also advised us to vote for Hoover for president, for Earl Brown for governor, for Selvig for congress.

Editor Noonan of the Baudette Region says, "A hundred years ago there was no Republican party. Things havn't changed much have they?"

And we suggest that the Holt editor should put on a flowered bathrobe and a Turkish fez. His advice then would have more of an "official "air.

LAND O' LAKES LEADS

If our membership will turn back over the pages of the Land O' Lakes News and will refresh their memories regarding the public utterances of some of the high officials of the Land O' Lakes organization, they will note that the basic principles with respect to the the Land O' Lakes organization for some time past. We have maintained for a long time that the solution of the problems of agriculture lie in the full development of co-operative marketing, production control, refinancing of agricultural loans, controlled monetary system, and readjustment of international obligations on a basis of ability to pay.

The last four points are now almost universally advocated by men in all walks of life. Co-operative marketing is not yet as universally accepted as the permanent stabilizer of all agricultural activities and the farmers should recognize the soundness of the position of the Land O' Lakes organization in the past and give a little more thought to its advice regarding the support of co-operative marketing.—Land O' Lakes News.

NEED ORGANIZATION

Never before have the farmers needed an organization as much as they have needed one today. Organization and cooperation is what has brought results for other industries, and will accomplish the same for the farmers.

But, it must be an organization of ALL farmers, organized by farmers only, with their leaders real dirt farmers. No business or professional man should be included in the group. It should be a farmers organization—for farmers only.

We have already had some farmers' organizatious of this kind that have been proved very successful, and have been very beneficial. If every farm commodity could be organized under a strictly farm membership, with no high salaries to tempt anyone, we would soon see the farm products in control of the farmers where it belongs.

However every farmer MUST cooperate to succeed, just like every industrial group must have its entire membership in order to get the results that it has been getting.—Detroit Lakes Tribune.

FORESTS AND WATER SUPPLIES

Man found Minnesota a "land of sky blue water," much of its land area covered with majestic forests.

The forests are practicaly gone. Paul Bunyan and his successors have left little but stumps and a wilderness of brush. Regarding swamp lands as so much waste, man has drained them, and in some cases he lakes, too.

After a succession of dry years lakes have been dwindling, and many have disappeared. Smaller streams this year have gone dry, and in many cases this has created serious problems.

It begins to dawn on the modern Minnesotan that man may be to blame for vanishing water supplies and diminished rainfall. Forestry now is taken seriously, instead of as a fad. There is evident connection between the denuding of forests and the lowering of lakes. Both are causes of diminished precipitation. Evidently, too, the State has overdrained. Swamps that were reservoirs of moisture in dry seasons have largely been turned into dry expanses, and have ceased to feed streams.

So the problem of conserving Minnesota's moisture is being discussed widely, and seriously. The Northfield News pleads for reforestration, and says:

> No one can make rainfall, but it is possible, by natural means, to conserve the rain that does fall by the planting of trees. Forests are the best of Nature's water holders and soil holders. A forest acts like a big sponge. The thick mat of leaves and moss at the base of trees is able to absorb many hundred times its own weight of water. So the rain that falls in some sudden storm over a forest is quickly soaked up, and later this same water comes to the surface again in the form of springs and streams.

It is high time to formulate and effect a policy of restoring tree areas, not only in the former habitat of the white pine, but in Southern and Western Minnesota. The proper conservation of moisture also calls for damming streams, creating reservoirs, and raising lake levels. But forestry is an important feature of any such program.

Trees grow slowly in Minnesota, because of long, cold winters, and comparatively low precipitation. Even young growths, however, should have some beneficial effect on rainfall. The State should take the lead in extensive tree planting, and in promoting of trees, so that private land owners will co-operate.—Minneapolis Journal.

You will never get the greatest joy out of living until you feel you are one with a great many people. —Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt.

SLICKER AND SLACKER BRIGADE

By Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

There is never any point in dodging facts. It is plain and obvious to any one who is observing the field of national politics closely that the NRA doesn't lack its quota of enemies Why are those enemies? There is nothing mysterious about their identity. They are the money-changers. You remember them, don't you? Those men who unload upon this nation billions of dollars worth of now defaulted foreign bonds Those men who made the crash of '29 inevitable and inescapable. Those men who first shoveled over to Europe the billions entrusted to them by their unsuspecting clients and then, when those billions became frozen, started to call in domestic loans in order to cover the shortage Those men who watched approvingly the ludicrous performance of a third-rate German municipality borrowing some fifteen million dollars in America to finance the building of an "ideal" stadium and an "ideal" swimming pool.

Their first name is greed, is and always has been. Their middle name is Stand Pat-ism, is and allways has been. A deadly combination of names to be sure, and one responsible for the greatest calamities in our history.

Spread Seditious Gossip

It would be extremely naive to believe that, having guided America's destinies for many long years, Greed and Stand Pat-ism would be satisfied to step aside now and let the nation enjoy its new leadership. They spread their seditious gospel. They use every means at their disposal to prevent the re-born nation from reaching its destination. Calling in loans, refusing to extend long-term credit to merchants and manufacturers transferring their hoarded money aboard, engaging the services of high paid lawyers in the fight againt the NRA codes, mobilizing the cohorts of disgrunted politicans over thrown by the great national uprisal of last November. It would be impossible, indeed, to describe all the tricks resorted to by Greed and Stand Pat-ism. Nothing is too low, nothing too treacherous, nothing too cruel in the estimation of the men who lead their forces.

It is plain and obvious to anyone who has the misfortune of meeting the leaders of Greed and Stand Patism in the surroundings where they "speak up" and mince no words, that we are about to witness what might turn out to be the Last Battle between the Young Army of Reconstruction and the Old Guard of Destruction. The lines are drawn: Idle Capital versus Working Capital; hoarders who would rather see the whole world perish than sacrifice a cent of their fixed income versus laborers, merchants, manufacturers, and white collar workers who have everything to gain through the national recovery. The issue is clear: Is the Presidents program to be fulfilled or are we to return to where we were eleven months ago.
